School Tax Vote Saturday

Tomorrow, residents of Bensenville and Wood Dale will vote on a 21-cent educational tax rate increase for Fenton High School A similar referendum was voted down last February

Polling places will be open Saturday from 9 a m to 7 p.m. Voters may register Saturday until noon at the Bensenville and Wood Dale village halls. In addition, a certified registrar will be at election headquarters at Fenton from 1 to 5 p.m. for latecomers

A controversy over proposed curtailments of the Fenton curriculum this fall touched off the movement to hold Saturday's referendum Concerned residents formed the Fenton Citizens Committee and appeared before the Dist. 100 board May 9 to request the referendum.

PASSAGE OF the referendum would raise the educational fund tax rate from $1.21 to $1.42 per $100 of assessed valuation, providing an additional $175,000 for the district when taxes are collected next May.

At present, Dist. 100 has a deficit of about $750,000 in the educational fund.

This time around, the referendum has gained support from both school and village officials. Appearing before a meeting of the citizens committee, Village Pres. John Varble told the group he would "personally support the efforts of this committee to provide a good education for our children."

AT THE same meeting, Lt. Arthur Garcia of the Bensenville Police Department said, "Rest assured that I will assist you in any way possible to pass this referendum."

Mrs. Richard Diegnau, co-chairman of the committee, said she is "very optimistic" about passage of the referendum. She told workers for the referendum, "Our purpose is to inform. If people have the facts, they can't help but vote yes."

Fenton Board Pres. James DiOrio said Thursday, "I have high hopes that we'll have a successful referendum All we as a board can do is function the best way possible with the tools the people give us"

The main feeling among members of the citizens committee seems to be that their first goal is a large turnout at the polls.

Mrs. Diegnau has said, "Even if the answer is no, we want a big turnout. At least then we will know how the people feel and can work from there." The committee anticipates a turnout of at least 3,000 voters.

The polling places for Dist. 100 are: Precinct 1, Mohawk School, Franzen Avenue, Bensenville; Precinct 2, Green Street School, Green Street, Bensenville; Precinct 3, Tioga School, Memorial Road and Addison Street, Bensenville; Precinct 4, Blackhawk Junior High School, Church Road, Bensenville, Precinct 5, Highland School, North Wood Dale Road, Wood Dale, and Precinct 6, Oakbrook School, South Wood Dale Road, Wood Dale

STUDENTS IN Dist 100 are planning a parade Saturday beginning at the high school at 10 a.m. Bands, a float and representatives of school organizations will participate in the rally to support passage of the referendum.

Students and members of the Fenton Citizens Committee will be available Saturday for babysitting and shuttle services Anyone who needs assistance may call election headquarters at Fenton, 766-2500 Several lines will be open to take calls.

Fenton Business Manager Kenneth Carroll has said that much of the opposition to the referendum has resulted from rumors begin spread around the district.

"If someone's against the referendum," he said, "they will latch onto any little thing to argue it" Nevertheless Carroll said he is optimistic about passage of the referendum because "This time there has been so much activity by people who haven't helped us before."

Emil Kupisch, co-chairman of the committee said, "People will pick up little things to use against us. In this case, our enemy may be our neighbor, so word of mouth about the referendum must come into play."

Referring to the coming curtailments, Kupisch said, "There are too many areas to improve in education without taking away what we have."

Anyone with questions concerning the referendum may call Mrs. Richard Diegnau at 766-3004 or Fenton High School.

A Register Editorial

Help Dist. 100

Tomorrow could be a good day for students in Bensenville and Wood Dale if enough voters say "yes" to a 21-cent educational tax rate increase

The Dist 100 High School Board of Education asked for a similar tax boost in February, but voters turned it down As a result, cutbacks to the tune of $140,000 will be made in next year's budget What does this mean to the high school?

The elimination of one period in the school day will mean that many students will not be able to fit band, chorus or drama into their schedules One-half of the art program will be cut, affecting more than 125 students

Some freshman and junior varsity sports will have to be eliminated, and other student clubs and organizations will have their budgets cut in half

BUT THE academic cutback is most serious No longer will a student be able to take more than four solid subjects during a semester Thus the student who is really interested in learning more will be denied the opportunity of an additional course

Whether a student is headed for college, vocational school or directly into the business world he will use his high school training on a daily basis Without a sound and well rounded educational base it will be difficult for him to compete

But perhaps you don't have children in the high school and are not yet, or no longer, interested in what is happening there Consider another point

It has been frequently pointed out by Realtors that the quality of a town's educational system has a direct affect on the property values in that community. Few parents would buy a home in a community with an unaccredited high school.

IF FENTON does not receive additional funds by the fall of 1970, it is almost certain to lose its accreditation with the North Central Association.

It is unfortunate that the people who will be most strongly affected by this issue are not old enough to record their opinions at the polls But students at Fenton have found a new way to demonstrate how they feel about pending cutbacks.

They have constructed signs, written leaflets and offered their services as drivers and babysitters on election day. They will march through the streets of Bensenville tomorrow to demonstrate their concern about the fate of their school.

CAN ADULTS afford to do less?

We support the work of the Fenton Citizens Committee and the Fenton High School Student Council in urging you to vote "yes" tomorrow

Rose Parade Set

The annual Roselle rose parade and queen contest will begin at 1:30 p.m. Sunday

Marshals for the parade will be Chuck Benson and Kurt Russell, disc jockeys from Chicago radio station WIND.

The parade this year will honor Gary Steger, injured Lake Park athlete. The parade route has been altered so that the procession will pass in front of Gary's home.

Seven contestants will compete for the title of "Miss Roselle Rose Queen." They will ride in open convertibles to the parade grounds, where the queen will be crowned.

The girls will be interviewed Saturday morning by a panel of judges. Beauty, talent and composure will be a part of the criteria. Paul Derda, Roselle Park director, will tabulate the votes and keep the sealed results until Sunday.

All seven contestants attend Lake Park High School.

The parade this year will include the famous Highlanders Bagpipe Band of Chicago, which was founded 49 years ago by a small group of Scottish immigrants who served in the Scottish regiments during World War I.

The band is authentic with members having been born in Canada, Ireland, Scotland and England, where they served with both civilian and military groups.

Other parade participants will be school bands, girl scouts, VFW members and color guards from the Navy, Coast Guard and Marines.

Another part of the Roselle festivities is a carnival at Parkside Park which began yesterday. Featured in the carnival is the "umbrella ride," premiered for the first time in this country

Other rides include the ferris wheel, merry-go-round, tilt-a-whirl, flying scooter and round-up. Kiddie autos and the "Baby Frolic" are rides designed for even the smallest children.

May Top 400

Cutting the size of precincts in DuPage County may result in an estimated 65 additional over last year's count, according to preliminary figures

Finalization of the number and locations of new precincts is expected later this month. The number is expected to grow to 407, provided remaining townships fall in line

Donald J Wall, election committee chairman of the DuPage County Board of Supervisors, said this week that several precincts have grown as much as 1,500 in the last two years, since the last re-precincting Two started with less than five registered voters in the precinct and, due to wild development and growth, have grown to nearly 1,550, he said.

Begin Merger Study

By JUDY MORRIS

Members of school boards underlying Lake Park High School Dist. 108 agreed Wednesday to begin a study of possible district consolidation.

Supt E W J Bagg of Roselle Dist 12 offered to head the study.

It was decided that two representatives from each of the five districts will comprise the committee for the study. Participants can be either board members or interested citizens

C F. Nagro, a retired teacher, told the meeting of the boards, "Consolidation is important. If we can make a beginning at least now and not let it drop, we could go very far in improving education."

Bagg began the discussion by quoting from a report on consolidation written in 1943. the issue is not a new one, he said, and added, "We must give all our children an equal opportunity for education"

THE STATE will reimburse the districts for a portion of the cost of the study, Bagg said.

Much voluntary consolidation has already taken place in Illinois school districts, Bagg reported. It is a feeling among many educators that the state may begin requiring consolidation in several years in order to insure the survival of small school districts.

One board member said he feels a consolidation study may take as long as three years.

"If we wait until the need arises to study the problem," he said, "it may be too late." The group concurred that the study should begin now

The school consolidation issue has many pros and cons. Those in favor of the system point to economy in sharing administrative salaries and other costs. Those against consolidation fear the loss of the individual school's identity.

THERE ARE several different forms consolidation can take One solution is to combine elementary districts. This is the plan that will be studied by the committee.

Another possibility is to form a unit school district which would also take in the high school. Many school boards are against this system because they feel the problems of elementary boards and high school boards are too different

Those who support a unit consolidation plan point to the continuity in education resulting from a single board which would deal with grades kindergarten through 12.

Supt. Carl Forrester of Lake Park High School has gone on record as saying, "There is value in the formula for a unit district."

A third alternative is to form two districts, one elementary and one high school, but to have them operate under the same name.

The first meeting of the study committee is expected to take place later this month.

Hearing Set on Sewer

A public hearing has been scheduled by the Itasca Board of Trustees to air its executed contract with Central Manufacturing District on the $600,000 Prospect-Thorndale sanitary sewer project.

The surprise announcement of the hearing set for 8 p.m., Tuesday in the village hall, was made by Village Pres. Wilbert Nottke at this week's village board meeting

Nottke, reading from a prepared statement, said the board had scheduled the public hearing because of several comments village officials have received concerning the project from local residents.

"I urge all interested citizens of Itasca to attend this hearing, as there are undoubtedly a number of questions being asked of board members relative to the project," Nottke said.

He said village officials will answer all questions on the proposed sanitary sewer, which will provide for future expansion north of the Itasca Industrial Park of CMD.

"We have nothing to hide — we will bring everything out in the open," Nottke said.

Requested to attend the Tuesday hearing are members of the village water board; J. Richard Koehler, village engineer, and representatives of CMD.

(Copyright 1969 Paddock Publications Inc.)

During the next few weeks, migrant workers will be pouring into our Northwest suburbs, mostly from Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley. Who are these migrants? What is HOME to them? Today, in the third of a six-part series, Senior Staff Writer David Hoyt describes the migrant's jobs in the valley before he heads north.

Story and Photos by David Hoyt

Whether he's a common farm laborer, a crew leader, a landscaper or a nursery worker, when it comes to making a living the Mexican American migrant is usually better off during his northern migration than he is at home in the Lower Rio Grande Valley

The valley is home — true enough The valley is where the family is. The climate there is nice in the winter

But valley agriculture simply cannot absorb a winter labor force that harvests most of the rest of the nation during the summer

Between 100,000 and 125,000 migrants leave the valley each summer — about a third of the total population — and when they return there are simply not enough jobs to go around, not enough jobs to offer a decent wage.

"We hit about 6 per cent unemployment in the valley in the winter," Richard Stolle of the Texas Employment Commission says "That's including people who'd like to work but can't They (the growers) can afford to offer low wages and still pick and choose who they hire"

GENERALLY THE migrant laborer has no other skills so he takes what work he can get and waits for the next migration.

The man who makes $1 70 an hour in Minnesota is lucky to get 90 cents an hour doing the same thing in the valley

Stolle says $1 30 "is the federal standard minimum wage in agriculture." when he is asked about pay on the south Texas ranches.

It's a good answer. But it won't always wash, because much of the picking is done on a piece-work scale and what is made in pice-work depends on the pieces

Onion topping can bring a man good money. If the onions are big and the earth is not too hard, a man might put up six sacks of onions an hour, letting him average $1.50 an hour; 25 cents a sack is the going rate.

But that usually can't be done The crews crawl along the rows, snipping frantically at onions not much bigger than

NINE YEARS LATER, Mrs. Phanos stands in front of the Rose Restaurant in Roselle, which she and her husband, Adam, own. A graduate of Lake Park High School, Mrs. Phanos has lived in the Roselle area all her life.

First Queen Recalls Crowning

by JUDY MORRIS

Tradition is a part of any beauty contest. One person in particular will observe Sunday's crowning of the Roselle Rose Queen with nostalgia.

Mrs. Ann Phanos, formerly Ann VanderWerf of Roselle, was the village's first rose queen in 1960. Mrs. Phanos presently lives in Roselle with her husband, Adam, and their 2-year-old son, Dino.

"My folks were pretty surprised," Mrs. Phanos said, "and I was very excited."

Festivities at that first rose pageant were much the same as they are now, Mrs. Phanos said. The 18 contestants rode in the parade in open convertibles just as this year's candidates will do.

MRS. PHANOS GREW UP in Roselle, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John VanderWerf, owned a grocery store on Bokelman Street near the present site of the Rose Restaurant which Mrs. Phanos and her husband own.

The first rose queen festival was organized by C. F. Nagro, a Roselle music teacher. Nagro was also the composer of the song "Roselle, Dear Home Town."

Aug. 7, 1960, was a bright and sunny day in Roselle. Record crowds turned out for the parade, many persons wearing a single rose pinned to lapel or dress. It was reported at the time that as many as 2,000 people saw Ann VanderWerf crowned as the first rose queen.

"I don't remember much about that day," Mrs. Phanos said.

"THERE WERE A LOT OF people, and I do remember being very nervous. Each girl was interviewed before the judges, and I'll never know how I got through it."

Gifts were given to the queen by local merchants. Savings bonds, gift certificates and even a piece of property in El Paso, Tex., were donated.

"I've never seen my lot in Texas," Mrs. Phanos said. She laughed. "I think I've still got the deed somewhere, but for all I know it's not even my property anymore."

After graduation from Lake Park High School in the same year she won the contest, Mrs. Phanos attended Elgin Community College for a year and then worked as a catering manager for a country club.

SHE HAS BEEN married for five years and now jointly manages their restaurant with her husband.

"The system works out really well," Mrs. Phanos said. "I take care of the front of the restaurant and Adam supervises the kitchen and management."

Roselle's first rose queen said she never entered any other beauty contests because "I just never thought about it."

ROSELLE'S FIRST rose queen, Mrs. Ann Phanos, formerly Ann Vanderwerf, remembers she was "very excited" when she won the title in 1960.

More Power Urged

Cook County School Supt. Robert P. Hanrahan should become chief legislative spokesman for all northern Illinois schools, a consultant firm said this week.

The legislative recommendation was one of several recommendations made by the firm of Cresap, McCormick and Paget for strengthening the Cook County superintendent's office.

That recommendation is expected to ruffle feathers of other northern Illinois county superintendents and local school men working actively now to get school legislation through the General Assembly.

James Worthy, vice president of the firm, announced the results at a press conference Tuesday in Hanrahan's Chicago office.

HE SAID THE COUNTY superintendent should exercise leadership in legislative matters throughout northern Illinois "by force of personality" rather than "force of law."

The report said Hanrahan "should regard it as a continuing responsibility of his office to stimulate discussion and planning among his fellow county superintendents and among educators in general on how the state's total educational structure should be modified and strefgthened."

The report said the Cook County superintendent is "in a unique position" to understand the needs of growing suburban schools.

Worthy said the firm's recommendations for strengthening the Cook county school office are considered short-ranges with long-range improvements only possible through legislation.

THE STUDY also made these recommendations:

—That the state provide funds to double the number of professionals on Hanrahan's staff.

—That the county superintendent be elected only by voters in suburban Cook County, not by the City of Chicago.

—That Hanrahan's office beef up its consultant services to local schools.

—That legislation be passed to permit the superintendent's office to administer cooperative programs requested and financed by local school districts.

—That ineffective adtivities of the superintendent's office be reduced or eliminated.

The study said the county superintendent currently has a staff of 12 — three paid by the state, nine by the county and one from federal funds. Another dozen professionals should be added, it said.

Hanrahan acknowledged at the press conference that his staff is spread paperthin.

The county office, he noted, must conduct annual inspections of buildings in 146 school districts — but has only one man to do the job.

New Library Hours

The Roselle Public Library will have a new schedule of hours for the summer months beginning Monday. A cutback in open hours is the result of the relative lack of use of the library during the summer season, the loss of one librarian and vacation for the remaining librarians.

The new schedule is: Monday, from 1:30-5:30 p.m. and 6:30-9 p.m.; Tuesday, from 1:30-5:30 p.m.; Wednesday, from 1:30-5:30 p.m.; Thursday, 1:30-5:30 p.m. and 6:30-9 p.m.; Friday, closed; Saturday, from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Hit Chamber Aid Proposal

An Illinois State Chamber proposal that the legislature back off from a state aid increase badly needed by Harper Junior College and the College of DuPage was sharply criticized today by a state junior college association official.

James Broman, executive director of the Illinois Association of Community and Junior Colleges, issued a statement expressing "deep concern" at the state chamber's recommendation that state aid go up only $2 per credit hour instead of the $4 raise to $15.50 recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE).

He said the state's business and industry stands to lose if the Illinois junior colleges don't get adequate funding.

BROMAN, LEGISLATIVE spokesman for the state junior college association to which Harper and the College of DuPage both belong, said the chamber suggestion that $7.1 million be trimmed from the state's budget by not giving as much to the junior colleges was "a shock, especially since the chamber of commerce was instrumental in creating the junior college system."

Broman said business and industry throughout the state will be hurt if the full $15.50 per credit hour aid level is not approved.

He said that local junior colleges needl the state aid increase and a lower level would mean curtailment of expensive "occupational programs so vital to the economy" or increase in local property taxes to compensate for the state aid the junior colleges don't receive.

THE STATE chamber statement last week said its recommendation that state aid be increased only from $11.50 — this year's level, to $13.50 gibed with recommendations of the Illinois Junior College Board.

Broman said this is not so. He noted that the Illinois Junior College Board had originally recommended junior college state aid be increased from $11.50 to $17.

Black Teacher is Stranger No More

by MARY DRESSER

Henry Dokes, the only black teacher at Wheeling High School, faced his first all-white class last September

Dokes knew he was on trial, but his suburban students were also on trial. If the students resented his color and refused to learn, he was prepared to return to his job as industrial arts teacher at Crane High School

He faced a tough, all-male power mechanics class Would student attitudes toward the black man undermine discipline"

Dokes was driving 96 miles each day from the south side of Chicago to teach at Wheeling. Would it be worth it?

ANYONE WHO HAS SEEN a teenage driver "burning rubber," knows Dokes was dealing with an explosive group.

"They challenged me at first, but all kids do this They did the same thing at Crane I've had enough experience to know that if I can't hold a class in order it'll go up for grabs," Dokes said.

How did he hold them? He sensed there were differences between Wheeling and Crane boys, and "threw the curriculum out the window "

"At Crane, the kids aren't used to having cars I had to spend a lot of time in the classroom explaining the basic theory of motors. Here the kids have been around cars all their lives and have been driving for years. I told them to go out on the floor and work "

"We started by tearing down and putting together lawnmowers," junior Dan Gundlach of Prospect Heights said. "Then we went on to motors and cars."

"THEY SAID TO ME, 'I want to learn.'" Dokes recalled. "They wanted something I knew. They are so hungry for knowledge "

The boys were from tidy suburban homes, but they had loved machines since they were children. They dove into work "on the floor," smearing themselves with good, black, strong oil and grease and fuel oil.

"He made me shop foreman," said Gundlach proudly. Gundlach has completely reconditioned a 1956 Chevrolet, giving it a 1962 engine. He races it at the Union Grove drag strip and has already won five trophys.

While the boys were learning how to adjust wrecker arms, how to put motors in cars, and check gages, Dokes was also teaching them how to find information on their own.

"I DIDN'T BLUFF THEM," he said. "When they came to me to ask a fact, I'd tell them to check the Auto Repair Manual I tell them not to guess, because nobody can carry all that information around in their heads. Now they go to the book without asking me.

"They forget to put their tools away," he said smiling. "They left a crescent wrench on a fender once. I'm trying to teach them the value of using the right tool in the right place."

A student came up to Dokes and asked the type of tool to be used in a motor overhaul.

"You know what I'm going to tell you," laughed Dokes.

"Improvise, improvise," the student moaned with a big grin on his face.

"That's right," said Dokes. "Plenty of times you may be out on a job without the right tool. If you learn to substitute a part you can fix anything."

TO TEACH craftsmanship, the teacher must have practical experience besides academic knowledge

In addition to his degrees from Tuskeege University and the University of Illinois, Dokes worked in the Chicago Post Office as foreman of the truck department. He also spent three years as an officer in the U. S. Air Force and was discharged as a first lieutenant. He is now working on a master's degree.

Dokes remembered only one unpleasant "incident" during his year at Wheeling.

"We were in class and the fellows started to tell about a fight they had outside school. The way one fellow told it, two guys started fighting and then the others all jumped in yelling, 'get the nigger!'

"The boy who said 'nigger' realized what he was saying and began to blush," Dokes said in a controlled voice.

"I THOUGHT: 'This is it,'" Dokes recalled. "But then I noticed how quiet the class had become. So all I did was ask the boy to stay after class and we went on with the teaching."

After class, Dokes listened while the boy apologized profusely for the remark.

"He said lots of fellows use the word 'nigger,' but it doesn't mean anything. He didn't want me to think he meant to put me down "

Dokes told the boy that in a classroom one should learn to "watch what you say "

"From that time on he watched himself "

Many of Dokes students intend to join the armed services immediately after graduation. Some, like Stan Lipinski, a senior, plan to enroll in an auto repair apprenticeship program and work in shops in this area.

Gundlach, who has worked in gas stations in Wheeling, wants to "get into diesel mechanic."

"THEY DO A GOOD JOB of car repair," Dokes said proudly. "We haven't had a car come back yet."

Dokes' mechanics have worked on their own cars, on teacher's cars, and on the car of Wheeling Principal Thomas Shirley

"We gave the car of Mr. Erickson of the school board a tune-up and it only cost him $7," Dokes said.

Dokes intends to return to Wheeling next year "I see a warming attitude from the students. They smile and say hello. I'm not such a stranger."

Would he like a home near his job at Wheeling?

Dokes has been rebuffed once. He says he might try again if he could be sure living among a white majority would be good for his children.

"I don't want to live where there's hostility," he said.

Meanwhile, Dokes drives 96 miles every day, bringing knowledge to suburban boys who are hungry for what he can teach.

"THEY SAID TO ME: 'I want to learn," said teacher Henry Dokes.

SUBURBAN KIDS have been around cars all their lives. "I told them to get out on the floor and work," said Power Mechanics teacher Henry Dokes.

Tax Guide Now In The Library

The Roselle Public Library has acquired a new service in its business reference section "The Research Institute of America's Tax Guide "

The new tax guide was planned and written with today's taxpayer in mind. Issues are clarified by vivid illustrations and pitfalls are carefully flagged whenever they are present Specific recommendations tell you what to do, when to do it and how to do it

IN SHORT, THE tax guide gives the reader a sharp, understandable answer to business and personal problems affected by taation.

The library staff has been instructed in the use of the Guide and will instruct anyone in the proper use of the reference book

Picker's Fast Hands Don't Feed Family

THEIR HANDS MAY be like lightning, but with onions this size, they can't make more than 30 sacks in an eight-hour day, netting them about $7.50 for the day.

"Looks that man," cries one worker, holding up a tiny white bulb. "The gran' onion." His crew laughs sympathetically, snipping frantically all the while, bringing out whetstones from their pockets to keep the snipping sheers sharp.

And it's not much better in citrus, potatoes, tomatoes and carrots. Too many hands for the job. The job's over in a hurry and there's a mad scramble to find more work.

The hungry do most of the scrambling. Those who can afford not to, don't work between migrations.

Further squeezing the worker are the Mexican national, who works for less, and the machine, which will work for the price of purchase and a man to run it.

There are not supposed to be any Mexican nationals working in the fields. The only Mexican nationals legally allowed to work in the valley are bearers of work permits known as "green cards."

They are for issue only to Mexicans who will be working in occupations where there is a shortage of help. But some of them do wind up in the fields.

"The state department of labor checks on people in the fields," Stolle says, "and if they catch anybody, they deport them."

"THEY LOSE their shapes the minute they start having kids and age faster than we do," say the Valley Anglos of the Mexican-American woman. And the women do their best cosmetically — padded knees in their jeans, sun shawls and gloves to protect face and hands. But generally the poor diet, bearing seven or more children and the constant field work takes its toll and the Anglo myth is reinforced.

WHAT HAPPENS to the man who employs the illegal alien?

"You can't take action against the owner. He can't check up on every person hired to work for him," Stolle says.

U.S. Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minnesota, visited the border crossing between Reynosa, Mexico and Hidalgo, Tex., and claimed the border guards were letting the Mexicans in without much scrutiny of credentials.

While the complete dimensions of the "green carder" problem are not known, Mondale found sympathetic ears among the Mexican Americans in the valley when he declared that lax enforcement of immigration and minimum wage laws threatened to turn the valley into "a permanent depression economy."

But there is no evidence thus far that Sen. Mondale's excursion into migranland will have any appreciable effect, and Stolle explains why.

"You can't make everyone carry a green card who's coming across the border. Some of those people are just shopping for things here they can't get over there.

"JUST AS SURE as somebody does try to enforce it, the merchants start screaming and somebody writes to his congressman and pretty soon it's right back the way it was."

While it is conceivable that the nation could more strictly enforce its immigration laws, it is not conceivable that it could restrict valley farmers from turning to machinery to replace hand work in the fields.

That has already been done in cotton, one of the few crops that offered steady employment to those who tended it. And there is increasing use of machinery in the harvesting of potatoes, onions and other vegetables.

For the small grower, hiring a crew makes more sense than putting big money into an expensive machine that sits idly by most of the year. But for the man who grows or invests in hundreds of acres of a single crop, the machines make very good sense.

AND THE FARMS in the valley keep getting bigger.

The machines keep squeezing and so do the crops. Bruise-resistant vegetables and fruits like the Chico Tomato are being developed that no longer need the gentle touch of the human hand to keep their color for the market place.

Valley agriculture has its own problems. For one thing, it's just not that big. For another, it's a long way to anywhere from there.

South Texas doesn't grow in the volume of California and is farther from markets than central Florida. What it can sell often must be timed for sale so it doesn't hit the marketplace along with California and Florida produce.

WEATHER, TOO, has made things tough in the valley. A freeze in '62 ruined citrus for nearly two years and just as things were recovering in 1967, Hurricane Beulah came rampaging off the gulf, making a mud puddle of the valley and piling up huge crop losses.

So everyone was delighted with the promises of fine yields last winter and the growing was very good. Then, say the growers, the bottom fell out of the market.

The Seasonal Suburbanite

"You can't make a dollar anymore," complains Marvin Schwarz, one of a powerful family of growers from the small valley town of Merceres.

Schwarz is a lean man in his late 30s or early 40s, sun-stained a dark mahogany, temples creased from slitting his eyes against the bright Texas sky, dressed in a blue short-sleeved shirt and the white five-gallon straw hat that is the uniform of valley men.

He leans against the side of a white, late model pickup in the morning sun, watching potato crews working a field.

"Labor's one problem," he says angrily. "They won't work. The newspapers give 'em publicity and they won't work. That's why we're stopped here."

HE POINTS TO figures scurrying in the field behind, halted trucks.

"They won't pick up the potatoes. See all the potatoes on the ground there where the truck went by? Hell, it costs money to put potatoes into the ground."

It may be a good crop year, but it's not a good market year and that makes it a bad year for the farmer.

"Florida's late and we're early. You can't sell more than five acres a day. Hell, we couldn't give 'em away. A bad year? This is one. I don't know one corp, onions, carrots, lettuce where anybody's made a dime."

Some of the farmers may go under this year, he thinks, and adds ominously, "Maybe that's what it'll take."

Acres and acres of onions and potatoes are being disked under, he says, and oranges and grapefruit hang unpicked in the orchards.

SCHWARZ SAYS he's not anxious to put the farm laborers out of work, would rather run crews in for potatoes than use machines. But still he looks for more mechanization, hoping it will lower production costs.

For the grower and the laborer both it's a matter of survival, but the grower has one big edge: he can do without the laborer. If the laborer is shut out of the fields, there is nothing else in the valley for him.

For the migrant at home, the job picture is under-employment at best, unemployment at worst. And the worst is common enough to make welfare recipients the biggest payroll in the valley.

The tight, competitive market faced by valley agriculture makes it unlikely that growers will cease what one expert calls "the scandalous use of the public welfare system to subsidize employers of agricultural labor." Almost surely the farmer will continue to pluck the ample supply of harvest labor from the welfare pool when it is needed in the fields and then drop it back when the job is done.

If farming in the Lower Rio Grande Valley today is unpromising for the grower, it promises the laborer even less.

And tomorrow, for the laborer at least, promises nothing at all.

Rail Group Plans Restoration of Old Depot

The town of Aurora, steeped in rail activity, folklore and history, is now able to lay claim to an organization that deals specifically in these areas of the city's background

The new group, known as the Blackhawk Railway Historical Society, was formed in March and is already involved in its first major project: the restoration of a railroad depot in conjunction with a cosponsor, the Fox River Valley Park District

The district is presently negotiating with the Burlington Railroad for the line's Batavia depot, built almost 120 years ago by the Aurora Branch Railroad. The depot is one of the oldest surviving structures still standing in the area.

PRES. DAVID BRIGGS, Yorkville, explained the reasons for the group's choice of title by saying: "We chose the name 'Blackhawk' for two main reasons. First, it is symbolic of this part of the Prairie State. Blackhawk was a proud Fox Indian chief who spent the greater part of his life hunting and defending the lands of his people near here.

"Secondly, Aurora is the birthplace of the Burlington Railroad and for many years one of the great flyers operated by the "Q" carried the name of this noble fallen warrior."

Briggs also said the society has applied for a charter as the Blackhawk Chapter of the National Railway Historical Society, a nationwide educational organization comprised of other groups with similar goals to those of the Blackhawk Society

IN CONJUNCTION with the depot project being undertaken with the Fox River Valley Park District, the club has issued a plea to Chicago and suburban residents for information about some of Aurora's lesser known rail operations, trolley and interurban lines.

The group is looking for the data as a base for an archives and museum, which will be an integral part of the depot project now under way by the club's cosponsors. The old depot and museum archives will be located at Pioneer Park, a park district development on U.S. Business 30, west of downtown Aurora. The entire park is being developed along a "Gay Nineties" theme.

THE SOCIETY is looking for information on the following lines and operations: Ten railroads, including the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern Railroad Branch; the CM&G Railroad; the steam-operated gravel pit railroad in North Aurora; the CB&Q West Batavia Branch; the Ottawa, Oswego and Fox River Valley Railroad and Chicago, Burlington and Northern Railroad operations prior to their consolidation with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy; the CB&Q Main Line through downtown Aurora, the Chicago, Plainfield, Pekin & Southwestern; the Joliet, Newark & Mendota Railroad; the Chicago and Rock River Railroad; and the Chicago & North Western line from Aurora to Geneva.

Eight trolley and interurban lines, including: The Aurora, Plainfield & Joliet; the Chicago, Aurora & DeKalb, the Aurora, Elgin & Fox River; the Rockford and Interurban Railroad; the Fox and Illinois Union; the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin; the Yorkville Branch of the old Aurora, Elgin and Chicago line; All Aurora Trolly lines

ALSO THE FOLLOWING rail or trolley-related structures in Aurora: Fox River Park; Interurban Terminal Building; first and second city street car barns; old ground-level CB&Q passenger station; the C&NW roundhouse; and the old Chicago, Aurora and DeKalb interurban car barn.

The society is looking for any material, from photographs, books and clippings to railroadiana such as lanterns, marker lamps and the like

"All items loaned or donated to the museum display will be credited to the donor," Briggs said

The club has also begun publication of a newsletter, the "Railhead" and is presently meeting bi-monthly at the LaSalle Street Community Center, 69 S. LaSalle St., Aurora.

THE NEXT SCHEDULED meetings open to the public will be at 7:30 p m Aug 6 and Oct. 1. Memberships are open to qualified applicants.

Other elected officers in the society besides Briggs include Melvern Finzer, Naperville, vice-president; Miss Jan Tomandl, Oak Lawn, secretary, Jerry Appleman, Cicero, treasurer, Robert Campbell, Naperville, membership director, and John Tomandl, Oak Lawn, activities chairman.

Persons wishing to loan or donate items to the museum project or persons interested in membership or additional information are advised to write the society at the following address Blackhawk Railway Historical Society Inc., Box 455, Aurora, Ill, 60507.

The Way We See It

Balance in Housing

Importance of balanced housing in building a sound community is evident in a study recently conducted in a suburban Lake County community, which has implications for Northwest suburban towns as well.

A survey of 5,700 persons by the Crystal Lake Chamber of Commerce indicated they felt the key to the community's development — whether it was to become dependent on another town or grow in a balanced fashion with residential, commercial and industrial facilities — lay in the construction of more low and moderate income housing.

Industries already in the community, the survey indicated, need 530 new employes now and as many as 515 in the next two to five yers. Fourteen companies reported they plan expansion within a year, and 12 report they would expand if there was an improvement in Crystal Lake's labor market.

Attracting and holding commerce is most important to suburban communities. The tax revenue they provide helps build and maintain essential community services.

Providing attractive nearby housing would seem to be an obligation for any community attempting to woo industry. Yet, taking Crystal Lake as an example, many industries are unable to find full labor forces. More than 22 per cent of those working in Crystal Lake would like to live there but do not. The study found 57 per cent of those living elsewhere said the cost of living is less where they presently live and 31 per cent said taxes were more reasonable.

Absence of moderate cost apartments ($126 to $175 monthly rent) and high cost of homes in the community made it particularly hard for industrial workers and teachers.

Elk Horn

Bad Week for School Brd.

by JAMES VESELY

This week has not been an easy one for the members of the Dist. 59 School Board. They accepted the resignation of Supt. Donald Thomas and faced the accumulated wrath of teachers, residents and parents over their action.

A few weeks ago, they were facing the same kind of anger from other groups in the district who were calling for Thomas' dismissal.

CROSSFIRE LIKE THAT is part of the price of public office, good board members realize that sad fact. But if the board members think this week was bad, a few months from now they will probably look back and remember it as a stroll in the park.

Just over the horizon of the summer hiatus is the virtual certainty that Dist. 59 voters will be asked to approve bond referendums in October.

No formal decision has been reached, of course, but this is what local residents may be faced with in the Fall:

—A 21 cent bond referendum for the educational fund.

—A 5-cent increase for building additions.

—A bond issue of unknown amount to establish a hot lunch program in the schools.

IN OTHER WORDS, school Dist. 59 is like every other school district in the suburbs. It must seek higher income from the taxpayers to keep its nose above water.

Jim Vesely

The board of education will be stressing economies in the budget. Citizen groups will be citing examples of poor spending. But Dist. 59 is on the same horse as every other school district. The increasing demands of building costs and salaries are galloping away from present tax levels.

Within the next calendar year, the Dist. 59 board could also see an entirely different composition of board members.

Although the present seven member board is just getting to know each other after the April elections, four of those seats will be up for reelection next April.

TWO MEMBERS WILL be up for reelection through normal attrition of their terms. One board member ran for only a year's term, and a fourth member will transfer out of the district this summer.

The potential of four new members on a seven-member board means a majority vote on the board could be decided in the poll booths of the district.

Next April's election's will probably bring out enough candidates to fill three boards of education.

The turmoil now in the district means that every special interest group, every dissident organization will have a candidate to put before the voters.

Several candidates, in fact, are still left over from the last election.

The candidates who were left standing at the altar two months ago will probably be first in line for the April election next year. Some of those candidates have been faithfully attending each board meeting. The only difference is they sit in the audience and only vote through applause.

BY THE TIME NEXT April rolls around, the Dist. 59 board may have to hire out Soldier's Field to accommodate the crowds.

And that may be a good thing. Despite members of the audience, Dist. 59 is fortunate to have people who care. If the heat is on the school board and the superintendent, that's not such a bad thing either. Their response to questions from the floor is healthy for the schools.

On their side, members of the audience should be wary of jumping on the first bandwagon that comes along. It's a lot of fun jumping on and tooting your horn at the school board, but it's tough to get off and stand alone, and listen.

Is Hube 'Right' for 13th District?

by RICK FRIEDMAN

July 4, 1969 The race for the 13th District congressman grew more competitive today when Mayor John Lindsay of New York City became the 19th announced candidate in an October Republican primary contest that threatens to grow more crowded within the week.

The prize is the congressional seat vacated by Donald Rumsfeld when the Senate confirmed his appointment as head of the Office of Economic Opportunity. "Heck, the prize is getting out of New York City before the summer is over," Lindsay told a crowded press conference at Andy's Cow Palace, Palatine, yesterday.

REMINDED HE wasn't a resident of Illinois, the New York mayor said that if Gov. Nelson Rockefeller could run for

Rick Friedman

Rumsfeld's vacated seat, so could he. Lindsay promised to solve the garbage, subway and taxi cab problems here if elected.

The mayor was referring to an announcement made last week by Rockefeller that after long deliberation he had decided to enter the 13th Congressional race. He was quick to emphasize that he had recently purchased a Levitt house in Buffalo Grove and to deny that the primary was an attempt at a comeback for the 1972 Presidential race.

Both Rockefeller's and Lindsay's announcements have fanned rumors that Ted Kennedy had his eye on the Democratic nomination for the coveted 13th Congressional seat. Kennedy, in the area this morning visiting 14 Migrant labor trailer camps, refused to confirm or deny the rumor.

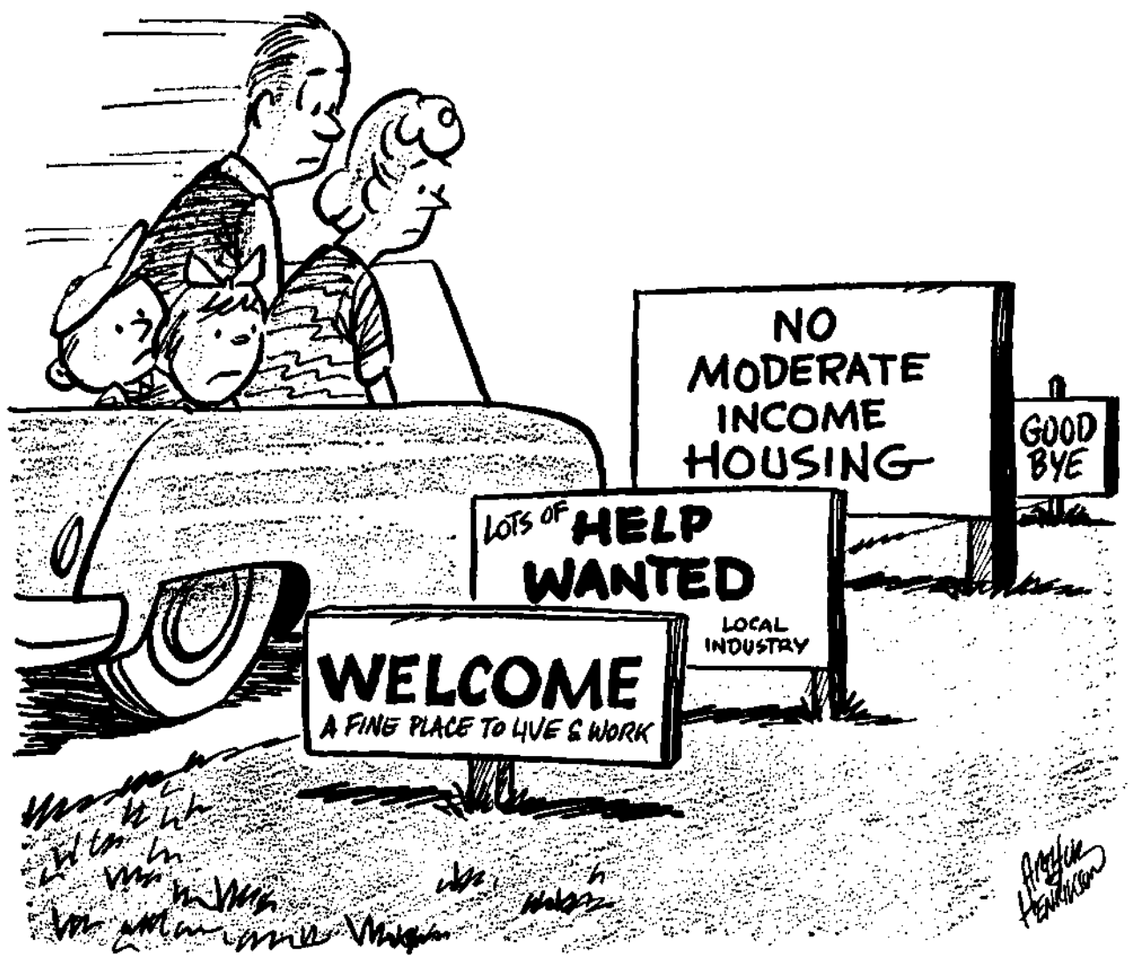
Sid "Cracks" Garfunkle, former major league soccer player and presently curb inspector for Inverness, and Mrs. Gert Brody, a lady bartender from Mount Prospect, have also been rumored as potential candidates as has Mr. Stanley, Elk Grove Village's oldest established hairdresser.

THE ROLLING Meadows public relations firm of Flak and Steamroller has sent out invitations for a Monday announcement at the Vail Tap, Arlington Heights, by Butch Quantrell, a grade school organizer for Students for a Democratic Society.

Also in the race thus far for the Republican nomination are two reporters, a housepainter and a retired restaurant model from Arlington Heights.

Biding their time or simply waiting in line for the "right moment" to announce are a part-time newspaper stuffer looking for full-time work, a professional golfer with a broken arm and a former Democrat, Hubert Humphrey.

Passing Parade



The Political Beat

Will Trip Turn Tide?

by CHARLES HUFNAGEL

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie made the dramatic move this week which is gaining him statewide attention for his taxing and spending program for Illinois. He not only took command of those Republican Party people who were in his camp all the way through the 1968 campaign, he has taken the field where the votes are to convince the Illinois electorate his position is the correct one for the fairness to all taxpayers and the solvency of the state.

But he has taken a further decisive step in a move toward unqualified Illinois GOP leadership. He is telling Illinois taxpayers in air-stops throughout the state that the responsibility now for support of an administrative program adequate for the needs of Illinois rests squarely on the shoulders of the Legislature.

THE GOVERNOR can be expected to be in the thick of it from now on until the Legislature acts. The voters in the legislative constituencies will have the opportunity to hear it like it is straight from the state executive and as their own representatives tell it. This ploy no doubt is being executed with an understanding of the Ogilvie support in various areas of the state in the 1968 elections.

There is still another reason why the governor's making these rounds at this time. He wants to stiffen the backbone of those who road in on his bandwagon so that they will stand firm when the chips are down; and those who see the light but might be led astray when the temptress resorts to the old familiar strain.

The ruts of politics run deep, and it is not always easy, even for those who would be remembered for good works, to climb out when the need to do so is greatest.

BY SHOWING THE FLAG at this opportune time in conspicuous places, the Ogilvie administrative advisers think they can start a tide running in their direction. And once it starts rolling it must take the Legislature along with it.

As part of this grand strategy, the Ogilvie forces have indicated to the Democrats both right and left of center that compromise can be managed. Thus if a tide is starting, the Daley Chicago Democrats and the Stevenson Downstate Democrats want to be out front where the action is.

There's a tug-of-war going on here of which the governor is certainly not unaware, and to get his income tax through the Legislature he must capitalize on it. Chicago area Democrats as much as confirm this when they say that if the Ogilvie taxing and spending program gets through legislative process without too much damage Democratic votes are going to do the job in both houses.

They say the Ogilvie income tax can't pass without Democratic support. Chicago and Downstate Democrats are vying for political advantage which means holding the trump cards. It is obvious that the governor must have some understanding after the Chicago school settlement about the Cook County Democratic vote. But it is also apparent that he is flirting with Stevenson Downstate Democrats as well. Maybe he needs both.

His own party is far from unified. This is probably why he made the decision to take the stump. In populous DuPage County, a leading GOP bastion in the state and nation as well, one state senator is flatly against the income tax (representing the Altorfer forces) and the other has vigorously endorsed it (reflecting the growing strength of GOP moderates who supported Ogilvie).

SO THESE CONDITIONS tell us that the Ogilvie advisers are taking a pragmatic view of the situation. The governor must succeed, else his political career ends. They are angling to get the support from all segments of divided Republican and Democratic parties in Illinois in this critical year when a state treasury is empty and tax money is hard to locate.

The governor has warned, and this is significant, that if his taxing measures are trimmed radically, spending must take the same route. This means that health, education, welfare spending must be reduced drastically in Illinois, near the top as the richest state.

The Republican governor is showing a fresh, new masterful political style. It has its strength and weaknesses. But the belief here is the strength will overcome every weakness. The issue is one of state solvency, a program of state spending that gives priorities to health, education and welfare, and a taxing program that is constitutionally fair to all.

It is a daring challenge to the State of Illinois to accept the facts of a changing society. Will it succeed? The belief here is that Illinois will rise to the occasion.

Event Benefits Whole Town

Roselle's Rose Parade and Festival honoring Gary Steger Sunday deserves the full support of all citizens of the village. As former chairman of sponsoring groups of the Rose Festival and Rose Pageant for the past nine years, it was my privilege to have worked with the Northwest DuPage American Legion Post 1084, the Roselle Chamber of Commerce, the Rosellian Fine Arts Society as well as other supporting organizations and individual backers in past promotions.

The Rose Parade and Festival now promoted as a civic event, rather than an event principally backed by a volunteering and limited number of citizens, should become a permanent outstanding annual community event.

On behalf of the Rosellian Fine Arts Society, I extend the society's appreciation for the cooperation given by organizations, merchants and individual contributors in past promotions of the Rose Festival and Rose Queen pageant. Valuable assistance was also provided by the liberal coverage given by the Roselle Register and other news media, Radio Station WRMN, the Roselle State Bank and Trust Co., Roselle Realty, Roselle Park District, village trustees, for the use of the village hall and for other assistance.

The society also acknowledges its appreciation for the cooperation given by the boards of education of Lake Park Dist. 108, Roselle Dist. 12, and the board of education of Trinity Lutheran School in making ground and building facilities available for the needs of participants in the annual parade.

It is with pardonable pride for this writer to note that successful promotion of the 1969 event is being attained.

Fenton Needs Community Support

Any reasonable and well-informed person will agree that Fenton High School needs increased support from the community. Unfortunately, a great many normally reasonable people seem to be suffering from "tax-itis." Certainly paying taxes is no one's idea of fun, but, let's face it, our schools need help.

A community is measured, among other things, by the quality of its schools. Will we recover from our acute case of "tax-itis" in time to vote favorably on Saturday, June 7?

Marine Chides Homefront

As a marine in Vietnam, I am disgusted at the overwhelming reports I get from home concerning student riots and the lack of moral support behind us men in Vietnam

I read in newspapers and magazines sent from home where the young man can wear the American flag cut and sewn into a shirt and where students can protest against a war they know nothing about. Don't these people realize that we are not fighting only for ourselves and our families but for them also? If only these people could feel what we feel every time we pick up a newspaper or magazine and see people holding signs protesting everything the American fighting man is risking his life for.

IF ONLY THEY could feel the pain when we see the American flag being mutilated and disgraced. So many men have fought and died for that flag, and yet so many people take it for granted. I shudder to think what our forefathers would think of our generation, a generation of which we men over here are becoming so ashamed to be part of.

We wonder if the people who hold a sign or mutilate the American flag would lay their life on the line for this same flag, and the principles for which it stands, just as many men are doing today.

I'll bet that the Communists appreciate what the students today are doing for the American fighting man's morale.

I would appreciate your printing this in your newspaper because I am 18 years old, too young to vote, and I feel this is the best way for me to express my opinion.

Enbysk Finale 'Heartbreaking for Harper'

The recent rash of news concerning the firing of two Harper College teachers and their subsequent suit against the college prompts me to write from several viewpoints. First, as a taxpayer (of a tax bill large enough to pay a year's college expenses,) as the parent of a child entering college this September, ans as a part-time student undergoing belated education at Harper, myself.

When we moved to this area, we were impressed with the organization and management in general of Harper College. We felt they made the best use of available facilities under far from ideal circumstances. We felt the new campus of the school would enhance our area and increase the value of its properties. However, I feel that our junior college district has been done a grave disservice by the summary firing of qualified teachers. (Call it by what euphemism you will, it is still firing.) At a time when colleges are vying for good teachers, and we are in competition with many older, established institutions, we cannot afford to lose those we have attracted, especially those of the calibre of Dr. Betty Enbysk, of whom I write most particularly.

FROM A PERSONAL view, I have had the opportunity to be a student in one of Dr. Enbysk's classes. I took the geology course as a degree obligation, but I learned far more than geology. I learned of total excellence of a teacher, of courage in the face of great stress, and a direct lesson for young students more valuable than any found in a text. At her expense, hundreds of youth have learned that to quit is to deny yourself as a human being. She has earned the respect of every student I have heard speak of her. Yet her troubles are never mentioned in class; the subject is strictly "off limits." Her field is geology, and she imparts it with expertise, enthusiasm, humor and tact. More importantly, she is not a single minded "geologist," but a world person, interested and knowledgeable in many areas.

Knowing Dr. Enbysk for the short time I have, I realize what a rare and (an overworked word, but it fits her — dedicated) teacher Harper has, and is losing. It is a great loss. Such shortsightedness on the part of those responsible defeats many gains the school has made to date.

The headlines a recent Herald sport section read "Heartbreaking Finale — Harper Loses," and the subject is a baseball game. It will suffice for the tizle of this letter as well.

Kids, Teachers Get Brunt

As a Fenton High School teacher, and one whom you encouraged to "eat my heart out," I have watched with considerable interest your coverage of our negotiation progress this year. I would like to express some of my views.

First, it was interesting to note your article last week on the effect of curtailments. Absent, of course, was the comment from both the classroom teacher and from the students themselves. These are the two groups that will really get the brunt of the curtailments, yet you neglected to get their reactions.

Also, your coverage of the Lake Park negotiations, and the implied parallels, were very slanted. Not only did you unfairly not report all the facts, but also you neglected to note that Lake Park has the worst reputation, among teachers, of all schools in the county. It also has the dubious honor of having the largest percentage of teacher turnover, year after year.

Third, an especial thanks to Pat Hensel. She has been fair, and has given support and encouragement. She has been open to both sides of all situations.

Further, I would like to comment on the teaching profession itself.

FEW TEACHERS are perfect. Nor am I the world's best teacher — just ask my students, or the principal. But I try to do right by them, and if it were not for the students, I think I would have quit the profession some time ago. There are other employment opportunities that offer as much security and remuneration

I enjoy summer vacation but usually work. I work as a union carpenter, a job which does not require my BA, MA, post-graduate work and years of experience Ironically, with all this education, I work beside men who never finished eighth grade, yet make more money per annum than I do, even with my summer supplement. Let no one kid you: the wages of other jobs have risen every bit as fast as teaching, and I know from my own experience that I could easily equal my teaching wages with another job. The fallacy that ultimately teachers will "catch up" is absurd. Is it any wonder so many teachers turn to other occupations?

At Fenton, I teach honor seniors Recently I told them that I cannot in all good conscience fully recommend that they become teachers. How can I? The majority of society is against teachers many parents, newspapers, TV, our own good Senater Kneupfer, the students themselves, for example. In addition, to strive for gains often means alienating even others of the same profession. Teachers are often accused of all sorts of things, even by those who are supposed to be their colleagues

A COUPLE YEARS ago, a Fenton teacher made the statement that "teachers are just public servants." I am often inclined to believe this. People criticize education for any and everything; because teachers are teachers, they must be criticized. Teachers are, ultimately, at the whim and fancy of society. Paradoxically, that same society demands excellence in education but is unwilling to support the schools in achieving it Fenton High School is a very good school, one of the best in the area, and the residents of its community should be aware of this I, and the other teachers at the school, I am sure, would really like to know, just once, that someone or something is behind us in our efforts to achieve excellence. It would make teaching a lot easier, much more effective, and benefit all in the long run.

Edwardian and Regency Clothes

Fashions Influenced by Kings

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—Marina Chicca came bouncing into the office the other day waving a sheaf of documents from the New York Public Library.

"Regency collars are the ones that stand up and Edwardian are the ones that lie flat," she said.

Miss Chicca, who might be described as a living doll, works for the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear (AIMBW) and had been to the library to bone up on two eras of British history which have produced concurrently a rage for "Edwardian" and "Regency" clothes.

Many people have been confused by the terms, and so have the manufacturers who are likely to sew six or eight buttons on a double breasted suit and call it "Edwardian" when more accurately the suit might be called a throwback to the 1920 jazz era.

REGENCY WAS that strange period in British history between 1811 and 1820 when King George II (he lost the American colonies) went off his rocker and George, the Prince of Wales, ruled as regent until he became George IV.

Edwardian, technically would be the period between 1901 and 1910 when Edward VII was on the throne of Britain. But the era began several years before that in the Gay 90's when Edward as Prince of Wales, invented what we now call high living.

George IV, according to Miss Chicca, wasn't much on politics or government, but he was a very fashion-conscious gent, thanks largely to his close friend, George Brummell, Esq., who was better known, of course, as Beau Brummell.

Beau Brummell, who spent a couple of hours a day bathing (other men of the era relied on perfume) and at least that much time tying his cravat, initiated many of the styles that are now being modified for today's market.

THE REGENCY period gave us the high-collared, multi-button, wide lapel jacket. Collars in Beau's day were high-standing, almost like a horse collar and usually tapered into V notches. So if you see a high standing collar you can safely call it Regency.

Well, unless it is Napoleonic, which was roughly the same era. Some versions of this trimmed and rolled collar are called Napoleonic when it is combined with the belted waist and epaulettes, the big new trend in rainwear. The same Napoleonic influence is seen in various topcoats and don't be confused if someone calls it a coachman's collar—it is the same thing.

Edward VII came along 75 years later, a fashion-conscious swinger who ruled in a court of opulence and pageantry.

Edward was, to put it mildly, portly, and he chose to correct his figure faults through fashion rather than diet. He wore long, fitted jackets with inverted pleats to give himself a leaner, trimmer look, and a fashion which is now called Edwardian.

THE SILHOUETTE IS this. A pronounced shaping at the waist, flared skirts on the jacket, a longer jacket and bigger arm holes. And the collars be flat, not at all like the high-standing Regency ones. It reflects the fastidiousness of the elegant Edward who was known to change suits as many as 12 times a day.

Because of the Edwardian elegance, many modern designers go to his era for inspiration. Current evening wear, for example, uses such opulent fabrics as velvets and furs. There are deep, rich colors including emerald green, royal blue and ruby red in dinner jackets.

Shiny buttons and gold braiding, all part of the past glitter, are frequently used as trimmings. And, as in the Edwardian Era, they were accessoried with fancy shirts— ruffled and laced and embroidered.

Edward also influenced the line of the trousers. They were more like ski pants back in the days of King George but Edward installed a front and back crease. He rolled up his pants to protect himself from the London mud but failed there—cuffs didn't become popular until later.

So, as Miss Chicca put it, the well dressed man can now wear what was indeed once considered fashions fit for a king.

THE REGENCY SUIT, according to the AIMBW. In the adjoining article fashion writer Walter Logan explains the difference between Regency and Edwardian styles in menswear.

IT HAS A HIGH collar, but the Men's and Boys' Wear Institute says this stlye is Edwardian.

EDWARDIAN STYLE for evening wear, this time with flat collar, six buttons, square pockets. It's complemented by the newest evening accessory, a large, floppy velvet tie.

Health Care Changes Forecast in '70s

With the dwindling supply of doctors and the increasing demand for health services, there are soon going to be some changes in the way these services are performed, according to a Yale University medical authority.

Dr. Sidney Licht, past president of the American College of Rehabilitation and curator of the physical medicine collection at Yale's medical library, predicts that an entire team of medical subprofessionals will have to be trained by the 1970's.

Whether they are called clinical assistants, assistant physicians or feldschers, as the Russians label them, Dr. Licht says these subprofessionals will be badly needed as there already are 5,000 American communities without a physician.

Most of the new assistant physicians will come from the ranks of physical therapists, he believes.

"TRADITION IS soon to go by the boards. Physical therapists in the next decade will not only practice their own discipline but will diagnose and prescribe within the law."

Dr. Licht also predicts more group practice in the 1970's with more patients treated in hospitals, outpatient departments and clinics rather than at home.

He foresees a dramatic growth in the number of extended health care facilities.

"These institutions relieve the general hospitals of much convalescent care and many chronically ill patients. They will continue to proliferate because they offer a needed service not generally available 10 years ago."

One problem such facilities will face eventually, he says, is competition with general hospitals for many types of trained medical personnel.

HE OFFERS AS one solution in-service-training of subprofessionals that would permit them to perform some duties previously delegated only to professionals. The best source, in his opinion, would be from the ranks of nurses' and therapists' aids within the facility.

The Yale physical predicts that closed circuit television will be utilized to relieve the medical manpower shortage. TV will be used in hospitals to teach not only personnel but also patients how to perform certain active therapeutic procedures. Data processing machines will be used to check patients' progress through certain elements of their treatment, he says.

"THIS SOUNDS YUMMY," agree David and Lauri Monday as Mrs. Richard Monday of Wood Dale shows them the meat and dessert cookbooks compiled by Kappa Kappa Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, featuring favorite recipes of the sorority members throughout the world. They will be sold Saturday from 9 to 5 at the Jewel-Osco Store at Georgetown Square.

Plan Ahead; Enjoy That Motor Trip

Whether your vacation will be short, long or taken in a series of weekends, give yourself plenty of time to plan ahead, says the Chicago Motor Club-AAA.

Anticipation and planning constitute much of the pleasure of a vacation trip. And with everything in order before you start, you can travel with the assurance that you are ready for almost anything that might happen along the way.

Time and money are to be considered, fo course, and it is well to budget both.

On a motor trip, the motor club estimates that two people can travel comfortably on a daily budget of $39.50 for necessity spending. This figure is based on 300 miles of daily travel, with the car averaging 15 miles per gallon of gasoline. It includes cost of meals, lodging, gas and oil, tips and miscellaneous. There also will be expenditures for souvenirs, amusements and such.

GENERALLY, COMFORTABLE mile age on long trips is about 2,100 miles a week, depending on how much sightseeing you do and what kind of roads you travel.

Here is a list of items prepared by the motor club's touring department for you to consider when planning your vacation:

Personal items — travel clothes, dinner clothes, sports equipment, beach accessories, fishing license, medication, camera and film, needle and thread, credit cards, travelers checks, motor club credentials, valid driver's license, sun glasses, field glasses, travel iron.

For the glove compartment — first aid kit, tissues, insect spray, maps, flashlight and batteries, evidence of car insurance, evidence of car registration.

Before you leave — give itinerary, license number and car description to a friend; stop deliveries of milk and newspapers; provide for mail; arrange for care of lawn and pets; lock doors and windows, leaving shades partly up; purchase baggage and trip insurance.

FOR THE CAR — adjust headlights; check brakes check all lights; check tires and spare; inspect radiator; check oil and lubrication; fill battery; check wipers, alignment, steering, air cleaner and oil filter; provide litter bag; make sure you have a duplicate set of keys.

For the trunk — coveralls; jack, tools and flares; spare tire and fan belt.

For the children — games, washcloth, towel, light snacks, Thermos, pillow and blankets, writing material, baby needs.

In planning your trip, select a route that includes what you want to see and still lets you arrive on time at your destination. It is helpful to plot your course on a map and to mark unfamiliar exit and entrance ramps on expressways and smaller two-lane routes you plan to use.

BEFORE LEAVING, have your car serviced by your regular mechanic. It is better to have this done by a man who knows your car than to take a chance on having repairs made on the road.

Finally, here are some "don'ts." Don't overload the trunk; don't overload a car-top carrier; don't leave cameras, sporting equipment or anything else of value in open sight in the car; and don't leave your car parked without locking the ignition and all doors.

A Tribute to Her Dad

His Legacy Was Character

By BILLIE BACHHUBER

A man can become many things. He may attain fame, prestige, power and wealth. Or he earn love, worth and influence. Some do this in one way, some in others. There are tycoons, political leaders, teachers, ministers and priests, newspaper and magazine editors and columnists, great reformers, medical men and many others who are honorable men.

Not every man is a father. Few men are perfect fathers. But the ones who succeed in being just good fathers may, after all, be among the most influential and important men in the world.

My father was not perfect. He was too strict and sometimes lacked a sense of humor. But he expected nothing from his children he wouldn't honor himself.

Imaginative, he was not a good businessman. As have many other men in free enterprise, Dad once formed a small business around what could have been a successful invention. He thought every man was as just and honest as he was, and he lost his shirt.

THOSE WHO bought shares in Dad's company knew they were speculating. It isn't easy to lose money even in a "fair" gamble, but it is accepted as part of the "game." However, my father didn't play "games." He had taken money from his friends and gave them nothing in return. Though the failure of his business venture was the fault of others, he, through many years of hard work and sacrifice, returned every penny.

This is not the way fortunes are built. There were no sports cars nor swimming pools in our family. And if we wanted anything "foolish" badly enough to gripe about it, we were given the best "handout" available in Depression years: good advice. "You are strong and healthy, go out and earn it!"

No, my Dad didn't leave his children a large legacy when he died. He left us something far more valuable, something that could be lost in a materialistic society. My dad left behind what every good father can leave: character.

Dinner Honors Golden Wedding Date

When you've lived in Bensenville all your life, it's easy to make up a guest list of 200 friends and relatives for your golden wedding celebration, an event recently hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Geils of 180 S. York Road. They were married May 9, 1919 on the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. Geils' parents in their Bensenville home.

He was born there 75 years ago, and his wife, the former Alva Mackeben, now 74, came to this area from Fairmont, Minn., as a young woman. She arrived to visit a sister and stayed to make Bensenville her home.

Owners of Geils Funeral Home at the York Road address, Leonard and Alva have lived a good life in Bensenville and have been active in all aspects of the community.

LEONARD ATTENDED a grade school on Green Street (no longer standing), studied at Chicago Business College and finally at Worsham College where he learned the undertaking profession. They met at a local social event but didn't marry until Leonard came home from World War I.

A newlyweds they lived on Center Street while Leonard conducted funeral arrangements in private homes, as was the custom in those days. He built the present mortuary in 1930, with the family's living quarters upstairs.

The couple have devoted their lives to the business and to rearing two children: John and Audrey, who is now Mrs. Chester Anderson of Itasca. John has taken over management of the funeral home in the past 10 years, but his father still helps with the busy schedule.

"THE FUNERAL home meant being available 24 hours a day," recalls Mrs. Geils. "So now we are enjoying semi-retirement. We have traveled all over the United States and have been to Hawaii twice, mostly taking vacations in the winter."

The anniversary pair are still in the midst of a busy family life and keep young at heart with the companionship of a granddaughter, Linda Riley. Linda came to live with them when her mother, the former Audrey Geils, became widowed. Audrey later married Chester Anderson and presented Mr. and Mrs. Geils with another granddaughter, Andrea.

The Andersons are following a family tradition — living upstairs of the Geils Funeral Home at 125 Orchard, Itasca. This second operation is 13 years old and uses rented facilities.

John Geils, his wife Blanche, and their two sons, John Charles and James, live near the Bensenville funeral home.

THE 50th anniversary dinner was held at Indian Lakes Country Club May 9 and brought together many relatives and old friends. Mrs. Geils' sisters who attended were Mrs. Meta Kruger of St. James, Minn. and Mrs. Minnie Robertson of Bensenville, also her twin brothers, Alfred Mackeben of Fairmont and Fred Mackeben of River Grove.

Mr. Geils' sisters, Mrs. Arthur Doerr of Bensenville and Mrs. Wes Magnuson of Elkhorn, Wis., were also among the guests.

Out-of-state friends included former Bensenville resident — the John Spanleys and Reed Moschells of Sarasota, Fla., Mrs. Margaret Franzen of Benson, Ariz., the Arthur Neills of Clearwater, Fla., the Walter Laumanns of Elkhorn, and Mr. and Mrs. Archie Morsch of Hinckley, Ill. Mr. Geils and Mr. Morsch were World War I buddies.

MR. AND MRS. LEONARD GEILS

THE REV. WARREN Seyfert of Peace United Church of Christ gave the dinner blessing, and Mrs. Lynn Corkill read a review of the couple's 50 years together.

Mentioned were Mr. Geils' membership in the Masons, Eastern Star and on the charter roll of the local Lions Club. Mrs. Geils is also in the Star, in Royal Neighbors, Peace Church Guild and in the 30-year-old Silent Club, a group of women who meet regularly for cards and conversation.

Bride Joan Solon Moves East

King of Prussia, Pa., is the new home of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Bergquist who were married May 17 in Our Lady of the Wayside Church, Arlington Heights. The bride is the former Joan Marie Solon, daughter of Mrs. John J. Solon, 614 S. Mitchell Ave., and the late Mr. Solon. The groom's parents are the R. N. Bergquists of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

The bridegroom is an assistant professor of American history at Villanova University. He took his bride on a honeymoon in Mexico before going east to live.

After the 11 o'clock Mass in Our Lady of the Wayside, the newlyweds were honored at a breakfast at the Round Table of Arlington Carousel Restaurant by 100 guests.

Mrs. and Mrs. James Bergquist

GIVEN IN MARRIAGE by her brother, Lt. James D. Solon, USN, of Honolulu, the bride wore an ivory peau de soie gown with an ivory peau d'ange lace bodice, empire styled. She wore a matching lace mantilla over her blond hair and a pearl and diamond lavaliere was a keepsake of her grandmother.

White roses, stephanotis and baby's breath combined with ivy, made up her bouquet.

The bride had just one attendant, Sheila Naughton of Crystal Lake. As maid of honor, she wore yellow linen and carried yellow tulips, white daisies and ivy.

BEST MAN FOR the double ring rites was the groom's brother, Gordon Bergquist of Omaha. Patrick D. Solon, brother of the bride, and William Selmier of Hudson, Ohio, seated the guests.

Until her marriage, the bride was assistant editor in French for Scott, Foresman & Co., educational publishers in Glenview. She is a graduate of Arlington High School and the College of St. Teresa in Winona, Minn., then earning her master's degree in French from Middlebury College, Vermont. She also studied at Laval University, Quebec, and the University of Besancon and the University of Paris in France.

The groom is a Notre Dame University graduate and has his master's and doctorate in history from Northwestern University.

DAR Flag Day Lunch, Thurs.

The annual Flag Day Luncheon sponsored by Eli Skinner chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will be held at 12:15 Thursday, June 12, at the Sweden House in Arlington Heights. Mrs. L. S. Harmer, chaplain, will give the invocation and Mrs. H. W. Post will be honored by the chapter for her past years as regent of the chapter. Mrs. Raymond Thomas, regent, will present Mrs. Post with her past regent's pin.

A program, "The Untold Story of Our Flag," will be presented by Mrs. Allan Schoeld, program chairman.

Mrs. Thomas has appointed the following committee chairmen: Children of the American Revolution, Mrs. John Bowen; conservation, Mrs. David Hanna; DAR Magazine, Mrs. Maurice Garland; DAR Schools, Mrs. L. S. Harmer; genealogical records and lineage, Mrs. John Peters; good citizens, Mrs. E. H. Loughrin Jr.; good citizens, Mrs. E. H. Loughrin Jr.; hospitality, Mrs. John V. Alternates will be Mrs. Robert Moeller, Elk Grove, and Mrs. K. M. Brown, Arlington Heights.

Seventy members of the Arlington branch are expected to attend the meetings in place of a spring banquet for the local women. They will attend a regional dinner June 17 during the convention.

Luncheon, Bake Sale

The Ladies Aid of Immanuel Lutheran Church, Palatine, has scheduled its annual spring luncheon and bake sale for Thursday June 19. The affair will be held in the school cafeteria, Plum Grove and Lincoln. Lunch will be served at noon.

Fun Food for Kids

Batter-dipped dogs are fun for youngsters. Combine 1 cup of pancake mix, 1 tablespoon of sugar and ¾ cup of milk. Beat with a rotary beater about 2 minutes or until smooth. Dip 12 wieners into batter; drain and fry in preheated 375-degree deep fat about 2 minutes or until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve with catsup, mustard and all the trimmings. Makes 6 servings.

Get Rid of Mold

If bacon develops a slight mold while in the refrigerator, wipe it with a clean cloth dabbed in vinegar.

BLACK-TIE DINNER co-chairman Robert E. Soukup of Roselle arrives at Stevens Restaurant with Mrs. Soukup for the annual benefit dinner.

DR. AND MRS. GUS Ormbrek of Roselle were among guests at recent benefit dinner sposored by the board of governors of Memorial Hospital.

Benefit Nets $10,000 for Hospital

When all donations have been tallied, it is expected that Memorial Hospital, Elmhurst, will realize at least $10,000 from the May 20 benefit dinner sponsored by the board of governors of the hospital. At $50 a couple, the dinner was a sell-out Underwriting the entire evening was Chriss Stevens, owner of Stevens Steak House in Elmhurst, where the benefit was held.

Gathered in the Grecian room of the restaurant, the formally-clad guests sipped champagne and dined on shrimp neptune, onion soup cronus, broiled prime filet mignon Diana, baked potato promotheus and asparagus demeter.

TOASTMASTER for the evening was the Rev. Ernest H. Huntzinger Jr., ministerial representative on the hospital board, who introduced comedian and television personality Charlie Manna to provide the late evening entertainment.

A. Raymond Ewer, chairman of the Board of Governors, paid special recognition during a short program preceding the entertainment to Mrs. Wendell Borngraber, R.N., of Elmhurst, Memorial Hospital's Employee of the Year, and also to Stevens for his role as founder and benefactor of the dinner through its three-year history.

Robert E. Soukup of Roselle served with Stevens as co-chairman of planning arrangements for the annual event.

Family Band To Perform

For their first money-raising endeavor, the recently formed Arlington Heights Junorettes will sponsor a performance by the Farr Family Band Billed as Pennsylvania's first musical family and America's youngest recording family of singers and instrumentalists, the band will appear at 7 30 p m Sunday June 15, in Bristol Theater of Arlington High School.

Float Earns Top Honors for Club

Many hours of hard work paid off for members of Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club and their husbands when the club's Memorial Day float won a trophy for the third consecutive year.

The float, the club's ninth annual entry, was a replica of the United States decorated in red, white and blue and carrying the gold star that represents servicemen killed in action Theme of the entry was "Our Fallen Heroes"

Mrs Walter Sergot, president of the Juniors has announced that the trophy will be on display in the Rolling Meadows Library.

Representatives of the club were also present for the formal dedication of the village's new city hall which followed the Memorial Day services and the presentation of the American Legion traveling trophy award

The Potting Shed

by MARY B. GOOD

As little as an hour a week, or less, can bring you beautiful roses all season long "Tell me another," you say?

Contary to the prima donna image of today's roses, these garden glories are a cinch to grow. Garden research experts have gone so far as to lay out a simplified, six-step program for preening roses.

1. Nip failure in the bud by buying quality rose bushes to begin with

2. Plant the bushes carefully. Allow three to four feet spacing between bushes and plant in promising soil with good drainage. (A good planting mix will help insure both). Roses are sun-lovers, thriving on at least six hours of sunlight each day, and hopefully, not too much wind

3. WATER THOROUGHLY and consistently, probably a deep, once-a-week watering.

4. Feed your roses once during May, once in June. (You might try combination fertilizer-systemic insecticide)

5. Spry againt fungus.

6. Prune the bushes early in the season, back to green wood. (A clean, slanting cut made just above a vigorous bud, slanting in the same direction as the bud.)

A FEW ROSE tips:

Sharp pruning shears are essential. Dull blades make jagged cuts, causing bruises and making for easy access by fungi and bacteria. As a precaution against these buggers, treat end of stem with tree-wound pint.

How much fertilizer to use? About three tablespoons per plant of a 5-10-5 powder-type fertilizer is ample for average soils, four tablespoons for poor soils; two tablespoons for high fertility soils. Wet the soil after working in the fertilizer, but don't wet the foliage, as fertilizer coming in contact with wet leaves may cause severe burning.

Mix a very weak solution of Fertil-aid or fish emulsion the sprinkling can every other week or so, but avoid any kind of fertilizing whatsoever during July and August (Plants find it hard to recover from chemical shock during hot spells) Also feeding in late August encourages succulent fall growth, so susceptible to winter injury

Prune off suckers growing from below the graft These branches, allowed to develop unchecked,sap strength from plant

PINCH OFF spent blossoms, but avoid cutting leaf buds (they make for more flower production) In any event, don't allow roses to form hips (seed pods)

The best time to water your roses is in the morning. (Wet foliage at night invites fungus attack)

Roses benefit greatly from a summer mulch of pecan hulls, cocoa beans, sawdust, and rose cones or dirt-filled collars for winter protection.

By the way, consulting rosarians from the area will be offering advice on growing and showing at their local shows this and next weekend. Sunday District 2 (DuPage) is showing at Yorktown Shopping Center in Lombard from 1:30 to 7 p m Next Sunday (June 15) District 1 (Cook) has its rose show at Allstate Insurance corporate offices, 7670 Frontage Road, Skokie, from 2 to 7 p m

Like parades? The Roselle Rose Parade (live and artificial) steps off Sunday at 1 30 p.m. from the corner of Rush and Bryn Mawr continuing down Rush Street.

Home Sewing Costs

On the average, the home seamstress pays 68 cents for a pattern and between $1.75 and $2 a yard for fabric, although she can pay as much as $5 for a pattern and over $10 per yard for some special fabrics.

Palatine Posies Set Installation

Mrs. Samuel LaSusa, president of the Palatine Community Council, will install new officers next Wednesday for Palatine Posies Garden Club. The ceremony will take place in Mrs. Harold Kiser's home, and afterwards the group will go to Plentywood Farm, Bensenville, for lunch.

Mrs. Len Murrans will be installed as president; Mrs. Kiser, first vice president; Mrs. Chick Butler, second vice president; Mrs. Norman Nichols, secretary; and Mrs. Jack Tichner, treasurer.

Karen Niedwick Weds May 17

Spring was in the air on the afternoon of May 17 when Miss Karen Niedwick was married to Kevin James Lynch in First Methodist Church of Palatine.

The bride, daughter of the Robert F. Niedwicks of Palatine, and the groom, son of Allen Drews of North Weymouth, Mass., exchnaged vows at 4 o'clock in a double ring ceremony performed by Rev. C. Albert Chamberlin.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor-length empire gown of antique white satin with appliques of Alencon lace and handsewn seed pearls. Her waist-length veil was held in place with a sunburst crown of pearls.

Karen's maid of honor was Miss Alice Kelsey of Chicago, and bridesmaids were her cousin, Miss MariKay Paul of Chicago and her sister Miss Linda Niedwick. Their floor-length empire gowns were of delphinium blue featuring white-laced bodices and long sleeves. Lime green satin sashes and bows also accented the gowns.

BEST MEN WAS James Ellis Little of Springfield, Va., and ushers were John Betinis and Jerry Krause, both of Chicago. Alan Little served as acolyte.

The reception was held at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel where 125 guests toasted the newlyweds at a champagne dinner. Mrs. Niedwick received in a delphinium blue sheath with matching coat and a corsage of white tea roses. Mrs. Drew chose a dress of deep lime green with matching lace coat. Her corsage was also of white tea roses.

The newlyweds motored to Alexandria, Va., where the groom is employed with a real estate firm. The bride, a graduate of Palatine High School, attended Carthage College and was employed by United States Land Corp. in Rosemont where she met her bridegroom.

Countryside Art Gallery Makes Big Decisions

The big event has taken place at Countryside Art Gallery, 407 N Vail Arlington Heights The jurying for selection of the coming year's exhibitors was carried out

Presiding over the difficult elimination process were Dennis Stone, critic and editor of Art Scene Magazine, and Roland Ginzel, prominent Chicago artist currently exhibiting at Chicago's Art Institute In addition to winning the Walter M Campana prize at the Chicago Art Institute vicinity show this year, Ginzel has the further distinction of being one of the few people from the show invited to bring in more work

Examining the entries, Stone and Ginzel looked for professionalism whenever possible, and consistency of approach within a particular media This consistency, explained the judges, is a good indication that the artist has matured past the experimental stages and found what he wanted

The two jurors also kept an eye open for freshness and originality of approach, as opposed to cliches or imitative works.

WHAT IS IT about a picture that clicks in the experienced eye? According to Ginzel, it's the harmony, the rapport between concept and craftsmanship, between the image and the execution of that image

The judges were not at a loss in finding works of that caliber among the Countryside entries. Commented Mr Ginzel, "I wouldn't mind having some of these things "

"There's some good work here that's aware and contemporary without being imitative," added Stone

Particularly interesting to the judges were the painting techniques, some of which they found to be superior.

Countryside exhibitors are rejuried each year. And according to Bettie Edwards, chairman of the Gallery Board, and Judy Spitzer, jury chairman, approximately six artists have been reaccepted year after year

With the current jurying project off their minds, Countryside artists are anticipating visitors to their newest exhibit, "Art in Miniature," which will be open today (Friday), through July 18

AFTER THE TENSE excitement of jurying was over Gallery chairman Bettie Edwards took a breather to look over the selections made by jurors Dennis Stone and Roland Ginzel.

'Winning' Teams Speed and Romance

Spine tingling automobile racing action combined with a tender love story that develops into a sizzling romantic triangle is currently showing at the Catlow Theatre

In putting the spectacle on the screen director James Goldstone led the company of actors and technicians through months of location shooting at Elkhart Lake in Wisconsin, Indianapolis, Ind , and Riverside and Santa Monica in California He faced and overcame the mechanical problems of filming at speeds up to 200 miles an hour, he directed crowds of more than 20,000 and cars that were more temperamental than people, and he had his two stars driving those racers wheel-to-wheel with professional race drivers And through it all Goldstone held together the intimacy of the character relationships

FOR PAUL NEWMAN, the leading role was made to order since he is a man who loves speed who drives motorcycles fast sports cars and who flew Navy torpedo planes In the portrayal for 'Winning' he has been chasing the wind for 18 years from the driver's seat of anything on wheels He is a brilliantly fierce competitor who loves speed only a shade less than he loves winning

A four-time Oscar nominee, Newman prepared for the role with a concentrated instruction course at Bob Bondurant's High Performance Driving School at Riverside and worked many hours under the tutelage of two-time Indy 500 winner Rodger Ward

Joanne Woodward is herself an Academy Award winner for best actress in "The Three Faces of Eve" in 1957, and is, of course, Newman's wife

The picture is recommended for mature audiences.

Board Confronted With Suit on 'Hazy Zoning'

This week the members of the DuPage County Board find themselves confronted with a mandamus suit about what appears to be some hazy zoning restrictions.

Mandamus summons were served Monday morning on every member of the board, individually. The return date is June 12, 1969, and the summons reads:

"If you do not appear according to the command of this writ, judgment may be entered against you by default and o peremptory writ of mandamus allowed."

THE PROPERTY in this zoning dispute is near the corner of 63rd and Cass Avenue in Downers Grove Township. The petitioners are Finitzo Brothers, Inc. and others. There is considerable acreage.

Gordon Greenbaum & Browne, 33 N. LaSalle, Chicago, represent the petitioners.

In 1966 the petitioners sought a special use permit to erect multi-family dwellings. The county's response, it appears, was less than hasty so they went to court seeking a change in the zoning and asking for a declaratory judgment which would define the zoning situation.

This case had been pending all this time, so a spokesman for Gordon, Greenbaum and Browne says, the legal firm not knowing that on Sept. 27, 1966, the DuPage County Board voted favorably on their request for a special use permit.

According to their petition on June 17, 1966, the county board adopted and approved an ordinance on recommendation of the zoning board of appeals which ordained that "a special use permit be granted permitting the construction and operation of multiple-family dwellings."

Charles Hufnagel

BUT ON JULY 12, according to the petition, the board moved to "reconsider" and referred the matter back to the zoning committee, LeRoy James, chairman.

On Sept 27, the county board on the recommendation of the zoning committee amended the ordinance adopted June 27 as follows: "to limit the number of three bedroom or more units to NOT MORE THAN 5 per acre," so says the petition.

Thus the petition says the ordinance adopted by the board on June 27, 1966, and amended Sept. 27, 1966 "has been at all times since its adoption, approval and amendment, and now is in full force and effect."

But the Chicago law firm seeking a use permit for the petitioner claims it did not learn until May 2, 1969, in a reply from Robert Stuart, director DuPage County zoning department, that "It appears that the subject property is zoned for single-family residence purposes; thus your request to this department is hereby denied."

THIS SHOOK UP Gordon, Greenbaum and Browne who immediately went to work. Here is the issue, the crux of the case, they say. What official action did the county board take after Sept. 27, 1966? A spokesman for the firm says they have combed the county board proceedings since then and have found nothing to change the board action of Sept. 27, 1966.

The DuPage County zoning director said, "The whole thing is confusing, and I believe the original ordinance is still in effect." This would mean that the action cited, by the board Sept. 27, was of no force and effect.

LeRoy James, chairman of the zoning committee, said the matter took place so far back that he was not clear on the details. Edward Van De Houten, assistant state's attorney assigned to zoning could not be reached for comment.

The Chicago legal firm which had initiated a suit to change the DuPage County zoning ordinance and was seeking a declaratory judgment had this suit pending over many months. They had never been advised, an attorney said, of the amendment they say the minutes of Sept. 27, 1966 show the county board passed favorable to their request. They dropped the suit at once.

ON THE BASIS of the allegations in the petition for mandamus and the contention of the complainant attorneys that there is nothing in the minutes to indicate a change from the amendment providing multiple dwellings to single-family dwellings since Sept. 27, 1966 raise points of what constitutes official acts.

The DuPage County zoning director makes the point that the minutes of the proceedings are not clear. He says the state's attorney opinion is that the subject property is not now zoned for multiple-family dwellings.

He further says the petitioners claim that the ordinance adopted allows this special use. They base their claim, he says, on the official board records.

According to Stuart, the minutes are hazy, and it's their interpretation that is causing the trouble.

"They believe," he says, "that the zoning ordinance gives them the right to go ahead with their project; conversely, the board's advice says they haven't."

Therefore the mandamus. The court will have to decide the precise meaning of official proceedings on and after June 17, 1966.

Holy Family Sets Service Records

New records of service were set last year at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines according to a report issued recently by the hospital.

The report showed that the pathology department averaged 15,921 tests per month, a 32 per cent increase over 1967.

X-ray department tests given to hospital patients and out-patients increased 9 per cent and totaled 33,238. Prescriptions filled for patients also showed a 9 per cent increase to total 176,905.

DURING THE YEAR, the hospital admitted 8,300 patients who stayed an average of 8.1 days. In addition, 1,218 babies were born at Holy Family during the year.

The largest number of patients from one area numbered 2,057 and came from Des Plaines. Mount Prospect residents were second with a total of 1,803 and Arlington Heights residents were third with 835.

Other surrounding communities and their patient totals are Bensenville, 89; Elk Grove Village, 122; Prospect Heights, 322; Hoffman Estates, 84; Wheeling, 467; Palatine, 382, and Rolling Meadows, 164.

The hospital laundry processed 1,036,800 pounds or 518 tons of linen during the year.

Traffic Tickets Up During May

The month of May saw an increase of 11 in the number of traffic citations issued by Itasca police over the previous month's total.

A total of 144 tickets were issued with 116 of them for moving violations. Two were issued for driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. The remaining 26 were given for nonmoving offenses.

OTHER POLICE action involved investigation of 12 accidents, a decrease of five from the previous month. Burglaries totaled only one reported. Three incidents of vandalism were reported.

Five thefts were reported. Four of them were over $50 and one under $50.

Indian Story Error

In the second article of the series, "Trails to Suburbia," May 28, the story of an American Indian in his quest for respectability, it was reported incorrectly that the personnel manager at Montgomery Ward's Chicago office acted in a prejudicial manner. Paddock Publications regrets the error.

The moon is in its last quarter.

The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1816 ten inches of snow fell in New England, starting what was known as "the year in which there was no summer."

In 1933 a motion picture drive-in theater, first of its kind, was opened in Camden, N.J.

In 1944 the greatest invasion in history began as Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower sent tens of thousands of ships and planes and whole divisions of Allied Troops across the English Channel into France. It was D-Day.

In 1968 Senator Robert F. Kennedy died of an assassin's bullet in Los Angeles.

A thought for the day: Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who became the 34th President of the United States, said, "In the final choice a soldier's pack is not so heavy a burden as a prisoner's chains."

25 Years Ago: The Great Invasion

by JOSEPH W. GRIGG

OMAHA BEACH, France (UPI)—Time and the lush green foliage of Normandy have covered over the battle scars, but a quarter of a century later the memories — terrible and glorious — remain

Here, at 6 30 a m on June 6, 1944, after a massive air and naval bombardment, the first units of a quarter-million American, Canadian, British and free French fighting troops stormed ashore on the Normandy beaches and launched the assault that was to free a Nazi enchained Europe

Never before had an invasion of such magnitude been attempted and military authorities agree that it is improbable, in a nuclear-armed world, its like will ever be seen again.

Ahead of the main invasion forces three full divisions of allied airborne troops jumped or landed in gliders in the darkness and confusion of a night battle to secure the western and eastern ends of the invasion beachhead

Offshore more than 4,000 ships, the greatest armada in history, mottled the sea from horizon to horizon as far as the eye could see

"Operation Overlord" it was named. It was carried out under the supreme command of Gen Dwight D. Eisenhower.

By nightfall on June 6 four American, four British and one Canadian division had gained precarious toeholds on five beaches, known by the code names of Utah, Omaha, Gold, Juno and Sword, stretching in an arc for more than 50 miles along the Normandy coast.

"The sea was black with ships," recalls Georges Daligaux, 65, whose parents ran a little cafe on the watefjfront at Arromanches, near here.
saw in my life," remembered Rene Marie, 67, another citizen of Arromanches .

Today you have to search hard for the last traces of tfie invasion.

A few wrecked concrete blockhouses, half-hidden by grass and weeds, rusty strands of barbed wire and, at low tide, a lonely hulk now almost buried in the sand-these are all that remain of the battle debris of 25 years ago

But everywhere the memorials of D-Day and the Battle of Normandy rise above this hallowed countryside.

Here, on a high bluff above Omaha Beach, lie 9,386 American dead beneath glistening white crosses in a military cemetery covering more than 170 acres

A semicircular memorial colonnade behind a statue of a flying male figure in bronze commemorates them with the words.

"This embattled shore, portal of freedom, is forever hallowed by the ideals, the valor and the sacrifices of our fellow countrymen."

An American, Frank B Killian, of Chattanooga, Tenn , and 920 23rd St Sacramento, Calif , who himself landed on the Normandy beaches womewhat later, is in charge of maintaining the cemetery as a permanent American memorial.

Other American, British and Canadian dead are buried in a score of other cemeteries in Normandy.

Off the little town of Arromanches, 12 miles east of Omaha Beach, you still can see the remnents of the "Mulberry Harbor," a fantastic man-made artificial port conceived by the genius of Winston Churchill.

It was formed by a line of worn-out freighters and 146 prefabricated "Phoenix" concrete caissons towed across the English Channel and sunk to form a breakwater.

You can stand even today on the concrete cupola of a former German gun emplacement on the cliffs above Arromanches and still see the line of half-sunken hulks spread out in front of you.

Though human memories fade, the memory of D-Day will live forever with those who witnessed or participated in any of it.

This correspondent followed the battle from London, where he was assigned to cover Eisenhower's Supreme Allied Headquarters (SHAEF).

At 3:30 a m. on that still morning I was awakened by the roar of allied bomber fleets passing over the sleeping city.

Wave after wave, they churned overhead—big, lumbering flying fortresses, four-engined B24s and every other bomber type in the allied arsenal—a massive air armada headed for Normandy to blast the Germans in their Atlantic wall defenses

Yet—partly because of delayed communications from the beaches—it was not until 9:30 a m. that the world received first official word of the invasion in this two-line communique read out to war correspondents by Eisenhower's chief press officer, Col. Ernest Dupuy·

"Under the command of Gen. Eisenhower, allied naval forces, supported by strong air forces, began landing allied armies this morning on the northern coast of France "

Raymond Pruede, a brisk little man now in his 70s, who at the time was mayor of the village of Saint-Laurent-SurMer, close to Omaha Beach, still recalls: "Some American tanks reached our village hall, a mile from the beach, by 11 a m on D-Day, although heavy fighting still raged on the beach Even in the evening the fighting was so bitter that the villagers were afraid to come out and cheer the Americans, because they feared they might have to pull out."

Leo Heroux, an American from Central Falls, R.I., landed at Omaha Beach as a 21-yearold private first class attached to the U S 5th Engineer Special Brigade.

Next day he visited a farm at Colleville-sur-Mer, just above the beach, owned by a French Farmer, Ferdinand Broeckx.

There he met the farmer's pretty daughter, Anne-Marie, who with a girl friend had managed to get through the German and American lines on bicycles from Bayeux, 10 miles away

Heroux and Anne-Marie were married in 1947 and have two boys and two girls Heroux still runs a driving school in Bayeux

"There was a heavy sea running," Heroux recalls. "Everything seemed confused Heavy fighting was going on but we were so busy in our mine removal job that we didn't have much time to pay attention to it."

For some inhabitants of Normandy the invasion began hours earlier. Shortly after midnight, London time, or 11:15 p.m., Paris time, on June 5, allied airborne troops began dropping in Normandy to secure the two ends of the invasion front, more than 50 miles apart.

On the western end, at the base of the Cherbourg Peninsula, more than 18,000 troops of the U.S. 82nd and 101st Airborne Divisions were dropped at and near SainteMere-Eglise. The British 6th airborne division was dropped to secure bridges over the Orne Canal, north of Caen.

Henri-Jean Renaud, 35, who runs the village drugstore at Sainte-Mere-Eglise, remembers what he saw then as a boy of 10

"I have vivid memories of houses burning, noise and confusion and the tocsin alarm bell sounding from the church steeple to summon the volunteer fire brigade," he said.

Renaud's father, Alexandre Renaud, who was the village druggist before him, was mayor of Sainte-Mere-Eglise at the time of the invasion The elder Renaud died two years ago But before his death, on an earlier anniversary he gave this correspondent a vivid account of what happened that morning

"All evening heavy bombers kept passing overhead, attacking the German positions. About 10:30 I was called out because a house on the other side of the village square was blazing."

As Renaud helped organize fire-fighters, American C47 transports roared overhead in the moonlight at an altitude of only 150 feet and paratroopers started spilling out of them At the same time the Germans opened a fierce fire.

"Some paratroopers landed in the trees. One was caught in the church steeple and one fell directly into the flames of the burning building and was burned to death."

But by 4 a m the American flag was flying on the village hall.

A museum was inaugurated in Sainte-Mere-Eglise in 1964 on the 20th anniversary of the invasion as a permanent memorial to the American airborne troops who died there.

Sainte-Mere-Eglise today claims to have been the first liberated town in France. But the claim is disputed by the village of Benouville, 50 miles to the east. It was there that the British 6th Airborne Division landed, mostly in gliders, and seized the Orne Canal bridges.

Georges and Therese Gondree were in their inn alongside the bridge at Benouville when the British dropped.

"At first we weren't too sure who they were," Gondree recalled. "We had been warned so often by allied broadcasts that the Germans might stage a false invasion to trick the French, so we were very much on our guard."

Gondree said when he was sure it was the British, he brought up scores of bottles of champagne from his cellar, where he had hidden them from the Germans, and poured drinks for the British paratroopers, who used his little cafe as a first aid station.

After the war Gondree renamed his inn the "Pegasus Bridge Cafe" after the winged horse "Pegasus" emblem of the British division.

A notice outside in English claims "This was the first house in France to be liberated during the last hours of 5th June, 1944."

1 Year Ago: Horror in a Hotel Kitchen

By JACK V. FOX

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—It was nearing midnight in the suite on the fifth floor of the Ambassador Hotel and Bobby Kennedy was slumped down in a chair with his feet propped up on a bed watching television and sipping from a glass of ginger ale

The returns showed he had beaten Sen Eugene J McCarthy in the California Democratic presidential primary and Pierre Salinger was urging him to go down to the Embassy Ballroom below and speak to the jubilant crowd assembled in a victory celebration

The senator seemed reluctant Someone asked him if he had information about the returns other than the figures on the TV tube

"No," he said "I used to get all sorts of reports but now television gets it all first. It's getting to be an awful bore "

Mrs Ethel Kennedy was sitting on the other side of the bed and someone said the vote showed that not everybody disliked her husband. She took a playful poke at the speaker

"I wonder if we should take Freckles down," Kennedy said. "You know they say I used a dog and an astronaut to win

John Glenn, who was on the other side of the room, chuckled

Bill Barry Kennedy's bodyguard, was off in a corner chatting. The senator had declined any police protection and Barry had the responsibility for his safety though pro football player Roosevelt Grier and decathlon champion Rafer Johnson often helped in crowds

"I get mixed up with the crowds and I can t see " Barry was saying "And I get tired Maybe I won't be able to react quickly enough I wish somebody would talk to him "

It was midnight now and finally Bobby got up and put on his coat jacket and straightened his tie and walked out the door toward a service elevator.

Someone asked if he ever wondered if it was all worth it Implicit in the question was the tragic death of his brother in Dallas four and one-half years before

"I like politics," Kennedy said "It's an honorable adventure Lord Tweedsmuir said that 'It's an honorable adventure "

Then Kennedy and his wife and Barry and Jess Unruh and a few others got into a service elevator and went down to the second floor and through a kitchen area and out onto a small stage overlooking the Embassy room which was filled to bursting with a crowd perspiring under the brilliant television lights and buoyed up with elation and other spirits

Kennedy got into the mood immediately. He played around with the microphone and asked whether people could hear him.

"I want to first express my high regard to Don Drysdale who pitched his sixth straight shutout tonight and I hope that we have as good fortune in our campaign," he said

Kennedy stayed at Central Receiving less than 30 minutes Then he was transferred to Good Samaritan Hospital.

Surgeons spent three hours and 40 minutes removing the fragments of the bullet from his brain

Frank Mankiewicz, the senator's press secretary, hid his grief and dealt with the horde of newsmen

At 2 a m. on the morning of June 6, Mankiewicz read a brief statement. Robert Kennedy had died at 1:44 a.m.

It has been a year now since those shattering days

This correspondent sat for three and one-half months in a fortress courtroom for the trial of Sirhan. Sirhan said he could not even remember killing Kennedy, that he was in a "trance" when he fired the fatal bullets

A jury of seven men and five women did not believe him. They sentenced him to death He sits now in death row in San Quentin awaiting an order to enter the gas chamber which probably will never come

It has been only a year and yet it seems long, long ago that Robert Kennedy died.

"I like politics, he had said. "It is an honorable adventure "

Then he turned serious

"What I think is—what I think is quite clear is that we can work together in the last analysis and that what has been going on in the United States over the period of the last three years, the division, the violence, the disenchantment with our society, the division whether it's between black and white, between the poor and the more affluent or between age groups or over the war in Vietnam, that we can start to work together We are a great country and an unselfish country and a compassionate country And I intend to make that my basis for running in the period of the next few months "

He turned and jumped down the two feet off the back of the stage and started the wild push through crowds that extended their hands to shake his or just touch him which marked his every appearance.

Mrs. Kennedy, pregnant with their 11th child, was on the other end of the stage and Bill Barry hesitated a moment to help her down off the platform and in that brief span of time the crowd closed in between him and the senator.

Karl Uecker, the assistant matre d' at the Ambassador, had Kennedy by the right hand and was leading him through a pantry toward the Colonial Room where the "pencil press" reporters were banging out their stores. It was a last minute change of plans. Kennedy originally had been scheduled to go downstairs to another victory celebration in a ballroom on the ground floor.

Kennedy stopped to talk with the kitchen help. He shook hands with Juan Romero, a 17-year-old busboy.

Seconds later, a tiny little fellow named Sirhan Bishara Sirhan stepped off a tray rack, shouted "Kennedy, you son of a bitch" and shoved a .22 caliber revolver an inch from the senator's ear and pulled the trigger.

The gunman kept firing until he had emptied the eight cartridges in the chamber. Two other bullets entered Kennedy's body below his right armpit and the others felled five persons standing nearby.

It was 12:15 a m. Wednesday the 5th of June, 1968.

In one lightning moment the old superstition came true— tragedies, big and small, come in threes. John Kennedy, Martin Luther King, Robert F. Kennedy.

There was a frozen instant of incomprehension and then it was pandemonium.

Kennedy crumbled to the floor. Juan Romero bent over him and put a rosary in his hand. A wild-eyed Ethel Kennedy came tearing her way through the crowd, knelt in a pool of blood and began shouting:

"Get back, all of you! Get out! Please get out! For God's sake, give him room to breathe."

Eight feet away, Barry, Grier and Johnson were struggling for the gun and pinning the tiny assassin down on a steam table.

In the ballroom, a noise like "Chinese firecrackers" had been heard and then shouts for a doctor went out over the public address system and the word spread: "Bobby's been shot."

Two police officers arrived and literally ran with Sirhan out of the hotel. They whisked him into a patrol car and sped off to Ramparts station. California legislative leader Jess Unruh was in the car and Sirhan mumbled "I did it for my country." For the rest of the night and well into the next day the 24-year-old Arab immigrant refused to tell police anything—not even his name.

It seemed an eternity until an ambulance arrived Then two attendans carried Kennedy out on a stretcher with Ethel holding back their pace so they wouldn't jostle her husband. They sped to Central Receiving Hospital. Kennedy had sunk into a coma.

A young doctor at Central Receiving examined Kennedy and then roughly slapped his face in an attempt at revival Ethel Kennedy, sitting on a high metal stool, gasped. The doctor handed her a stethoscope and put it to Kennedy's heart. An expression of relief spread over Ethel Kennedy's face and she said: "Will he live?"

"Yes, right now he's going to be all right," the doctor said.

Father Thomas Peacha of nearby St Basil's parish entered the room and performed the last rites of the Catholic Church

But at that time, no one could comprehend that Kennedy would die.

MAJOR LEAGUE

Cardinals 000 000 0- 5 1
Cubs 013 11- -8 11-2

Highlights — Backed by an 11 hit attack by his teammates, Jim Hammers pitched the Cubs to a five hit shutout to win his second game of the season downing the Cards, 8-0. Hammers fanned eight and walked only one. The five big innings for the Cubs were the third and the fourth. In the third Spees was hit by a pitched ball, H Selbig singled, and Tom Allen doubled both runners home but was out at third. Hammers walked, stole second and scored on a single by B Sizemore. In the fourth P Waltz walked and S Schwellenbach singled. Both runners advanced on a passed ball and then Spees singled both of them home. Spees stole second and scored on a T. Allen's single. Pegging the Cards loss were Allen and Waltz for the Cubs with two doubles and for the Cardinals it was M Mather with a triple and P Tomrzek with a two-bagger.

Twins 200 04-—9 13 2

Highlights — The White Sox rallied sixth in the top of the sixth but the Twins rallied with three of their own in the bottom of the frame to win in a squeaker, 9-8. With two outs on and 0 — — — tied at 8-all, Mark Hudgins came through with a line drive double over third base to send the winning tally home. Getting the big hit for the Sox was Herbert with a homer. The Twins heavy hitting attack was led by a pair of sluggers — Driscoll and Hudgins. They both had a double and a triple. Carroll also had a double for the Twins and also got the win. His catcher was Suzuki. Dunlevy took the loss with Cox catching.

Redlegs 000 00- 1- 5 1

Highlights — The Cubs erupted with five runs in the fifth to put the game out of reach of the Redlegs in winning 10-1. Tom Spees scattered six hits to chalk up his first victory of the season. He fanned six and walked none and also got a pair of singles to help his own cause. The Cubs' outburst happened this way: T Allen singled, J Hammers doubled, B Sizemore hit home, W Stadtler singled sending Lafavette across, Stadtler took second on a passed ball and then the Cubs' winning batter came through with a safety to tally the final one.

Indians 000 01%— 1 10 1

Highlights — Dale Sladeck aided with a four-run second and a five-run third, tossed an eight-hitter at the Indians to chalk up another win for the Twins by a 12-1 count. Sladeck helped win his own game coming through with a pair of singles. The Twins' Carroll, Uecker and Hosnicki had extra base hits. Jim Samuels pitched for the losers but came through with two hits. Pitching for Sladeck were Rick Stevens and Fred Manuski. Donnelly and Samuels hurled for the Indians with Freund Schuster catching.

Senators 010 000—1- 7-3

Highlights — The Cubs' Jim Hammers cracked a three run homer and tossed a three hitter to stop the Senators, 9-1. Hammers collected the big hit in the sixth to be the cause of victory. K O'Hare took the loss for the Senators.

Pirates 070 211—13 15-
Braves 000 000— 0- 1-

Highlights — The Pirates were led to their third victory in four starts against the Braves on the pitching and hitting of John Fleming. He fanned 12 while posting a 11-0 shutout and pounded out three hits himself. Don Donzelle hammered out a homer for the winners while the big hit for the Braves came from the bat of Ray.

Indians 100 07x—8 8 1

Highlights — The Indians got all the runs they needed to win with in the first inning when they tallied four times. The Braves scored three times and got only four hits off Jim Heffern in tallying 3-1. Heffern struck out eight and helped himself with a two for three day at the plate. The first inning happened this way. Barry Hall led off with a single, the next man grounded out, Joe Schlagel followed with a single, Jim Stroud singled to load the bases, the next man fanned and Bill Heffern unloaded a triple to drive in three and Jim Heffern followed with a double to tally the fourth. Brian Solomon lasted five in taking the loss for the Braves. Chris Combs had a pair of doubles in three at bats.

Yankees 100 100—1-
Cards 000 000 -0-4

Highlights — Mike Martorano proved too tough for the Cards both from the mound and at the plate. The rough Yankee pitcher threw a four-hitter at the Cards and also belted a two run homer in the first inning as the Yanks scored three times. Bob Brun took the loss for the Cards.

CLASS A MINORS

Reds 000 022—4 7-x
Braves 851 55x—24-19-x

Highlights — Dave Champa fired a two-hitter at the Reds while his mates were hammering out 19 of their own to register an easy 24-4 victory. Champa accounted for six hits himself and Mike Zuker had four. Bill Schuler slapped a triple.

Giants 001 2(03)1—20-17-7
Reds 0-0 (11)5x—27-17-7

Highlights — Despite four count homers, the Redlegs and pitcher Steve Snapp outlasted their slugging barrage to win 27-20. Dave Lamson, Gary Vogt, Jim Stanley and Benson had four-baggers but the Redlegs countered with some extra base hitting of their own. One Redleg in particular had a fine day — Dave Ozawski. He homered, tripled and doubled. The Reds also got a triple from Kevin Koonin. Late inning defensive gems were turned in by Steve Wood, Dave Zielinski and Jim Stangel to help preserve the victory. Pitching for the losers were Lamson, Davidson and Vogt.

Braves 000 000— 0-5-6

Highlights — Bob Durning tossed a three-hit shutout at the Braves while the Cubs were picking up 5 hits to win 11-0. Durning fanned 15 and only walked two in posting the win. A triple by the Cubs' leadoff man Wayne Tocki on the first pitch of the game started the Cubs on their winning way as they scored nine times in that initial frame. Another triple by Cub centerfielder Bob Beard with one man on added to the count.

Orioles 010 030—10-
Senators 000 000— 0-

Highlights — Oriole pitcher Helin twirled a neat one-hitter and fanned 15 batters in shutting out the Senators, 10-0. Drake and Heiste were the batters for the Senators.

Tigers 101 021—6-7-2
Sox 010 011—3-6-2

Highlights — The Tigers got off to a fast start in the first frame tallying four times and then sent the rout into a winning 8-3 decision over the Sox. Jeff Haver tossed a six hitter for the win and Mike Hemsley and Tom Cyrocki pitched for the losing Sox. Jim Mayer was the big bat for the Tigers with a triple and homer. Sox got a couple of extra base hits from Ben Stanowski and P.J. Lowry who each registered doubles.

Cardinals 136 26x—35-19-0
Reds 002 01 — 3- 1-1

Highlights — The Cardinals had an easy time of it with the Reds getting 10 hits and 18 walks to post a lopsided 35-3 score. The Cards got good pitching out of Mike McAndrew and Dave Duval who combined to fan 12 and allow just one safety. McAndrews helped his own cause by driving in four runs with two singles. Joe Dunca of the Cards had the only extra base hit — a two-run double.

Yankees 109 17—27-
Twins 104 31- 9-

Highlights — Yankee hurler Klitt socked two grandslam home runs to help himself to the pitching victory in a lopsided 27-9 decision over Twins.

Reds 000 006— 9- 5-6
Dodgers 003 25x—10-10-2

Highlights — Although down 10-3 heading into the top of the sixth, the Reds didn't give up and tallied six runs. But their late inning heroics wasn't enough to overcome the Dodgers who pulled out a real squeaker, 10-9. Dennis VanDyke, who came on in relief of Brian Van Dyke, got the victory. Mark Zettek caught. Dave Zielinsky took the loss with Bob Beaupre catching. For the Dodgers Bill Bodett doubled and Tom Butterfield had three hits. Shawn Murphy had a double for the Reds in the sixth.

Giants 100 102— 4- 3-0

Highlights — Jeff Basik pitched a neat three-hitter while his Pirates teammates backed him with 13 safeties in romping over the Giants, 18-4. The fifth inning settled the issue when the Pirates got nine runs including four on a grandslam by Ron Cope. Other extra base hits were made by Kevin McCloughan, Jeff Basik, Billy Reuter who all had triples. Kevin McLoughan and Mike Healy recorded doubles. Bill Vogt recorded the loss with Gustafson and Kropski coming on in relief.

Cardinals 015 25x—15-11-5

Highlights — The Cards fought back from a six run deficit to win an exciting game from the Cubs, 15-9. Mark Smith was the batting star for the Cards with four-for-four including a home run, double and three RBI's. Dave Workman and Tom Lizo also had three RBI's with two hits each including a double. Mike McAndrew banged out a triple and Joe Duara two singles. The Cubs extra base blows were a double by Wayne Tocki and a triple by Danny Spees. Rozanski lost the game with Strike finishing up.

Dodgers 200 214—9-9-1
Braves 130 000—4-3-3

Highlights — The Dodgers' Paul Thompson fanned 15 Braves and tossed a three-hitter to win 9-4. Hitting the big ones for the winners were Charles Crabb and Ed Hawkinson with doubles and Bill Bodett with a triple. The Braves got a triple from Mike Durkin and a double from Bill Schafer. Jerry Van Hauter took the loss with Mike Drukin coming on in relief.

CLASS B MINOR

Tigers 110 057—14- 7-3
Dodgers 023 310—12-11-1

Highlights — The Tigers came back with seven runs in the sixth to overcome a 12-7 lead of the Dodgers and win 14-12. Dave Rodges was the batting hero with two homers — one in the second with no one on and the other in the big sixth with three men on. Ken Freeman also hit a homer with Dave Stoiser cracking a triple and a double duck Lubacker went all the way for the win and Curitz and Andripoulous hurled for the losing Dodgers.

Twins 420 01x—13 11 0

Highlights — The Twins broke a close game open the fourth and fifth games with a couple of four run rallies to whip the Sox, 14-1. Ken Algozzin got the win with Dewitt catching. The Twin catcher had a good day at the plate with a homer, triple and a double. Pat O'Brien also had a triple and a double for the winners. Lopez took the loss for the Sox.

Braves 501 12 9 1

Highlights — Gray Watton tossed a one hitter as the Cardinals romped past the Braves 20-2. The Cards were led by Scott Shumbat who cracked a pair of homers as did Ron Thomas. Wm Krowski also stroked a homer. McRide was charged with the loss with Hemmessey and Dapp relieving.

Yanks 112 231—10 12 1
Redlegs 101 500— 7 10 6

Highlights — Jay Carman belted a homer, triple and a double sending in four of the 10 runs the Yanks scored as they won 10-7. The Redlegs also got a big lift from Campbell who had a grandslam. Also getting a homer for the Reds was Hayes. The winners got two more long balls from Caspias and Barry. Stemien registered the win for the Yanks and Fortman took the loss.

Indians 512 311 19 2-4

Highlights — Had the Indians gotten a homer with two out in the bottom of the sixth the game might still be undecided. They loaded the bases after four runs had already tallied in the final frame but the next Indian hit into a force out to cut short the rally and allow the Pirates to outlast their opponents, 23-19. The big hitter for the game was on the losing Indians. Mutt hit for the circuit with a homer, triple double and a single. The winning Pirates got four baggers from O'Malley. Roach and two from Frechlie. Aong with Muff's fine day his teammate Small also blasted one out. The Pirates Procal who came on in relief of Romano, got the win. Muff took the loss with Evans relieving.

Redlegs 002 11— 4 3 3

Highlights — The Twins moved into second place in the league standings with a convincing 15-4 decision over the Redlegs. Jeff Keplince got the win and Alardo took the loss.

Cubs 010 (2(13)—17 15 4
Senators 100 300— 5 2 3

Highlights — The Cubs came from behind with a big 13 run outburst to thump the Senators, 17-5. Kevin Kowalski got the decision for the Cubs with Tourlusky entering. The winners notched their fourth win of the season when they came from a 5-4 deficit with 10 hits and two walks in the big sixth inning. Jack Gerschek had a home run and a single in the sixth and for five RBIs. Ron Smith kept the Cubs in the game until the sixth inning with two home runs. They also got triples from Gerbusky and Kowalski and a double from Tourinsky. Basik b— red for the losers. Claes was the losing hurler.

Rob Roy Tuesday Race Tightens

Galie Drywall and Barton Stull Realtors were running 1-2 but several teams were in contention for that top slot prior to action this week in the Rob Roy Tuesday Night division.

Only four points separated the top five teams after a night when individual scoring just wasn't up to "par".

Don Frantell with a 41-34, Burt Casteel 41-35 and Fred Pruyn 41-35 paced the first two flights. Blaszczyz in the No. 4 position had low net of the evening, a 33.

Added Significance for Western

As the professional golf tour progresses, the Western Open championship at Midlothian CC takes on added significance to the pros.

At stake directly is one of four qualifying rounds for the lucrative Alcan Golfer of the Year tournament, a possible starting position in the World Series of Golf, and highly important tournament qualifications through standing on the money-winning list.

The Western Open, along with the New Orleans, Philadelphia and Hartford tournaments, determines 12 invitees to the Alcan, with its $55,000 first prize money. Combined scores of the best of three of these four tests decide the qualifiers.

The World Series of Golf matches the winners of the U.S. and British Opens, the PGA championship and the Masters. Only George Archer, the Masters winner, has qualified to date. In the event of a double winner of any of these events, the Western Open victor will complete the foursome.

The Western Open offers $130,000 in prize money, with $26,000 for the tuthst

Lancers Successful, but Still a Disappointment

by PHIL KURTH

It's kinda like Bobby Hull scoring 35 goals.

That's not a bad season for anybody else, but for him and Black Hawk fans it would be a disappointment.

And that's the way Lake Park baseball coach Norb Wesolowski feels about his '69 Lancers. "The season was successful, after all we were 11-8 on the year, but it's not what we had hoped for and it could have been a lot better.

"I SUPPOSE OUR LACK of hitting was the biggest disappointment."

As a team, the Lancers hit .237 and had only one regular, Tim Schaper, hitting over .300. Schaper led the club in hits with 17 while compiling a robust .362 average. John Mikes, who batted just 14 times, had five hits for a .357 average and Tom Stuckey hit a whopping .454 while batting only 11 times.

That, sad to say, was about it as the big guns who were supposed to put the charge into an explosive attack fizzled for the most part.

Chris Petersen hit .289, Mike Kramarczyk .228, Tim Little .242, Vic Tomczak .231, Faust DeLazzer .200, Ralph Gallo .174, and Tom Milostan .146.

"THE OVERALL POTENTIAL of the seniors just wasn't realized. Kids who were great last year — Milostan, Little, Tomczak, Kramarczyk, Karner, Arndt, Gallo — just didn't produce this year.

"Complacency, I think, had a lot to do with it, a lack of esprit de corps. Nobody was really pressing them for a job, so they didn't have to work too hard. Out of 17 guys on the team 12 were seniors.

"As I told the kids, though, a lot of teams would like to be 11-8 over the year. It was nothing to be ashamed of. But it goes to prove that you can't live on past glory, you have to produce every year.

"I think you'd have to say another reason for our less-than-great season was that we didn't get the pitching help we expected from Schaper. He was supposed to be a moundsman this year, and instead Pete had to carry most of the load.

"AND CATCHING WAS a problem all year. Ralph Gallo did a decent job, and he should be commended for filling a spot that nobody else could, but he's not really a catcher, he's an outfielder.

"Tim Little had to be one of our biggest disappointments. For the last six games, he was our best hitter. But until then he had done virtually nothing. If there's one thing I've learned this year, it's that you've got to have a catcher.

"Another disappointment was Tom Milostan not getting on base much. He's our leadoff man and we counted on him to get the big innings started."

In conference play, the defending champion Lancers finished a very average 6-6. "What was really hard to take," says Wesolowski, "were those 1-0 and 2-1 and 3-2 losses. We got beat on squeeze bunts and bad bounces and every conceivable way. When you lose those tough games, they're hard to digest."

But with all the disappointment, the unfulfilled potential, the dashed hopes, 1969 was not a year to cry about. There was a lot of excitement, a lot of victories, a lot of pleasant memories for Weslowski and his Lancers.

"WHY, WHEN THIS team wanted to play, like the last game against Crown and the two against Mundelein, they were a heckuva ball club. The better the opposition, the better we played. We were hungrier then. Otherwise there seemd to be a lot of complacency and laxity.

"Petersen pitched well every time out, really. There were games we didn't score runs for him, but he deserved more wins." In conference play, Pete won 5, lost 2, struck out 30 in 38 innings and posted a 1.68 earned run average.

"There were a lot of positive points — the fine play of Faust DeLazzer and John Mikes (both juniors), the future pitching prospects of Tom Stuckey and Ray Neidhardt.

"Neidhardt pitched an outstanding game against Mundelein and would have won it but for a fluke fly ball hit and an error.

"TOMCZAK gave us some fine defensive play around second base all year. standing throughout except in that Mundelein game."

And when you're sepaking of defense, you have to speak of DeLazzer, one of the funest junior center fielders the league has seen.

Blessed with a great arm and excellent speed, Faust also possesses a couple of other qualities that could make him one of the finest ball players to come out of this area — hustle and desire. Spectacular catches and awesome throws were only part of the DeLazzer story. He never dogged it, and his smile (a warm and genuine one) was reserved for those occasions when his team won, not when he sparkled individually.

At the plate, Faust was the best .200 hitter in baseball. He seldom struck out, and got good wood almost every time up. A hard-luck hitter, he still gave West and the fans some shots to remember, including one drive that Wes called "one of the hardest hit balls I've ever seen around here." The hit he was referring to was a line drive with the velocity of a cannon shot that ripped against the bricks of the field house in left.

"OUR SPEED WON SOME ball games for us," says Wes. "We ran on everybody. If we didn't have that speed, we never would have won 11 games."

Milostan, of course, was the leader in thefts, swiping 10 bases on the season. Others to steal were Tomczak, DeLazzer, Little, Daugherty, Schaper, and Arndt — ample evidence of the overall speed of these Lancers.

What game stands out to Wesolowski? "I think the most exciting game of the year was that 1-0 victory over Fenton. They had a guy on third base four different times, but by luck, or fate, or something, they couldn't get a run."

If there was one game Wesolowski would like to forget, it would probably be another that involved Fenton — a 5-3 loss in the semi-final game of the Lake Park District Tournament.

But all this is history now. The good games, the bad games. The disappointments, the thrills. They all belong to memory.

AND HOW DOES 1970 look to the man who has never had a losing season in 13 years of coaching at Lake Park?

"With DeLazzer and Mikes, Stuckey and Neidhardt, plus a fine sophomore team that finished 13-6 this year, I think we can look forward to a good season again.

"And let me repeat, this was a good season. The kids did a good job, it's just that they could have done better."

As Linus would say, "There's no heavier burden than a great potential."

"LET IT FLY in the breeze, and get caught in the trees. . ." Hair blowing behind, Fenton's Ken Hartmann sails to earth in the long jump. Hartmann took a third for the Bisons in the long jump competition of the Tri-County Conference track meet at Lake Park Saturday.

Brian Piccolo is a man who leaves 'em breathless

On the football field, his jarring blocks and pile-driving runs have knocked the wind out of many an enemy sail.

On the banquet tour, the Bears' rugged ambassador of wit has 'em rolling in the aisles with laughter — the kind of laughter that has 'em dabbing at their eyes and gasping for breath.

Guest speaker at Fenton's athletic banquet last week, the modest, cocky, serious, irreverent man of wonder and delight regaled the gathering with the strange and uproarious tales of the rise and fall of R. Brian Piccolo.

If there were those on hand not too familiar with Mr Piccolo, he soon took care of that with a modest, thoroughly funny introduction that quickly won the hearts of athletes and parents alike.

"I want to start by saying a little about myself," Brian began. "Now this may seem kind of immodest but I sometimes feel it necessary to tell people who I am. The reason, as you may have guessed, is a guy named Gale Sayers. For some reason, he seems to get most of the publicity."

After the briefest of biographical sketches, Brian harkened back to his early college days at Wake Forest.

"In my first two years on the varsity, we won one and lost something like 20. In one stretch, we lost about 18 in a row.

"Now this creates problems for a coach, of course. What does he say to a team that hasn't won in almost two years? Well, I remember after we had dropped about 15 straight he walked slowly into the locker room, as all coaches do, looked around, as all coaches do, and finally said: 'Well, let's get out there.'

"Actually, I don't know why he brought it up. We knew we had to go out there and we weren't real happy with the idea, anyway

"Then he follows that up by saying, 'if we should win the toss and elect to receive, let's try to recover the fumble.'"

Pausing till the laughter subsided, Brian continued: "And then he thinks about it, and says, 'If we should lose the toss and they receive, let's try to block that extra point'

"Needless to say, this wasn't exactly inspiring

"But this coach was gone by my senior year and Bill Tate took over. We finished 5-5 and individually I had the kind of year you dream about. Everything went right for me and I wound up leading the nation in rushing

"Now if someone had told me before that year (64) started that I would be the leading ground gainer in big college football, over guys like Jim Grabowski and Gale Sayers, I would have thought he was crazy.

"Well, after that season I thought I'd go very high in the draft. And this was during the time that the American Football League and National Football League were having great salary wars, so I could hardly wait to start bargaining.

"Then the Saturday after Thanksgiving I got a phone call that made me sure I was one of the top picks I was going to Atlanta — I don't remember why — the day this guy called He says, 'How'd you like to go to the Bahamas, take some friends, we'll pick up the tab.'

"I told him I'd like to but I was going to Atlanta He said, 'Well, okay, I'll meet you in Atlanta, get you a suite of rooms, and we'll talk.'

"When I got to Atlanta, I asked him what it was all about He said he was a National Football League "baby-sitter" and it was his job to get NFL draft choices and take them somewhere so that the AFL wouldn't know where they were. He said his job was to get my signature on a contract before the AFL could see me

"Well, as it turned out, I had the greatest baby-sitter in the history of baby-sitting. Because not only did the AFL forget me, the NFL forget me, too.

"I wasn't even drafted'

"You talk about a blow to a man's pride I was really hurt and upset. The National League alone took about 180 guys

"Anyway, I went back to school and became a free agent. I heard from several football teams, but decided to cast my lot with the Chicago Bears for two reasons: first, they gave me the most money; second, and most important, the Bears had had the worst year in '64, they were at the bottom in rushing

"This is where they needed help most, so I thought I'd get a chance to play there. Unfortunately for me, and fortunately for Bear fans, they also got a guy named Gale Sayers that year.

"But I feel these last few years have shown what real perseverance can do. Why, who would have thought I'd beat Gale out and play the last five games last year? Oh sure, he got hurt, but it wasn't that serious. I'd have played with it."

With just that hint of earnestness and that sparkle of mirth, Brian brought the house down again, and like an experienced entertainer he waited again until the laughter had subsided, and went on.

"I guess everyone remembers their first year in the pros, and I remember very well the apprehensions I had about training camp. Well, my first play in camp called for me to run through the left side of our line, which was the right side of the offensive line. There just happened to be a couple of old guys over there named Earl Leggett and Doug Atkins

"Now Doug was about 6-7, and probably the biggest human being God ever created. I've seen guys taller than him, and heavier guys than him, but I have never seen one bigger.

"Anyway, I hit in there and Doug grabs me by one leg, Earl grabs me by the other, and I hear Earl Say, 'Okay, Doug, make a wish.'

"Football, though, is a great sport and I'm happy to be connected with the game and with a team like the Chicago Bears. I'd like to get a Super-Bowl championship, and I think we can do it this year.

Brian Piccolo

"Last year, of course, we had a bad start and we had a rookie coach. After we lost four of our first five, the fans were on him, the players were on him, and even the officials were on him.

"Now this is a really true story, although I hope to heck it never gets out of this room.

"We were in Philadelphia to play the Eagles, and we had this rookie quarterback, Virgil Carter. Well, Jim figured the only thing he could do was call every play himself. So after every play Virgil would come to the sideline, get the play, go back, call the play, run the play, come back to the sideline, etc.

"The official warned Jim a couple of times that it was coaching from the sidelines and he'd have to stop. Jim, of course, in the tradition of George Halas, ignored him.

"Finally the official threw a penalty flag, said that it was illegal coaching against Dooley and the Bears, and walked off five yards.

"Whereupon Jim yells out at him, 'Don't you know that coaching from the sidelines is a 15-yard penalty, you ignorant jerk?' The official quickly replied, 'With the kind of coaching you're doing, Jim, I'm only going to assess you five.'"

Pretty soon it was question and answer time, and Brian was still the man of merriment.

Q: Do you think the Bear receivers will have trouble with a left-handed quarterback?

A: Well, I've heard, now I didn't say this but I heard, that we have been accused of running our pass patterns backwards anyway so we should have no trouble at all.

Q: Do you think Gale Sayers will be at full strength?

A: Well, he and I both work downtown and I ran into him the other day — no, I didn't RUN into him. I'm not that bad a guy And besides, I'm Italian, I could make a phone call and get that done. Anyway, I asked him how he was feeling and he said fine. I said, I'm sorry to hear it.

Seriously, he's working out every day and I'm sure the leg will be in great shape.

Q: How's Virgil Carter?

A: Virg has got a radio show on WIND, drives a big new car courtesy of one of the dealers, and every once in a while he calls me to take a banquet he can't make. That's not bad for four football games.

Oh, his leg is coming along all right, too.

Finally, Brian talked about the Bears, about their chances for '69, "The possibilities excite me. Last year they said we were a one-man football team. We proved them wrong. This year I feel we can win it all."

Brian was one who helped prove "them" wrong.

Football is a serious business. Life is too often a serious business. It's nice to know there are a few merry men left.

All-Star Question: Where's Romme?

Fenton and Lake Park both placed a pair of performers on the Tri-County All-Conference team chosen Tuesday night, but the big surprise was the man who didn't make it — Marty Romme.

An all-conference choice a year ago, Romme pitched 44 innings in conference competition this year, permitting just 18 hits and seven earned runs. He struck out 69, walked 11, and compiled an excellent 1.11 earned run average. Lack of offensive support held his record to 3-3.

Robbie Seeds of Mundelein, Wally Gawaluch of Ridgewood, and Chris Petersen of Lake Park were selected as the all-conference mound corps, and Lancer coach Norb Wesolowski says he doesn't really understand it.

"This whole thing is kind of a cut-throat operation as far as I'm concerned. I told these guys that I think the players ought to do the voting because the coaches pass votes.

"Each coach had three votes for pitchers. Well, say you want your kid to make it. You can't vote for him, but you vote for somebody not so good so your kid can possibly get it.

"Sometimes the best pitcher isn't picked."

Fenton coach Jim Monahan expressed his disappointment over the voting: "Marty didn't have as good a record as some of the others, but as far as innings pitched, and strike-outs, and earned runs, I thought he had a better record."

Petersen and Romme both got four votes, and on the third round of a vote-off Petersen finally won it.

Romme received honorable mention as did Ken Desmaretz of Elmwood Park and Mike Korkosz of Wheaton North.

Lake Park's other selection was first baseman Tim Schaper. Vic Tomczak and Tom Milostan received honorable mention for an infield spot and Faust DeLazzer honorable mention for the outfield.

Fenton players honored were John Geils in the infield and Gary Thorsen in the outfield. Geils received the most votes of any infielder nominated.

Dave Fitzpatrick was an honorable mention choice at first, along with Wheaton North's Bill Borgeson.

Catchers on the all-conference squad were Crown's Rick Waters and Mundelein's Donn Majercik, with Wheaton North's Glen Engram getting honorable mention.

Infielders, along with Geils, were Dan Sanders of Mundelein, Jim Turkington of Mundelein, and Harold Lustgarten of Elmwood Park.

In the outfield, it was Thorsen, Elmwood Park's Gary Isakson, Crown's Frank VanMilligen, and Mundelein's Ron Wiscons. DeLazzer lost the final outfield spot to Wiscons in a vote-off.

First Indianapolis Winner

Ray Harroun won the first Indianapolis 500-mile race in 1911 with an average speed of 74.590 miles per hour.

Northrup Tops in Slams

Jim Northrup of Detroit hit four grand slam homers in 1968; Joey Foy, then with Boston, belted two and 16 other players had one each.

Special Events Scheduled For June at Waukegan Plant

The Waukegan Speedway will be busy in the mont of June as at least three special events have been scheduled in addition to the regular Saturday and Sunday night lineup of late model super stock car races. In all cases the first event starts at 8:00 p.m.

Leading the list will be another 100 lap championship race slated for Saturday night, June 14 in addition to a full card of late model racing. Erick Johnson of Mundelein won the first 100 lap event of the season and won the biggest pay-off in track history. That race also attracted the largest late model entry list in track history with 59 of the Midwest's top cars in the pits.

On Wednesday night, June 25 the Joie Chitwood Thrill Show will be in town with a full program of precision stunt driving and clown antics which will entertain the whole family. The rain date for the Chitwood Show will be the next night, Thursday.

The United Auto Racing Association (U.A.R.A.) after two successful Friday night races at the Waukegan Speedway have just entered into a contract for three more events on the new asphalt oval. One event is set for June, but the exact date yet to be announced. The midgets will also see action on Friday night, July 4.

This weekend the late models will return with two nights of action. Both the Saturday and Sunday races will be topped with a 30 lap main event. Ray Young of Chicago is the current point leader and he increased his lead with a convincing win in Saturday's main event. Sunday's races were rained out.

Three local favorites finished right behind Young. Defending champion Jim Cosman of Waukegan took second money with Al Hagerty of Libertyville third and Dennis Burgan of Old Mill Creek third. Bud Koehler of Blue Island, Erik Johnson of Mundelein, Harry Simonsen of Blue Island and Bill Shoulders of Libertyville all dropped out early in the race while near the leaders.

Means Not Enough Wins

'Not Enough Contact...'

by PAUL LOGAN

Two months ago Mid-Suburban League team managers were making sure their first aid kits were well supplied with plenty of bufferin, Excedrin and aspirin as they prepared for the predictable down-to-the-wire, nail biting, frantic finish.

The year before Elk Grove had emerged with the title after a very tight race which was decided on the last day of the season. And it promised to be a carbon copy of that nerve tester again.

BUT THIS time the only excitement was the jockeying for the runnerup spot for nobody figured on Wheeling getting off to such a fast start and then waltzing to the title.

And for the defending chamion Grove nine it promised to be a real banner year. Coach Larry Peddy had what many diamond observers thought was an even better team on paper than the '68 champs who had compiled a 9-5 league mark.

However, this time around the Grenadiers registered a 7-7 record.

"We were lucky to break even with as many strikeouts as we had," Peddy recalled. "You've got to move the ball in high school in order to have a chance to win."

His Grenadiers fanned 104 times to lead the league in that category and still managed to finish tied with Forest View for fifth place. And for the 17-game overall total they carried their silent bats back to the rack 131 times!

"NOT ENOUGH contact on the ball was the main thing I think," said Peddy in summing up the season. And again the statistics bore him out.

While rampaging Wheeling was clubbing the ball at an amazing .336 clip, the Grove was barely meeting the sphere at a .213 percentage good for seventh in the league.

But there were a few exceptions to the lack of hitting of the former cinderella crew as Peddy explains:

"I was pleased with a couple of boys. I was really surprised with Losch (Mike) and Chesney's (Kevin) hitting ability. And Pleickhardt (Gary) did a pretty good job, too."

LOSCH, WHO displayed a fine arm for such a lanky shortstop, slashed the ball for a lofty league mark of .436, second only to Jack Bastable of Wheeling. His exceptional play landed him a spot on the all-conference team.

On the year this flashy junior batted a hefty .447 while leading his teammates in hits (21) and runs batted in (14), including a grandslam which helped win the final game of the season.

Pleickhardt was also named to the all-league squad — the second year he's earned the honor.

Pleickhardt hit .311 in the MSL and .315 overall. He paced the Grove in at bats (54), in getting on base (35), scoring runs (14) and sealing bases (8).

THE OTHER plus .300 hitter was Kevin Chesney. Somehow the league coaches overlooked this fine athlete who compiled a .321 mark in the league and a fine .333 total overall. He led his team in fewest strikeouts having just two in 33 at bats.

The closest batting average to these three was a .235 so the overall hitting balance will be one of the things the 1970 crew will be striving for.

On the pitching side the Grove will have a good nucleus with two of its three starting hurlers returning — Dave Ristau and Gordon Hollywood.

Ristau, who had never been beaten in MSL action (10-0) heading into this year's wars, started off pre-season play in a big way with a sparkling no-hitter over Ridgewood. However, the MSL was laying for him and dealt him four setbacks.

Overall the scrappy righty was the biggest winner on the staff with four victories and should be back on the beam next spring.

LEFTY HOLLYWOOD finished with a 2-2 record in his first varsity campaign and should be a big asset to Peddy in the future. He was 3-3 overall.

Eleven seniors will be graduating next week and one of them will be Tom Emslie. Although he was involved in just three of the Grove's decisions, he did have the best winning percentage of .667 (2-1)

Larry Reddy

WHEN PEDDY took over the helm two seasons ago he said he wanted to establish a "winning attitude" in his players. He did so in '68 with a 9-8-1 mark and in '69 with a 9-8 total. And although his boys didn't take first or second this time, he still thought they had done well:

"I would say I had a lot of the seniors as sophomores and they went from a 3-14 record to two straight 9-8 marks. In fact at one time in their sophomore year they were 0-13. They all stuck with it. . .They came back in the last ballgame."

And that they did. Even though they were down 6-2 and had no chance of copping the runnerup spot, they still showed they were winners by battling back.

With this sort of guts which Peddy has instilled, the Grenadiers have to be always considered a diamond threat in the league.

With Palatine Season

'Real Pleased' Says Coach

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

Unlike many managers and coaches in baseball, Palatine's Roy Schodtler used little variation in his lineup from game to game

In fact, the first five hitters batted in the same position in the order each game Chris Andriano, Rick Lenert, Ernie Purcelli Al Bambrick and Dave Hasbach Schodtler shuffled the bottom four places on occasion but toward the end of the season every game had Scott Smith, John Dempster and Roger Outcalt following Hasbach

It was this lineup which took Palatine to an 8-6 record in the Mid-Suburban League and a 12-8 mark overall "I didn't expect to lose as many games as we did, Schodtler said while looking back on the season "But I'll tell you, I was real pleased with our season I think we could have done better if we were a little luckier These boys earned everything they won"

Player	ab	r	h	rbi	ba
Andriano	67	9	17	8	.253
Lehnert	61	12	16	6	.262
Purcelli	64	9	17	6	.266
Bambrick	57	8	20	8	.351
Hasbach	40	9	11	11	.275
Smith	54	10	12	5	.222
Dempster	49	5	9	13	.231
Outcalt	49	8	13	6	.265
Duffey	28	6	7	3	.250
Doyle	32	5	5	3	.156
Matsie	10	1	2	1	.200
Wolff	6	0	0	0	.000
Mc Alister	1	0	0	0	.000
Sander	5	0	0	0	.000
	503	78	129	80	.256

	IP	SO	BB	ERA	W-L
Dempster	45	56	23	0.73	6-1
Hasbach	53	72	20	1.60	4-3
Doyle	30	15	12	2.30	2-1
Sander	7	2	4	6.00	0-1
	135	145	64	1.68	12-6

PALATINE'S SEASON must be termed successful The Pirates finished second in the Mid-Suburban League and won the Barrington District championship and reached the Regional tournament

Bambrick played first base when Dempster was pitching and played the outfield when Dempster was not. Bambrick led the team in batting (.351), his (20), fielding percentage (.959) and struck out the least on the team (two in 57 at bats)

Dempster had a brilliant season on the mound and also swung a potent bat. The lefthander led the team by driving in 13 runs He hit 231

LEHNERT LED the Pirates in runs scored with 12 and batted .262 He was also tops in walks with 13 and tied with Andriano in stolen bases with seven

Shortstop Outcalt had an outstanding start and closed out with a .245 mark. Outcalt led the team in assists with 34

Smith played third base, hit .226 and was second on the team in runs scored with 10

NO LESS THAN nine players took outfield positions throughout the season but Andriano was the fixture in center. Andriano led the team in at bats (67), was second in hits (17), third in runs, first in doubles (3), third in runs batted in and first in stolen bases He hit .254.

Hasbach played right field when not pitching and hit .226 with 11 runs batted in. Pa Doyle (.294 and a team-leading two homers), Tom Matsie, Greg Wolff, Ron McAlister and John Sander shared duty in the outfield.

Purcelli hit .266 and had a fine year behind the plate. He threw out 10 of 21 runners who attemped to steal.

Dempster was the ace of the staff with six wins and one loss and a dandy 0.73 earned run average. Hasbach had a 1.60 ERA with a 4-3 record Doyle, the winning pitcher in the District championship game, was 2-3 with a 2.30 earned run mark

THE PIRATES were second in the MSL in team batting with .254, behind Wheeling's .336

Palatine was third in walks, had the fourth least strikeouts, was fourth in stolen bases, fifth in homers and third in runs scored

"I thought we had real good balance," Schodtler said "Everybody hit over .200 and that's real good in high school.

"This was the hardest working group of boys I ever worked with," Schodtler concluded

Kemmerly Real Estate 010 000— 1 3 2
Highlights — Salvatore and Fioretti each cracked home runs. Mark McCaslin walloped a double, Don Thompson a triple, Jim Hies a double and Neil Carr a double. Eddie Ellason nabbed the pitching win.

Kiwanis 021 031—10-18
National Bank 101 001— 3 6
Highlights — Lon Snyder pitched a six-hitter for his first victory while going 3-for-4 at the plate and scoring four runs. Tuttle was 4-for-5 with three triples and seven runs batted in. Dan Sobczynski slugged a three-run homer. Brenan banged a double.

National Bank 000 030— 3-3-0
Kemmerly Real Estate 000 33x—6-5-3
Highlights — A two-run single by Sal Fioretti provided Kemmerly with the go-ahead runs in the bottom of the fifth inning. National Bank's three runs came on Scott Grant's home run with two runners on base. Fioretti was the winning pitcher.

Savings & Loan 001 203 0—6-8
Dairy Queen 200 022 1—7-8
Highlights — G. J. Allen and Greg Allen (brothers) hit home runs to pace the Dairy Queen to victory. Mike Manor and Bill Krohn clouted homers for the losers. G. J. Allen was the winning pitcher in relief.

Kiwanis 100 120—4-5-1
A. H. Elks 102 000—3-3-2
Highlights — A squeeze bunt by Bill O'Dell brought in Mike Miller with the winning run. David Kunzweiler slugged a home run for the Elks in the first inning. Rick Stremmel went the route for Kiwanis, giving up three hits while fanning 10. Porter, Dragoun and Donahue slapped out doubles.

Highlights — Greg Lakin went the distance for Dairy Queen to pick up his first triumph.

Arlington Park Dodge 220 010—5-5-2
Savings & Loan 080 010—4-4-5
Highlights — Winning pitcher Christensen scattered four hits. Tom Bemister poked a triple. Park Dodge took 4-0 lead after two innings and the Savings & Loan could not come up with a big enough rally to overcome the deficit.

Peko Tile 001 031— 5
Kiwanis 133 210—10
Highlights — Charley Tuttle pitched for the win and hit a triple. Stremmel swatted a home run. Regul had two doubles for Peko.

Dairy Queen 002 000—2-4-3
Elks 004 200—6-6-2
Highlights — John Bals, Dave Kunzweiler and Bill Stevenson combined their talents for a one-hitter. Kunzweiler got credit for the win. Jim Nayeon capped out two hits, one a double, for the Elks. Donahue also had a double.

Kemmerly Real Est. 300 000—3-4-2
Arl. Park Dodge 000 202—4-8-3
Highlights — A single by Pat Waite, a triple by Bill Nottnebel and a single by Mike Eversberg provided Arlington Park Dodge with two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning and the victory. Waldeland's three-run double in the first inning gave Kemmerly all its runs. Keith Larson pitched 5 1/3 innings and Brian Bemister 1/3 of an inning and got the win for Park Dodge.

Kiwanis 6
Savings & Loan 7
Highlights — Greg Miller gave up three hits in the Savings & Loan's first win. Mike Mann doubled and Pete Nicholson drove in the winning run. Sobczynski went 2-for-2.

Savings & Loan 440 003—4-2-1
Peko Tile 133 01x—5-5-2
Highlights — Steve Coffman pitched a two-hitter for the win. James Hilgendorf connected for a double.

Elks 402 221—11
Kemmerly Realtors 000 043— 7
Highlights — Andy Donahue went 4-for-4 as he pounded out two doubles and a grand slam home run. Bill Stevenson was the winning pitcher with relief help from Bals. Steve Stair singled and doubled for the losers.

Dairy Queen 020 001— 3- 3-3
Kemmerly Realtors 260 27x—17-16-1
Highlights — Winning pitcher Bill Brown allowed only three hits and three walks while striking out 10. Steve Stair went 4-for-4 with four runs scored. Sal Fioretti smacked a home run and drove in seven runs. Canst doubled and Sheahan and Witte tripled.

Elks 500 800—13-11
Dodge 000 010— 1- 2
Highlights — Borsenkircher and Gregory whacked doubles. Jim Mavean hurled a two-hitter and drove in three runs with a triple.

'Y' Golfers Improve Scores

Area golfers and the weatherman finally got their signals straight last week and the results were a duffer's delight.

Players in the YMCA Twilight Golf League made some marked improvements over last week's rain-chilled rounds. Art Kruse shot a 37, including a birdie on the 14th, to take low gross honors. Harold Schlichting, the winner two weeks ago, finished second with a 39. According to the records, these two men seem destined to keep exchanging the weekly title. Ed Nixon and Max Pemoller tied for third place with 40s.

Low net title went to Joe Porkoni and Bart Kenny, both registering 32s. But it took birdies by each to nose out Harold Voight with his sizzling 33. Rounding out the "one under" list was Jack Ochotney, who kept straight down the middle, dodging the OB markers and the traps by the green, to nab his reward on Mount Prospect's tricky third hole.

Team standings were tightened considerably, with just 5½ points separating the top seven contenders. Dick Tank's Team No. 7, last week's leader, was forced into a first-place tie with Allens Mens Store. Novak and Parker fell to third, with Jensen and Son moving up to fourth. The overall standings.

Slow Start Followed by Sudden Prospect Success

by CHUCK WILDER

Prospect varsity baseball coach Larry Pohlman doesn't claim to be a magician, but from the way he turned a losing 3-11 season into a 10-12 year you know he has to possess a few magical powers

But as Pohlman explains it, the sudden success that the Knights enjoyed in the last half of their diamond year had nothing to do with magic — every player on the team just started doing what the coach knew he should have been doing all along

"What happened is that we started getting some individual success," the coach says "Regulars who have been hitting under .200 finally began getting hits in key situations, and we got a strong job from our pitchers too — Randy Cordova mainly, and Warner Schlais, and Dave Jones picked up a few wins

I told the people at our spring sports banquet that we really had two seasons. There was the bad one — we were 3-11 — that we just forget about, and there was the good one, where we won seven out of our last eight games," Pohlman adds.

INCLUDED IN THOSE seven wins were three straight in state tournament play, in which the Knights blasted past Forest View and Arlington to capture the Forest View District title, and then took the first round of the Maine South Regional. In the Regional championship game the Knights finally fell, after winning six straight games, to a rugged Niles West squad.

But then Pohlman's crew rebounded and claimed a victory in their final Mid-Suburban League confrontation of the year to hike a one-time MSL mark of 2-8 into a respectable 6-8 record, good for seventh place in the league. More importantly, their last four victories included wins over second place Palatine and fourth place Forest View. And adding a little more stature to the Knight second season were their two district wins over Arlington and Forest View.

Pointing out the difference between the first and second halves of his season, Pohlman said, "In the second season instead of leaving men on base, we were getting the key hits. In our early games we were being frustrated by getting men on board — getting the winning run, say, on second — and then not being able to bring it home.

"THE LAST HALF of the year we were playing like I knew we could," he added. "It's like I told the boys at the beginning of the year, we didn't have any great stars so our wins would have to come through a team effort. We didn't do it in the first half of the season and we lost, we did give it a team effort later on and we won."

But even though it was a team effort that brought the Knights one of their best years in the recent past, the coach still felt that some individuals deserved extra praise for their efforts

"MIKE WULBECKER and Steve Grant were named our two co-captains at the end of the season," Pohlman says. "I think they gave the team a lot of leadership, something that we needed. Wulbecker and Randy Cordova were named our Most Valuable Players.

"Wulbecker," he explained, "led the team in RBI's and stolen bases and home runs What was lacking on our team more than anything else was speed, but Mike made 12 of our 28 stolen bases and hit two homers In the league he had eight RBI's. He hit over .250, too, so he was one base quite a bit."

Cordova was the guts of the mound staff and almost single-handedly pitched Prospect into the Maine South Regional finals He posted a victory over Forest View in the first round of the district, helped save the win over Arlington in the district title game, and then he mowed down Glenbrook South in the first round of the regional tourney On top of that, the side-arming right-hander came in for a relief stint in the regional championship game and tossed three-hit ball for four and 1/3 innings

ON THE YEAR, Cordova posted a 2.14 earned run average, tossing in a dozen games, claimed 46 strikeouts in 62 innings, walked only 20 opponents and gave up a minimal 19 earned runs.

"When Randy had enough rest between games," Pohlman says, "he had one of the nicest moving pitches in the league He could put his fast ball right over the plate, low so it was hard to hit. I'm sure he had as fast a fast ball as anyone around — it was sneaky fast."

Considering co-captain Grant, Pohlman believed that the fireplug second baseman could have had a better year "He missed the first few games of the season when he went to Texas, but he came around towards the end of the season and ended up with six stolen bases."

ALSO EARNING particular mention from Pohlman were first baseman Sandy Quillen and sophomore shortstop Dave Lundstedt. "Sandy did a real good job for us this year, all I could ask and maybe even more. He came back from a shoulder separation in wrestling and really started hitting the ball at the end of the season. Dave did a real respectable job for a soph. Oh, he made a few sophomore mistakes, but he did have the fourth best batting average on the team."

And there were other Knights who had a great part in the success of the last half of the season: Jeff Suss, who led the team in batting with a .333 mark in the MSL to make all-conference, and outfielders Dave Somers and Mike Needleman, both turning poor beginnings into good years, just as the team did.

ON THE MOUND there were Jones and Schlais, who claimed 2-0 and 2-1 marks, respectively, to complement Cordova's 4-4 record, and Ron Dolejs who posted a 2-6 record this year, and Mike Berdell with an 0-2 record

And then there was Greg Sumner, who started the year with a red-hot 3-3 against St. Viator but then was injured and consequently saw little more action.

Some of these Knights will be coming back next year to play another season under Coach Pohlman, including Jones, Schlais, Lundstedt, Sumner and Berdell "From there on, though," says the coach, "we'll have to develop the talent through our summer program We'll be building talent for next year."

And then Coach Pohlman will see if he can work a little more magic on his charges — only this time he hopes to start a little earlier in the season.

BOB RITTHALER, a picture of determination, hits the finish line for the Lancers in Saturday's conference track meet. Ritthaler's teammate, Jim Mallory, won the 880 for Lake Park, but Crown won the meet rather handily with 71 points to 51 for second-place Wheaton North.

All-Star Question: Where's Romme?

Fenton and Lake Park both placed a pair of performers on the Tri-County All-Conference team chosen Tuesday night, but the big surprise was the man who didn't make it — Marty Romme.

An all-conference choice a year ago, Romme pitched 44 innings in conference competition this year, permitting just 18 hits and seven earned runs. He struck out 69, walked 11, and compiled an excellent 1.11 earned run average. Lack of offensive support held his record to 3-3.

Robbie Seeds of Mundelein, Wally Gawaluch of Ridgewood, and Chris Petersen of Lake Park were selected as the all-conference mound corps, and Lancer coach Norb Wesolowski says he doesn't really understand it.

"This whole thing is kind of a cut-throat operation as far as I'm concerned. I told these guys that I think the players ought to do the voting because the coaches pass votes.

"Each coach had three votes for pitchers. Well, say you want your kid to make it. You can't vote for him, but you vote for somebody not so good so your kid can possibly get it.

"Sometimes the best pitcher isn't picked."

Fenton coach Jim Monahan expressed his disappointment over the voting: "Marty didn't have as good a record as some of the others, but as far as innings pitched, and strike-outs, and earned runs, I thought he had a better record."

Petersen and Romme both got four votes, and on the third round of a vote-off Petersen finally won it.

Romme received honorable mention as did Ken Desmaretz of Elmwood Park and Mike Korkosz of Wheaton North.

Lake Park's other selection was first baseman Tim Schaper. Vic Tomczak and Tom Milostan received honorable mention for an infield spot and Faust DeLazzer honorable mention for the outfield.

Fenton players honored were John Geils in the infield and Gary Thorsen in the outfield. Geils received the most votes of any infielder nominated.

Dave Fitzpatrick was an honorable mention choice at first, along with Wheaton North's Bill Borgeson.

Catchers on the all-conference squad were Crown's Rick Waters and Mundelein's Donn Majercik, with Wheaton North's Glen Englram getting honorable mention.

Infielders, along with Geils, were Dan Sanders of Mundelein, Jim Turkington of Mundelein, and Harold Lustgarten of Elmwood Park.

In the outfield, it was Thorsen, Elmwood Park's Gary Isakson, Crown's Frank VanMilligen, and Mundelein's Ron Wiscons. DeLazzer lost the final outfield spot to Wiscons in a vote-off.

CURIOUS?

You probably aren't as inquisitive as the fellow above, but did you ever wonder just how many classified ads are placed every year in Paddock Publications?

Last year the total was 200,000! That's a lot of votes of confidence in the pulling power of Paddock Want Ads.

They range from help wanted to business services . . . from lost and found notices to apartments for rent. Regardless of their categories, they were placed in Paddock Publications for one reason: people know that Paddock Want Ads bring results. If you're curious whether Want Ads can solve YOUR problem, just dial 394-2400. Paddock Publications

McDonald's

IS LOOKING FOR A MAN
WHO CAN RUN A $500,000 BUSINESS...

We're looking for man who can take complete charge of a McDonald's restaurant . . . and who'd like the responsibility that goes with it without investing a dime.

IF YOU ARE A CERTAIN KIND OF GUY WHO CAN:

* take charge and get things done;
* direct, motivate, and provide incentive to his employees;
* cope with a wide range of activities and varying conditions;
* create when situations demand imagination.

Then there's a place for you in the exciting field of fast food service management. Food experience is not necessary. We want a man who can get things done and act like he owns the place. If you want to be with a leader in the field, and move up the challenging ladder of management just look at the facts:

1. You'll work in a local franchise store at a starting salary ranging from $580 to $650 per month.
2. You can advance to manager within one year and earn a potential salary up to $10,000.
3. You will receive such company paid benefits as medical and life insurance, paid vacation, and regular raises.
4. North and Northwest suburban locations.

One of the very best ways you can get a new baby started in life is by buying him or her a U S Savings Bond. And once you're started, keep on with it. As the baby grows, the Bonds you keep buying will grow, too. When the baby is ready for college, the Bonds will be ready to help pay for college.

NOW—Higher Rates!

Savings Bonds now pay 4.25% when held to maturity—and Freedom Shares (sold in combination with E Bonds) pay a full 5%. The extra interest will be added as a bonus at maturity.

And now you can buy the Bond/Freedom Share combination any time—no monthly commitment necessary. Get the facts where you work or bank.

...No drop-out problems here!

We can't really say that Northwest Suburban Children love school but we do know that it's probably the most pleasant atmosphere for educational development in the country.

The superb school system is nationally famous for facility as well as teaching standards... one of the many reasons why the Great Northwest Suburbs is one of the nation's most desirable living areas.

...And when school is out, there are plenty of healthful, spacious recreation facilities to make the children (and parents) happy to live in the Northwest Suburbs.

Goldblatt Plans New Home Center

Speaking to shareholders at a recent meeting in ty Goldblatt Bros., Inc., headquarters store in Chicago, Louis Goldblatt, president and chief executive officer of the firm, stated that the company plans to open its third home center in 1970 in Mount Prospect.

Like the first home center in Scottsdale and the second one, to be opened in Downers Grove later this year, the store will be devoted exclusively to home furnishings and related wares.

"The success of our first home center exceeded expectations," said Goldblatt. "The store showed a profit in its first year of operations and increased its profits in the succeeding year."

Goldblatt noted that $8.9 million was spent in the last two years on land, buildings, fixtures and equipment to enhance the company's profitability.

He reported the firm's fifth consecutive year of record sales and earnings.

Shareholders approved a 2-for-1 split of outstanding common shares, an increase in common stock to 5 million shares from 3 million, and authorized the issuance of 500,000 preferred shares.

Restaurant Renovation

Steak and lobster will be featured at the Seven Countries Restaurant, 61 N. Milwaukee, Wheeling, when it reopens in August under new management and with a new name.

Don Roth, owner of the Blackhawk Restaurant in Chicago, bought the concern from Joseph Roseram of Seven Countries, Inc. He has not yet chosen the new name of the restaurant.

The restaurant, formerly featuring the cuisine of several countries, is now closed for remodeling. An open-hearth char-broiler will be added to the establishment, as well as a salad bar.

"The whole style will be changed," said Roth. "The front will be redone and the interior opened into larger rooms." He plans seating for 115 people in the dining area and 60 people in the bar and waiting areas.

Levitt Appointee Has New Position

Lorraine Tischer

Heading the bookkeeping department at the new Northwest Trust and Savings Bank, opening in Arlington Heights in June, will be Miss Lorraine Tischer, named as one of two assistant cashiers at the bank.

She joined the Mount Prospect State Bank in 1952 as a file clerk and later worked in the bookkeeping, general bookkeeping and data processing departments.

Miss Tischer looks forward to a variety of responsibilities when the new bank opens, and noted that "the bank will be Filling a definite need on the south side of Arlington Heights."

A resident of Arlington Heights for almost 34 years, she lives at 413 W. Campbell.

Possible Railroad Merger

Curtiss E. Crippen, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad, stated recently that the merger of the Milwaukee Road and Chicago and North Western Railway could become effective as early as July 1, 1970.

Speaking at the annual stockholders meeting of the Milwaukee Road, he outlined recent developments in the case and pointed to the possible timetable it could follow in the months ahead.

"The Interstate Commerce Commission hearing examiner issued a recommended report Dec. 18, 1968, in which approval of the merger, subject to certain conditions, was recommended," Crippen said. He explained that exceptions to that report were filed by parties of interest by March 31 of this year and that replies to the exceptions were made by May 1.

"We are hopeful," he stated, "that the Commission will set the case for oral argument prior to the August recess. If this is done, it is possible that the full Commission would render a decision by the end of the year. If the full Commission acts by the end of the year or during the early part of 1970, it is conceivable that the effective date of the merger could be as early as July 1, 1970."

Crippen reviewed briefly the status of other merger proposals in which the Milwaukee Road has a major interest. These include the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Burlington case, the Union Pacific - Rock Island case, the Norfolk and Western - Chesapeake and Ohio proposal, and the Louisville and Nashville - Monon case.

President Crippen reviewed the company's performance in 1968, pointing out that consolidated net income for the year reached $6,036,171 compared with $5,066,542 in 1967.

Among the factors listed by Crippen as being "on the brighter side as we meet the challenges of 1969" were freight rate increases authorized in 1968 and those sought for 1969; the prospect of a heavy volume movement of grain now stored in the railroad's territory; the expectation that lumber and other building construction material will move in increased volume; and that the railroad will experience continued growth in piggyback traffic and in the movement of new automobiles and trucks.

Rynes Named Director Of Systems for CUC

John Rynes of Mount Prospect, has been appointed project director of commercial systems for CUC's Chicago office.

Before joining CUC in September 1964, he was a computer programmer with the University of Wisconsin, and was responsible for application programs in the university business office. Prior to his present appointment he was director of corporate data processing at CUC's corporate office.

Rynes received a B.S. degree in mathematics from the University of Wisconsin.

Bowens Will Assume Teletype Sales Post

Joseph F. Bownes, 2308 Willow Lane, Rolling Meadows, has been promoted to Central Regional sales manager at Teletype Corp. in Skokie.

He joined Teletype as a staff trainee in 1956, became a customer service analyst in 1959 and was advanced to contract specialist two years later. In 1964 he was promoted to supervisor of the equipment sales service section.

Bowens earned his BS degree in management from Loyola University in 1954. He is a member of Delta Sigma Pi, a professional business administration fraternity, and is also active in the Rolling Meadows Boys Baseball League.

Newly Appointed Chain President

Louis Wynn has been named president of Eagle Clothes' Benson & Rixon Corp., an 11-store chain of men's apparel wear in the Chicago area, including a store in the Randhurst Center, Mount Prospect.

The appointment was recently made public by Stanley Goldman, president of Eagle Clothes, Inc. Goldman also announced that Edward Freeman, vice president of Benson & Rixon, has been made executive vice president of the specialty shop chain.

Wynn was formerly president of Broadstreet's, New York, since 1967. Previously he had been head of Broadstreet's, Chicago, for 10 years. He has been in the men's wear business for 32 years.

Wynn succeeds Ben B. Gordon, as head of the Benson & Rixon stores. Gordon is now president of Gasman's, a Chicago men's apparel store partially owned by Eagle Clothes.

Eagle Clothes, founded in 1919, manufactures men's suits, topcoats, overcoats, sportcoats and slacks.

The company recently formed a new corporate retail division to coordinate supervision of its chain of men's apparel stores which has grown from 14 stores in 1965 to a present total of 47 stores.

The company's clothes are sold throughout the United States under brand names including Eagle, Witty Brothers, M'sieur Slacks, Cardinal Clothes, Alfred of New York, and Barry-Walt.

A publicly owned corporation, the common stock of Eagle Clothes is listed on the American Stock Exchange.

Culligan Has Italian Site

Harold F. Werhane, president of Culligan Inc., including a Mount Prospect office, recently announced that Culligan has acquired 70 per cent control of the manufacturing and distribution facilities of Culligan Italiana S.p.A., with headquarters in Bologna, Italy.

IMPERIAL 400 MOTELS
AT CHICAGO'S O'HARE AIRPORT
(312) 296-4471
10300 HIGGINS
ROSEMONT, ILLINOIS

His acquisition will provide Culligan with its second manufacturing and distribution facility in Europe, the first of which was established in Diegem, Belgium (a suburb of Brussels) in 1964.

The experience of Culligan Italiana S.p.A. in industrial water conditioning equipment, large swimming pool water treatment equipment and deionization will add both marketing and product capabilities to the Culligan system, according to Werhane.

"The availability of a second European distribution point in Italy will be a definite asset in supplying water treatment equipment to the fast growing Culligan market surrounding the Mediterranean, particularly the Middle East and North African areas," he continued.

The present management of Culligan Italiana S.p.A. will be retained and the firm will continue to be responsible for Italian sales and distribution.

New Bank Cashier

Assuming the post of cashier at the new Northwest Trust and Savings Bank, to open in June in Arlington Heights, is Wilfred (Fred) C. Wolf.

He formerly served as assistant cashier at the First National Bank of Lake Forest, where he was in charge of the installation of a new computer system. He was previously employed at the Cicero State bank in the loan and discount department.

He received a bachelor of arts degree in business administration from the University of Denver. He is on the staff of the American Institute of Banking.

Wolf recently moved from Lake Forest to Elk Grove Village with his wife and three children.

Arlington Leads Again

Arlington Heights has retained its lead in number of homes sold in the northwest suburbs in the St. Paul Federal Savings and Loan Assn. report on residential sales in April. The municipality shows a total of 156 homes sold during February, March and April at a dollar volume of $5,270,000, as opposed to a cumulative total of 106 homes sold for $3,514,000 in February and March.

Statistics in this major residential real estate study list Des Plaines and Mount Prospect as second and third towns in volume of homes sold during the three month period, with 114 and 102 sales reported respectively. Streamwood moved from second place in February and March to fourth in April.

Other villages in the area listed in order of number of homes sold during February, March and April are: Streamwood — 98; Northbrook — 92; Elk Grove Village — 88; Palatine — 73; Skokie — 69; Park Ridge — 53; Schaumburg — 42; Wheeling — 42; Buffalo Grove — 34; Hoffman Estates — 33; Morton Grove — 30; Prospect Heights — 24; Hanover Park — 24; Rolling Meadows — 20; Barrington — 19; Lincolnwood — 15; Hanover — 5; and Inverness with 4.

Data on homes and apartments is being prepared by St. Paul Federal Savings and Loan Assn. as a monthly public service. Figures are given on volume of sales, dollar value and average selling prices of homes. Each category in the report covers all of Cook County and is grouped according to individual municipality as well as by townships within the city of Chicago.

Faustin A. Pipal, president of the Chicago area's fifth largest savings and loan association, said the report gives the general public and the real estate profession an insight into residential real estate activity in Cook County they have never had before.

In the northwest suburban area, Lincolnwood had the highest average selling price per home of $43,500, followed by Barrington with $39,500 and Inverness with $36,800. Average selling price per home for the entire north suburban area including the north suburban municipalities is $35,100 for the months of February, March and April. Average selling price of homes in Chicago's north side was $28,900 and for all of Cook County $28,200.

Motel Zoning Is Deferred

Although Rolling Meadows City council was impressed with plans for a 2,000-room motel coming to the city a final decision about granting rezoning of the land was deferred

Because a report from the special zoning commission's public hearing was not available, most aldermen wanted to review detailed planssof the project before granting the necessary zoning.

HE SAID THE firm believes there's a definite need for 2,000 more motel rooms in the area and is confident of the proposed motel's success.

The first stage includes 600 rooms in a rambling three-story building, a dining room, gift shops, an indoor-outdoor swimming pool, and cabaret-type cocktail lounge.

In addition to 400 more rooms, a large ballroom with a capacity for 1,400 people is included in the second phase of construction.

A 20-story high-rise with 1,000 rooms would be built as the third stage of the project, but a height variation from the local zoning board of appeals will be needed before construction can begin.

The total project is estimated to cost more than $50 million, according to Royal Coach representatives. The motel chain currently operates several similar facilities in Texas.

Proposed for a site on Algonquin Road just east of the tollway, the Royal Coach Motor Inn would be built in three stages.

Representatives from the motel chain said construction would begin as soon as the council approves rezoning and the total project could be completed in about five years.

"Rolling Meadows is in the heart of one of the most prosperous areas of Metropolitan Chicago and we want to be a part of it," explained Walter Lesak, attorney for Royal Coach.

Chemplex Names Beals Engineering Manager

Richard N. Beals

Richard N. Beals of Palatine, has been promoted to manager of engineering for the Chemplex Co. in Rolling Meadows. In his new position, he will be responsible for the technical execution of all engineering and construction projects.

He joined Chemplex in 1966 as process engineer, and prior to that he was a process engineer with Celanese Corp. of America in Houston, Tex.

Beals holds a B.Ch.E. degree from Ohio State University where he was a member of Tau Beta Pi, the national engineering honorary fraternity.

Goldblatt Bros. Lists Promotions

Louis Goldblatt, president and chief executive officer of Goldblatt Bros., Inc., Midwest department store chain, recently announced the promotion of Herman G. Buckley to the position of general manager of the company.

Buckley is a vice president and has served the company for the past 20 years as director of operations, director of stores, and in his most recent assignment, director of merchandising.

Goldblatt announced that John Vlad, a vice president, will become director of merchandising. Vlad has been with the company since 1946 and served in various areas of its operations. His most recent position was that of director of stores.

Harold A. Rosen, formerly district store supervisor, succeeds John Vlad as director of stores, Goldblatt said. Rosen has been district store supervisor since 1967 and has been associated with the firm since 1954.

A local Goldblatt Bros. store is in the Mount Prospect Plaza, Mount Prospect.

Partridge Pointe Now Open

If you like the idea of having everything on one floor, you'll like the Wildwood model in the new Partridge Pointe community of west suburban Carol Stream. Built by the Boise Cascade Building Co. of Los Angeles, Calif., the Wildwood is a contemporary ranch home with three bedrooms, two baths and 1,430 square feet of living space. It is priced at $27,990 which includes a home site of at least 10,000 square feet.

The exterior is Insulite hardboard avocado siding which is guaranteed against blistering, peeling, splitting, splintering, cracking, warping and denting. The model has cerna blend colonial brick and black asphalt shingled roof with two-feet overhang. Accents include charred taupe brown louvered shutters on either side of the front door, sandstone beige window trim, avocado entry door and sandstone being two-car garage door.

The entry foyer features off-white vinyl tile on the floor, a guest closet and a shimmering prismatic global chandelier suspended from the ceiling on a brass chain.

To the right of the foyer is the form living room which measures 15 feet 11 inches by 16 feet 10 inches and features a floor-based bay window and two-toned avocado wall-to-wall shag carpeting which is carried throughout the dining room, master bedroom, halls and adjoining closets. Behind the living room is the dining area.

On one side of the dining room is the breakfast bar and kitchen. On the other side is the finished family room. There are no walls that break up the traffic pattern in this area so that mother can watch her children in the family room while she is in the kitchen.

The dining room is 10 feet by 10 feet three inches and features a set of double-paned sliding glass patio doors and screens and a swirled clear crystal chandelier which hangs from a polished brass chain over the dining table. A breakfast bar or serving bar separates the dining room from the kitchen.

The country kitchen, 10 feet three inches by 10 feet six inches, has avocado and white vinyl tile on the floor, Wexford Irish linen patterned Formica countertops, avocado appliances and provincial natural birch cabinets with inlaid panels and copper hardware and door pulls. Appliances include an automatic waste disposer, built-in dishwasher, oven and range and built-in exhaust hood. A window above the double-unit stainless steel sink overlooks the backyard.

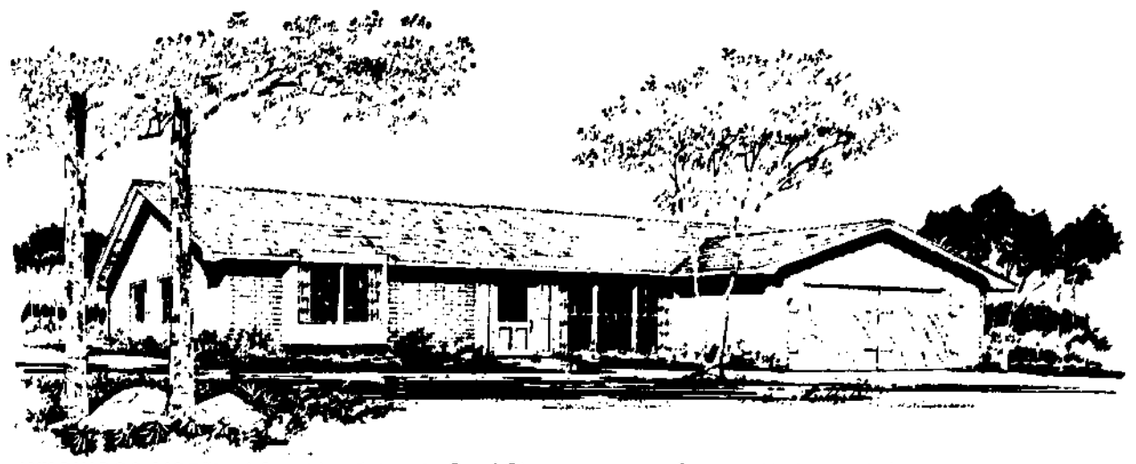
To the left of the dining room is the finished family room which measures 14 feet four inches by 16 feet. This room is hidden away from the living room so that parents can have formal entertaining in the living room and teenagers in the family room at the same time without disturbing each other. The family room has an optional fireplace, a storage closet, garage door entrance and durable vinyl tile on the floor.

To the left of the foyer is the sleeping area of the Wildwood. Off the hall from the foyer to the kitchen is the linen closet, the utility area equipped for washer and dryer and the master bedroom suite. The suite measures 12 feet 4 inches by 13 feet two inches and has a double-closeted dressing room and private bath. The bath features avocado vinyl tile on the floor, gold and white ceramic tile around the vanity tops with protective back-splash shower area, translucent glass shower cabinet with side lighting.

The sleeping area also includes two other front bedrooms, measuring 9 feet by 11 feet 5 inches and 10 feet by 10 feet 5 inches, and the family bath. Each bedroom has a shadow-box window with a window seat. The family bath has avocado and white vinyl tile on the floor, light avocado ceramic tile around the tub, a shower head, light avocado streaked white cultured marble vanity top with back-splash panel and plate-glass mirrored medicine cabinet with side lighting. All baths feature a single-action dial water faucet.

The Wildwood also features an asphalt driveway and an exterior gas post lantern to light the walk, as well as a two-car garage.

Partridge Pointe is open daly, including Sundays, from 11 to 8 and Saturdays, until 6 p.m. To see the Wildwood, take the Eisenhower Expressway west to North Avenue. Turn west on North Ave. and north on Gary Ave. The four furnished models are on the west side of Gary.



WILDWOOD MODEL of Partridge Pointe in Carol Stream is a ranch home with three bedrooms, two baths, formal living room and dining rom, country kitchen and two-car garage. Country kitchen includes a double-unit stainless steel sink, waste disposer, oven and range, exhaust hood and natural wood cabinets.

Buy Townhouse

George N. Goldman, representing an investors group, has purchased a 48 unit townhouse located at 9401-71 Sumac Road, Des Plaines, at a reported sales price of $[illegible].

The units are one-story buildings located just west of the Golf Mill Shopping Center.

Interim financing was provided by the Barrington State Bank, Barrington. Attorney for the buyer was Allan Kanter; the seller was represented by Michael Gilbert. Leslie Korman of the Gerald H. Lane Co. was the sole real estate broker involved in the transaction.

This marks the fifth time within the last year that Goldman and Korman have cooperated in making investment properties a reality for a large number of professionals and self employed investors.

K-Mart Financed

Luke Thornton, vice president of Dovenmuehle Inc., Chicago mortgage banking firm, has announced a mortgage transaction in the amount of $1,725,000 to finance a K Mart Discount Store to be constructed at the southwest corner of Lake Street and Lombard Road, Addison.

The $2,300,000 project, due for completion in mid 1970 will consist of a one-story air-conditioned Kresge K-Mart store containing 90,779 square feet of space and a K Mart food store with 22,167 square feet. There will also be a garden shop with 4,000 square feet and parking facilities for 870 cars.

The complex, under the supervision of Jensen and Jensen, architects, is being built on a parcel of land containing 476,500 square feet. Sponsor of the project is the Charles E. Schrager Co. The term of the mortgage is for 24 years at an interest rate of 7½ per cent.

SHADY TREES line the way to the Windings of Ferson being developed by the Branigar Organization, Medinah. Creek, a new community of home sites near St. Charles

Country Living, Urban Convenience

"Conservation of natural beauty is a prime objective of our new development near St. Charles, 'The Windings of Ferson Creek,'" said Maynard O. Hestrom, vice president of the Branigar Organization, Medinah, the developing company.

"We believe that conservation of natural terrain and scenery is imperative in creating new homesites which will retain their value and grow in future desirability," Hestrom said. "This has been neglected in the past. Too often, bulldozers have knocked down irreplaceable trees and remade natural contours while building access roads and streets." According to Hestrom, The Windings will preserve the trees, shrubbery and rolling terrain which the site offered originally.

Nothing in the way of urban convenience need be sacrificed by conserving the landscape, according to Hestrom. Water, sewers and electric utilities are all underground at The Windings.

"Underground utilities are a 'plus value' from every aspect," Hestrom said. "Besides the fact that they do not mar the landscape, they are also protected from the wind and ice storms which often damage them and interfere with normal service."

The "greenbelt" design of The Windings provides open areas for hiking and horseback riding, the developer notes.

"We believe that The Windings of Ferson Creek will attract families who enjoy country living but want urban conveniences and who are looking for homesites where recreational facilities are close at hand. The use of these facilities will, of course, be limited to the people who own homesites in the development," Hestrom said. "We can offer fishing in the two mini-lakes, tennis, horseback riding, hiking and swimming in a big pool with adjacen tcabana rooms in addition to a unique community clubhouse." Hestrom also announced a nature trail at the site which anyone may walk without obligation.

Zenith Buys Nearby Site

Zenith Radio Corp. has acquired a 283-acre tract of land in Northfield Township as a site for a new expanded research and engineering center.

The major portion of the tract, purchased from Tempel Steel Co., Chicago, is a 180-acre triangle, bounded generally by the Tri-state Tollroad, Milwaukee Ave. and the Chicago and North Western Railway tracks, with the remaining acreage adjoining it.

Sam Kaplan, Zenith president, said that the company plans to consolidate its research and engineering laboratories and certain related operations at this site over a period of years.

Kaplan said that at present the company is studying various proposals for the technical center, which calls for an initial laboratory facility with site planning for expansion as required.

At present, Zenith's area research and engineering laboratories are located in Chicago, Evanston, Niles, Melrose Park and the company is completing construction of a new microcircuit facility at 1851 Arthur Street in Elk Grove Village. The company also has laboratories in Menlo Park, Calif. and in London, England.

Ordinance No. 1016

(An Ordinance Establishing Regulations Relative to Private Swimming Pools)

WHEREAS, the Wheeling Zoning Board of Appeals, pursuant to a request of the corporate authorities, held public hearings, after due notice by publication, pursuant to the applicable provisions of the Illinois Municipal Code and Village ordinances to consider amending the Wheeling Building Code, Chapter 15, of the Wheeling Municipal Code, and

WHEREAS, the Wheeling Zoning Board of Appeals has submitted a written report to the corporate authorities recommending that regulations relative to private swimming pools be adopted, and

WHEREAS, the corporate authorities deem it to be in the best interest, safety, health, comfort and welfare of its citizenry that the Wheeling Municipal Code be amended to establish regulations relative to private swimming pools,

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED by the President and Board of Trustees, of the Village of Wheeling, County of Cook and State of Illinois, as follows:

SECTION A.

That Title 15 of the Wheeling Municipal Code be and the same is hereby amended by adding thereto Chapter 15.30, which shall read as follows:

CHAPTER 15.30 SWIMMING POOLS

Section 15.30.010 Compliance Required. As defined in this Chapter, every swimming pool constructed, installed and maintained hereinafter shall comply with all applicable provisions of this Code and the 1965 addition, as amended, of the Building Code of the Building Officials Conference of America; provided, however, that the regulations in this Chapter shall not be applicable to any such pool having at every point a depth of less than twenty-four (24) inches deep; provided further that portable pools shall be regulated solely by the specific requirements set out in Section 15.30.010 hereafter; and provided further, any private swimming pool, portable or permanent, and any accessory building constructed in connection therewith including fences, lawfully established and existing on the effective date of this Ordinance, as evidenced by a Certificate of Registration, on forms to be furnished by the Village, filed in the Office of the Village Clerk within thirty (30) days of the effective date of this Ordinance, which does not conform to all of the provisions of this Ordinance, shall not be subject to the applicable provisions of this Ordinance, except that any nonconforming use of land or structure or pool which has ceased by discontinuance or abandonment for a period of one year, shall thereafter conform to the provisions of this Ordinance; provided further that all pools existing on the effective date of this ordinance which do not have fences shall comply with the provisions of Section 15.30.050. The term "abandonment" or "discontinuance" shall not be construed to include a period in which a portable pool is not erected for any reason.

Section 15.30.020 Location

(a) Private residential swimming pools shall be permitted in all residential areas.

(b) No pool or appurtenance shall be permitted in the front yard.

(c) No pool shall be maintained or used for or by any person except the owner or tenant of the property on which the pool is located, the members of his household and guests. No pool shall be used for the purpose of profit, nor in connection with any businesses operated for profit, nor for the members of any non-profit club or organization or association.

Section 15.30.030 Permit Required.

(a) It shall be unlawful to proceed with the construction and installation of any swimming pool and appurtenances within the Village of Wheeling unless permits therefor shall have first been obtained from the Director of Building and Zoning.

(b) No permit for swimming pools, other than indoor swimming pools, shall be issued until application for same has been made in the form provided by the Department of Building and Zoning.

(c) The fee for a permit for the erection or construction of a swimming pool shall be five dollars ($5.00).

Section 15.30.040 Drawings, plans and permits.

(a) All drawings and plans for the construction, installation, enlargement or alteration of any swimming pool and appurtenances for which a permit is required shall first be presented to the Director of Building and Zoning for examination and approval as to proper location, construction and use.

(b) All distances and dimensions shall be accurately figured and drawings made explicit and complete, showing the lot lines, and including information pertaining to the pool, walk and fence construction, water supply system, drainage and water disposal systems, and all appurtenances pertaining to the swimming pool. Detail plans and vertical elevations shall also be provided in accordance with the Building Code of the Village of Wheeling.

(c) All swimming pools, appurtenances, water supply and drainage systems shall be constructed in conformity with approved plans. If any deviation from such plans is desired, a supplementary plan covering that portion of the work involved shall be filed for approval and shall conform to the provisions of this Ordinance.

Section 15.30.050 Fences.

(a) All pools shall be enclosed on all sides by a fence, the principal building or an accessory building or other approved enclosure.

(b) Fences and gates shall be a minimum of four (4) feet in height and conform to the Wheeling Fence Ordinance. All fence openings or points of entry to the pool area shall be equipped with gates, which gates shall be equipped with self-closing and self-latching devices placed at the top of the gate and made inaccessible to small children. In the event such pool has a raised deck, all points of entry thereto shall be equipped with self-closing and self-latching devices placed at the top and made inaccessible to small children.

(c) The fence and gates shall be a minimum of four (4) feet in height above the walk grade level and shall conform to the Wheeling Fence Ordinance.

Section 15.30.060 Steps or Ladders.

(a) Two or more means of egress in the form of steps or ladders shall be provided for all excavated, indoor or raised deck type swimming pools. At least one such means of egress shall be located on a side of the pool at both the deep and shallow end of the pool. Steps and ladders shall have a handrail on both sides.

(b) Pools other than those described in paragraph (a) above need not have but one or more means of egress in the form of steps or ladders.

Section 15.30.070 Water Supply.

No source of water other than that secured from the Village of Wheeling water distribution system shall be used in any swimming pool, unless such other source shall have been and continues to be tested and found to be equal to the State of Illinois drinking water standards.

Section 15.30.080 Inlets.

(a) Swimming pool water recirculation system inlets shall be located so as to produce as far as possible uniform circulation of water throughout the pool without the existence of dead spots and to carry pool bottom deposits to the outlets, and shall discharge at a minimum depth of ten (10) inches below the pool overflow level. A minimum of one (1) recirculation system shall be provided for every six hundred fifteen (615) square feet of surface area of the pool.

(b) Said pools shall be equipped with suitable facilities for adding make-up water as needed. There shall be no physical connection between the water supply line and the pool system. If the make-up water is added directly to the pool, the outlet shall be at least six (6) inches above the upper rim of the pool. If the make-up water line discharges to a surge or balancing tank, the point of discharge shall be at least six (6) inches above the rim of the tank. If a hose connection from a sill cock or other plumbing fixture is to be used for supplying make-up water, then an approved vacuum breaker shall be installed between the sill cock or control valve at the fixture and the hose connection. The vacuum breaker shall be installed at a height of not less than seven (7) feet six (6) inches above the floor, platform or ground upon which a person would stand when operating the sill cock or control valve.

(c) The systems supplying recirculated water and make-up water to the said pool shall be constructed in conformance with the Wheeling Municipal Code, 15.30.090 as amended.

Section 15.30.090 Outlets.

(a) In swimming pools, thirty (30) feet in width or less, water recirculation system outlets shall be located so as to provide at least one (1) outlet at the deepest point in the pool. If the pool width is more than thirty (30) feet, multiple outlets shall be provided and spaced not more than thirty (30) feet apart, nor closer than four (4) feet to any wall. All pool drain outlets shall be equipped with gratings having an area of opening not less than four (4) times the cross-sectional area of the outlet pipe. The gratings shall be of such design so they cannot be readily removable by bathers and will not injure bathers' fingers. One outlet shall be provided for each eight hundred (800) square feet of surface area.

(b) Said pools shall be equipped with facilities for completely emptying the pool and the discharge of the pool water shall be at a rate not exceeding two hundred fifty (250) gallons per minute.

Section 15.30.100 Discharge and/or Drainage.

Water drained from the pool shall not be discharged to the sanitary sewer system, nor shall the water be discharged into the storm water sewer system during periods of rains or storms.

Section 15.30.110 Recirculation Pools.

All swimming pools shall be of the recirculation type in which circulation of water is maintained through the pool by pumps; the water drawn from the pool being clarified and disinfected before being returned to the pool.

Section 15.30.120 Recirculation System and Appurtenances of Pools.

(a) Swimming pool recirculation systems shall consist of pumping equipment, hair and lint catcher, filters, together with the necessary pipe connections to the pool inlets, the outlets, facilities and pipe connections necessary for backwashing filters, and facilities and equipment for disinfecting the pool water.

(b) Every pool shall have a recirculating system with an hourly capacity equal to the pool volume divided by eleven (11).

(c) The recirculation system pump shall have sufficient capacity to discharge the volume of water required for an eleven (11) hour turnover of the said pool against the maximum head of the recirculating system.

(d) The pump used for backwashing filters under this Section shall have a sufficient capacity to provide a filter backwash rate of at least twelve (12) gallons per minute per square foot of filter area.

(e) A hair and lint catcher or strainer shall be installed on the suction side of the said circulation pump to prevent hair, lint and other extraneous matter from reaching the pump and filters. Hair and lint catchers shall be so designed that they can be easily dismantled for cleaning and inspection and shall be so located as to be easily accessible for cleaning. The design features shall be as follows: Water passes through the strainer from the outside; the strainer is made of non-corrosive material; the width or diameter of strainer opening is not more than one-eighth (1/8) inch; the area of the strainer opening shall be at least five (5) times the cross sectional area of the inlet pipe to the strainer.

(f) Said recirculating systems shall contain rapid pressure filters. Sufficient filter area shall be provided to filter the entire contents of the pool in eighteen (18) hours at a rate of not more than three (3) gallons per square foot of filter area per minute. The filter backwashing facilities shall be sufficient to backwash at a rate of twelve (12) gallons per minute per square foot of filter area. All backwash water and effluents shall be discharged through an indirect connection. Pressure filters shall be equipped with readily accessible air relief valves, loss of head or pressure gauges on the inlet and outlet pipes, and an access head or hole large enough to permit inspection, maintenance and repair work. Sight glasses that can be easily removed for cleaning shall be provided in the effluent line from the filter units.

(g) Equipment shall be provided for the disinfection of all pool water. Any disinfection method using materials other than chlorine compounds shall be subject to the approval of the Village Health Inspector. Disinfection equipment installed for the use of chlorine compounds shall have sufficient capacity to maintain a minimum free chlorine residual of 0.5 parts per million. The disinfectant shall be introduced into the recirculation system ahead of the filters.

Section 15.30.130 Gaseous Chlorination Prohibited.

Gaseous chlorination systems shall not be made use of as a disinfection method for any pool water.

Section 15.30.140 Electrical Requirements.

(a) All electrical installations provided for, installed and used in conjunction with swimming pools shall be in conformance with the Building Code of the Village of Wheeling.

(b) No current carrying conductors or other lines or wires shall cross swimming pools, either overhead or underground. In addition to the aforementioned requirements, no exposed current carrying electrical conductors shall cross within fifteen (15) feet of the said pools.

(c) All metal fences, enclosures or railings near or adjacent to swimming pools which may become electrically alive as a result of contact with broken overhead conductors, or from any other cause, shall be effectively grounded.

(d) All metal parts of pools such as handrails, grab bars, drains, skimmers and pool walls and floors when of metal shall be effectively grounded.

(e) Provisions shall be made for adequate lighting of the pool area and water at night. Lights shall be so arranged and shaded as to reflect light away from the adjacent premises.

Section 15.30.150 Safety Precautions.

(a) No diving board or platform more than three (3) feet above water level shall be installed for use in connection within any private residential swimming pool.

(b) Every pool shall be equipped with at least one throwing ring buoy not more than fifteen inches in diameter and having enough of 3/16 inch Manila rope attached to reach the farthest point of the pool. Also provide one light strong pole with blunt ends and not less than twelve feet in length.

(c) A responsible swimmer shall be present at all times that a pool is in use.

(d) Depth Marking. The pool shall be marked to show clearly the depths of the deep and shallow ends of the pool or a safety line supported by buoys shall be provided two (2) feet on the shallow side of any sudden break in the slope of the bottom to deep water. The attachment points for the line shall be recessed.

Section 15.30.160 Portable Pool Regulations.

(a) Portable pools, as defined within this Chapter, shall be permitted only in the single-family zoned districts of the Village of Wheeling provided the requirements of this Section are adhered to.

(b) It shall be unlawful to proceed with the installation of a portable pool and appurtenances within the Village of Wheeling unless a permit therefor shall have been first obtained from the Director of Building and Zoning. Said permit shall be issued upon compliance with the requirements of this Chapter and the payment two dollars ($2.00).

(c) All portable swimming pools shall be completely enclosed by a fence, which fence shall meet the requirements as set out under Section 15.30.050 of this Chapter.

(d) No source of water other than that secured from the Village of Wheeling water system shall be used unless such other source shall have been and continues to be tested and found to be equal to the State of Illinois drinking water standards of purity.

(e) Every portable pool exceeding 120 square feet of surface area shall have at least one skimming device.

(f) Every portable pool exceeding 120 square feet of surface area shall be required to have a recirculating system and the necessary appurtenances thereto.

(g) Water drained from the portable pool shall not be discharged directly into the sanitary sewer system, nor shall the water be discharged into the storm water sewer system during periods of floods, rains or storms.

(h) All electric installations provided for, installed and used in conjunction with portable pools shall be in conformance with the Building Code of the Village of Wheeling.

Section 15.30.170 Swimming Pool Permit Application.

All requests for the special permit required by this Article for swimming pools shall be made to the Director of Building and Zoning in the following application form supplied by the Department of Building and Zoning:

"APPLICATION FOR SWIMMING POOL PERMIT

I/we ..... of ....., Wheeling, Illinois, hereby request a special permit to erect or place a ..... (size) swimming pool of the ..... (type) variety, to be located upon the above property as indicated by the drawings accompanying this application.

I/we will meet the fencing requirements found in Chapter 15.28 of the Municipal Code of the Village of Wheeling, as amended, by placing a fence ..... inches in height at and around the pool as indicated and shown upon the accompanying drawing.

I/we have also tendered the required fee for this special permit.

I/we also understand that this permit and fee is in addition to any other buildung permit and fee required under the Provisions of the Building Code of the Village of Wheeling.

SIGNED: .....

Section 15.30.180 Penalty.

(a) The imposition of the penalties hereinafter prescribed shall not preclude the Village of Wheeling from instituting such action or proceedings as it may deem necessary to prevent or restrain the unlawful establishment, construction, reconstruction, alteration, repair, conversion, maintenance, or use of a private residential swimming pool or to restrain, correct or abate any violation of this Chapter.

(b) Inspection. The Building Official or Health Officer periodically shall inspect all pools to determine whether or not the provisions of this Code and this Chapter regarding health, sanitation and safety applicable thereto are being complied with and said Official may direct that the pool be closed forthwith until the requirements have been fully complied with.

SECTION B.

Validity. The invalidity of any section or provision of this Ordinance hereby adopted shall not invalidate other sections or provisions thereof.

SECTION C.

Conflict. If ordinances or parts of ordinances thereof in force at the time this Ordinance shall take effect are inconsistent with the provisions of this Chapter, the provisions of this Chapter shall govern.

SECTION D.

Penalty. Any person, firm or corporation violating the provisions of these Sections shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not to exceed $500.00, as provided in Chapter 1.04 of the Wheeling Municipal Code. Each day that a violation is permitted to exist shall constitute a separate offense.

SECTION E.

Effective Date. This Ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage, approval and publication according to law.

PASSED this 2nd day of June, 1969.

AYE: Trustees Bird, Egan, Hart, Koeppen, Stricker, Valenza.

APPROVED this 3rd day of June, 1969.

Public Hearing

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the corporate authorities of the Village of Palatine, Illinois will hold a public hearing on Monday, June 23, 1969 at 8 P.M. in the Board Room of the Village Hall, 54 South Brockway Street, Palatine, Illinois.

This public hearing shall be for the purpose of considering a proposed annexation agreement to be executed between the Corporate authorities of the Village of Palatine, L. F. Draper, Inc. and the Countryside YMCA, the owners of certain territory described below, pursuant to Division 15.1 of Article 11 of the Illinois Municipal Code, as amended.

The territory which is the subject of the proposed annexation agreement consists of approximately 110 acres and is legally described as:

PARCEL 1: The west 269 feet of the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of Section 9, Township 42 North, Range 10 East of the Third Principal Meridian, and west 269 feet of that part lying south of the center line of Dundee Road of the West Half of the Northeast Quarter of Section 9, Township 42 North, Range 10 East of the Third Principal Meridian;

PARCEL 2: The East 269 feet of the west 538 feet of the Northwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter and the East 269 feet of the West 538 feet of that part lying south of the center line of Dundee Road of the West Half of the Northeast Quarter of Section 9, Township 42 North, Range 10 East of the Third Principal Meridian;

PARCEL 3: The West two-thirds (except the East 250 feet thereof) of the Southwest Quarter of the Southeast Quarter of Section 9, Township 42 North, Range 10 East of the Third Principal Meridian;

PARCEL 4: That part of the Southeast Quarter of the Southwest Quarter of Section 9, Township 42 North, Range 10 East of the Third Principal Meridian described as follows: Beginning at the intersection of the north line of the Southeast Quarter of the said Southwest Quarter with the center line (extended) of Park Avenue as laid out in Percy Wilson's Forest View Highlands, (a subdivision in the Northeast Quarter of said Southwest Quarter) being a point in said North line distant East 316 feet more or less along said North line from the Northwest corner of the Southeast Quarter of said Southwest Quarter and running thence South along said centerline (extended) of Park Avenue 962.95 feet to the Northeasterly line of the Northwest Highway, thence Southeasterly along said Northeasterly line to the South line of said Southwest Quarter; thence East along said South line to the East line of said Southwest Quarter; thence North along said East line to the North line of the Southeast Quarter of said Southwest Quarter; thence West along said North line to the place of beginning, all in Cook County, Illinois.

PARCEL 5: Tract "C" and "D" according to a plat of survey made March 9, 1953 by Fred Oswald, a land surveyor. Said tract of land being 436 feet in width as measured east and west, and approximately 2993 feet in length as measured north and south, and being parts of the Southeast and Northeast Quarters of Section 9, Township 42 North, Range 10 East of the Third Principal Meridian, in Cook County, Illinois.

The proposed agreement provides for:

A. The annexation of such territory when and if it becomes contiguous to the Village of Palatine.

B. The development plans would be submitted to the Village of Palatine for its approval, prior to presentation to the proper authorities of the County of Cook.

C. That the developer, L. F. Draper, agrees that all such development plans will be made to comply with all applicable ordinances of the Village of Palatine.

D. Developer, L. F. Draper agrees that the total development will be in substantial conformity with the Planned Development Ordinance of the Village of Palatine to the extent it is not in conformance with ordinances of the County of Cook.

E. The Village agrees to construct certain water and sewer facilities to serve the subject property; the cost of such construction to be paid by L. F. Draper.

F. The Village agrees to use its best efforts to recover for L. F. Draper a portion of the cost for the installation of these utilities, subject to a recapture agreement.

G. L. F. Draper agrees to bind successors in ownership to the terms of this agreement.

H. Other matters relating to the foregoing.

All persons present shall be given an opportunity to be heard.

By order of the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Palatine, Illinois.

LOUISE A. JONES
Village Clerk

Financial Pinch Of Child Support

Divorced fathers who feel a financial pinch from paying child support may find comfort in the knowledge that sometimes payments may be stopped before their children reach adulthood (18 for girls and 21 for boys).

According to the Illinois State Bar Association, support payments may be stopped upon the marriage of a child, full-time employment of a child or induction of a child into the armed forces.

Before stopping payments for the first two reasons, the ISBA advises a father to obtain a court order unless the divorce decree specifies that payments may be terminated or suspended under these circumstances.

The marriage of a child would be the only circumstance which would terminate the support obligation. In the other instances, the obligation is only suspended and a court, upon application, is empowered to again enter an order for support if, while the child is still a minor, he or she ceases to be self-supporting or is released from military service.

Support payments may extend into adulthood if a child is physically or mentally disabled or is continuing his education; however, there must be a court order to require this continuation of support.

The amount of child support stated in the divorce decree can be increased by the court as his income, the cost of living and the children's needs increase, the ISBA notes, and it may also be possible to get a court order to have support payments reduced if a father should suffer a cut in pay. Also, a father may have to pay extra if his children should have extraordinary medical and dental expenses.

The support obligation goes across state lines and the father will have to continue making child support payments even if he or the mother and children should move to another state.

Center Expansion

A 30,000 square foot addition to the Grove Shopping Center, Elk Grove Village, providing an additional 10 shops and a restaurant adjacent to an existing medical center complex, is now under construction.

The shopping center extends over 20 acres of land in the southwest section of Elk Grove Village. The total number of stores in the center with the new construction will be approximately 25, according to Howard G. Krafsur of Bennett & Kahnweiler Assoc., developers of the center. The original center was built three years ago.

Stores in the new addition include a Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. service center, Ace Hardware, Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream, Village Sports, Inc. and DeLaine's Restaurant.

Parking facilities for an additional 500 cars will be added.

Custer Construction Co. is the general contractor for the project, estimated to cost $750,000. Architects are Sidney Morris & Assoc.

Study of Merger Is Begun

By JUDY MORRIS

Members of school boards underlying Lake Park High School Dist 108 agreed Wednesday to begin a study of possible district consolidation.

Supt E W. J Bagg of Roselle Dist. 12 offered to head the study.

It was decided that two representatives from each of the five districts will comprise the committee for the study Participants can be either board members or interested citizens

C F Nagro, a retired teacher, told the meeting of the boards, "Consolidation is important If we can make a beginning at least now and not let it drop, we could go very far in improving education."

Bagg began the discussion by quoting from a report on consolidation written in 1943 the issue is not a new one, he said, and added, "We must give all our children an equal opportunity for education."

THE STATE will reimburse the districts for a portion of the cost of the study, Bagg said

Much voluntary consolidation has already taken place in Illinois school districts, Bagg reported It is a feeling among many educators that the state may begin requiring consolidation in several years in order to insure the survival of small school districts

One board member said he feels a consolidation study may take as long as three years

"If we wait until the need arises to study the problem," he said, "it may be too late" The group concurred that the study should begin now

The school consolidation issue has many pros and cons Those in favor of the system point to economy in sharing administrative salaries and other costs. Those against consolidation fear the loss of the individual school's identity

THERE ARE several different forms consolidation can take One solution is to combine elementary districts This is the plan that will be studied by the committee

Another possibility is to form a unit school district which would also take in the high school Many school boards are against this system because they feel the problems of elementary boards and high school boards are too different

Those who support a unit consolidation plan point to the continuity in education resulting from a single board which would deal with grades kindergarten through 12

Supt. Carl Forrester of Lake Park High School has gone on record as saying, "There is value in the formula for a unit district."

A third alternative is to form two districts, one elementary and one high school, but to have them operate under the same name.

The first meeting of the study committee is expected to take place later this month.

Fuel Leak Is Unknown

Roselle officials, state fire marshals, Illinois Bell Telephone officials and local firemen are still looking for the source of gasoline which has repeatedly filled underground pipes at the intersection of Roselle and Irving Park roads in Roselle for the past three weeks.

Thousands of gallons of gasoline and water have been pumped out of underground telephone pipelines since the danger was discovered May 19 by telephone company workmen.

The lines have been pumped clean and scraped and washed but gasoline has been discovered each time following rainfall.

ACCORDING TO DEPUTY State Fire Marshal Joseph Cybor, the rain is picking up gas in underground pockets and running into the telephone lines. The gas may have been there months before it was discovered, he added, but it is more likely it is a recent development.

Cybor said all gasoline service stations have been checked around the intersection and several factories and other businesses also inspected. One small leak was discovered at the Standard station on the southeast corner but it has been fixed and gas is still coming, he added.

He said he has been informed there was a fuel truck which dumped gas near the intersection a few months ago. He added information about who did it and what company was involved has been withheld.

"I MAY HAVE to subpoena someone into court to find out," he said, "and I will do just that."

If the source of the leakage is found, a sump hole could be dug near it, he said, and gas pumped out until there isn't anymore.

Carl Fyhrie, Illinois Bell spokesman, said there had been little evidence of gas Wednesday but following rains Wednesday night, there was gas found in the pipes again

"It is checked daily," he said, "and the phone company is paying to have it pumped out. The danger is being kept to a minimum."

When asked if this could be a leftover sabbotage trick from last year's phone strike, he replied:

"It is out of the question since there is evidence this is too complicated to be planned. It is an unfortunate happening which will be corrected "

ROSELLE BUILDING Inspector William Manns said there was a part of Illow Creek which ran past Gorski's Food Mart parking lot southwest across Roselle Farmer's Lumber Yard at one time.

"It was filled in during the 1920's," Manns said, "and when creeks are filled in there is always pockets of air created. There could be a lot of gas collected under overturned bathtubs or refrigerators or spring beds which were used for filling up the creek bed."

Manns said he has checked all incoming creeks around the area and has found no trace of gas in them If it doesn't rain this weekend, he will check them again, he said.

When the gas threat was first discovered, there were about three inches of raw gasoline floating on water. It was removed May 20 by a sewage tank firm from Chicago. The gas was dumped at Ajax gravel pit in Bloomingdale and covered with dirt.

THE PROCESS is followed every time more gas is found. The pipes are cleaned with chemicals to protect the telephone cable coatings.

Officials admit that during times when gasoline is several inches thick in the pipes, one tossed cigarette could destroy half of Roselle and Irving Park roads for blocks in all four directions. The pipes run under the roadway.

The danger is, however, not considered great by officials.

Rose Parade Set

The annual Roselle rose parade and queen contest will begin at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

Marshals for the parade will be Chuck Benson and Kurt Russell, disc jockeys from Chicago radio station WIND.

The parade this year will honor Gary Steger, injured Lake Park athlete. The parade route has been altered so that the procession will pass in front of Gary's home.

Seven contestants will compete for the title of "Miss Roselle Rose Queen." They will ride in open convertibles to the parade grounds, where the queen will be crowned.

The girls will be interviewed Saturday morning by a panel of judges. Beauty, talent and composure will be a part of the criteria. Paul Derda, Roselle Park director, will tabulate the votes and keep the sealed results until Sunday.

All seven contestants attend Lake Park High School.

The parade this year will include the famous Highlanders Bagpipe Band of Chicago, which was founded 49 years ago by a small group of Scottish immigrants who served in the Scottish regiments during World War I.

The band is authentic with members having been born in Canada, Ireland, Scotland and England, where they served with both civilian and military groups.

Other parade participants will be school bands, girl scouts, VFW members and color guards from the Navy, Coast Guard and Marines.

Another part of the Roselle festivities is a carnival at Parkside Park which began yesterday. Featured in the carnival is the "umbrella ride," premiered for the first time in this country.

Other rides include the ferris wheel, merry-go-round, tilt-a-whirl, flying scooter and round-up. Kiddie autos and the "Baby Frolic" are rides designed for even the smallest children.

Dist. 12 OKs Teachers' Pay

A revised salary schedule for teachers has been approved by the Roselle Dist. 12 Board of Education.

Salaries range from $6,750 for teachers with a bachelor's degree and no experience to $10,500 for teachers with a master's degree. This compares with last year's totals of $6,400 and $9,900, respectively

Salary increment will range from $200 to $250, depending on educational background, experience and number of years within the school system.

The board has also agreed to pay half of the cost of individual premiums for hospitalization and medical insurance. Last year teachers had to pay the entire cost of the program themselves.

THE APPROVED salary schedule is the result of several months of negotiations between a committee of the Roselle Education Association and a committee of the board of education. A professional negotiations agreement approved by both groups determined the guidelines for negotiations.

E. W. Bagg, Roselle superintendent, said Wednesday he has received 43 signed contracts so far, out of 50 teachers in the system.

The across-the-board increase is not without its liabilities. "We had to curtail staff increases for the coming school year," Bagg said. "We wanted to hire three new teachers, but we will not have the funds to do so."

Bagg said no Roselle activities will be curtailed and only expansion of activities will be affected.

THE SALARY range for new teachers with a bachelor's degrees is from $6,750 to $8,850 in 10 different scales. For a bachelor's degree and nine semester hours, the range is from $6,850 to $8,850 in 11 scales. For a bachelor's degree and 18 semester hours, the range is from $7,050 to $9,275 in 12 scales. New teachers with a master's degree have a starting salary of $7,250 with a maximum of $10,500 in 14 scales.

Since the previous salary schedule included steps beyond the new maximums, it was agreed that teachers in this group will receive regularly scheduled increments for two years at which time they will be at the maximum for individual teacher involved.

Many of last year's salary schedule provisions will be continued for the 1969-70 school year. They include credit for 10 years of outside experience, sabbatical leave after seven years of successful teaching in Roselle School Dist. 12, reimbursement for required medical examinations, sick leave credit in the amount of 15 days per school year cumulative to 60 days, and special reimbursement to teachers who assume added responsibilities.

Omitted from the previous salary schedule provisions was reimbursement for head of household and dependent children.

"All Power To The People"

In the past few days, the Black Panthers have leaped into the headlines in 96 point type as the FBI raided their headquarters in Chicago and in Denver. Who are they and what do they represent to our Northwest suburbs. Find out Monday in Paddock Publications in the first of a three-part series, "All Power to the People," by Writer James Vesely and Photographer Robert Finch.

Police Busy Renovating

by RICHARD BARTON

The sounds of hammer and saw continue from the Bloomingdale police station as police officers remodel their antiquated home into a modern facility.

The village gave the department $800 to cover cost of building materials. Police officers are supplying free labor in spare hours The original village hall which houses the station was built before the turn of the century.

The remodeling includes lowering an 11-foot ceiling down to eight feet and installing sound-proofing ceiling tiles, installing a new entrance, new counter top, wall paneling in the entire office, moving the trophy case, installing indoor-outdoor carpeting and moving radio equipment to one location.

POLICE CHIEF Harold Rivkin said he expects the work to be finished in the near future but couldn't tell actually when due to work schedules and other police duties. He added the remodeling was needed to maintain the professional image of his department.

The back room will also be remodeled into a squad room for officers for questioning prisoners or filling out reports. The previous one-man jail cell has been removed.

Bloomingdale uses the jail facilities in Roselle and depends on the Roselle radio operator for communication.

Rivkin said the village can't afford their own radio operator this year but it will be considered in next year's budget. The arrangement with Roselle has worked well, he added.

THE BLOOMINGDALE jail cell was only used to hold prisoners for short periods. Further detention is done in Roselle or at the DuPage County jail in Wheaton.

The greater working space and better appearance of the remodeled station was sorely needed, Rivkin said.

Officers may get a break from swinging their hammers within the month when judo lessons are made available at Central School gym. Police officers total 14 including reserves and the weekly judo course will be optional.

Valley in Winter

(Copyright 1969 Paddock Publications Inc.)

During the next few weeks, migrant workers will be pouring into our Northwest suburbs, mostly from Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley. Who are these migrants? What is HOME to them? Today, in the third of a six-part series, Senior Staff Writer David Hoyt describes the migrant's jobs in the valley before he heads north.

Story and Photos by David Hoyt

Whether he's a common farm laborer, a crew leader, a landscaper or a nursery worker, when it comes to making a living the Mexican American migrant is usually better off during his northern migration than he is at home in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The valley is home — true enough. The valley is where the family is. The climate there is nice in the winter.

But valley agriculture simply cannot absorb a winter labor force that harvests most of the rest of the nation during the summer.

Between 100,000 and 125,000 migrants leave the valley each summer — about a third of the total population — and when they return there are simply not enough jobs to go around, not enough jobs to offer a decent wage.

"We hit about 6 per cent unemployment in the valley in the winter," Richard Stolle of the Texas Employment Commission says. "That's including people who'd like to work but can't They (the growers) can afford to offer low wages and still pick and choose who they hire "

GENERALLY THE migrant laborer has no other skills so he takes what work he can get and waits for the next migration.

The man who makes $1.70 an hour in Minnesota is lucky to get 90 cents an hour doing the same thing in the valley.

Stolle says $1.30 "is the federal standard minimum wage in agriculture," when he is asked about pay on the south Texas ranches.

It's a good answer. But it won't always wash, because much of the picking is done on a piece-work scale and what is made in pice-work depends on the pieces

Onion topping can bring a man good money. If the onions are big and the earth is not too hard, a man might put up six sacks of onions an hour, letting him average $1.50 an hour; 25 cents a sack is the going rate

But that usually can't be done The crews crawl along the rows, snipping frantically at onions not much bigger than

Rose

NINE YEARS LATER, Mrs. Phanos stands in front of the Rose Restaurant in Roselle which she and her husband, Adam, own. A graduate of Lake Park High School, Mrs. Phanos has lived in the Roselle area all her life.

First Queen Recalls Crowning

by JUDY MORRIS

Tradition is a part of any beauty contest. One person in particular will observe Sunday's crowning of the Roselle Rose Queen with nostalgia.

Mrs. Ann Phanos, formerly Ann VanderWerf of Roselle, was the village's first rose queen in 1960. Mrs. Phanos presently lives in Roselle with her husband, Adam, and their 2-year-old son, Dino.

"My folks were pretty surprised," Mrs. Phanos said, "and I was very excited."

Festivities at that first rose pageant were much the same as they are now, Mrs. Phanos said. The 18 contestants rode in the parade in open convertibles just as this year's candidates will do.

MRS. PHANOS GREW UP in Roselle, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John VanderWerf, owned a grocery store on Bokelman Street near the present site of the Rose Restaurant which Mrs. Phanos and her husband own.

The first rose queen festival was organized by C. F. Nagro, a Roselle music teacher. Nagro was also the composer of the song "Roselle, Dear Home Town."

Aug. 7, 1960, was a bright and sunny day in Roselle. Record crowds turned out for the parade, many persons wearing a single rose pinned to lapel or dress. It was reported at the time that as many as 2,000 people saw Ann VanderWerf crowned as the first rose queen.

"I don't remember much about that day," Mrs. Phanos said.

"THERE WERE A LOT OF people, and I do remember being very nervous. Each girl was interviewed before the judges, and I'll never know how I got through it."

Gifts were given to the queen by local merchants. Savings bonds, gift certificates and even a piece of property in El Paso, Tex., were donated.

"I've never seen my lot in Texas," Mrs. Phanos said. She laughed. "I think I've still got the deed somewhere, but for all I know it's not even my property anymore."

After graduation from Lake Park High School in the same year she won the contest, Mrs. Phanos attended Elgin Community College for a year and then worked as a catering manager for a country club.

SHE HAS BEEN married for five years and now jointly manages their restaurant with her husband.

"The system works out really well," Mrs. Phanos said. "I take care of the front of the restaurant and Adam supervises the kitchen and management."

Roselle's first rose queen said she never entered any other beauty contests because "I just never thought about it."

ROSELLE'S FIRST rose queen, Mrs. Ann Phanos, formerly Ann Vanderwerf, remembers she was "very excited" when she won the title in 1960.

More Power Urged

Cook County School Supt. Robert P. Hanrahan should become chief legislative spokesman for all northern Illinois schools, a consultant firm said this week.

The legislative recommendation was one of several recommendations made by the firm of Cresap, McCormick and Paget for strengthening the Cook County superintendent's office.

That recommendation is expected to ruffle feathers of other northern Illinois county superintendents and local school men working actively now to get school legislation through the General Assembly.

James Worthy, vice president of the firm, announced the results at a press conference Tuesday in Hanrahan's Chicago office.

HE SAID THE COUNTY superintendent should exercise leadership in legislative matters throughout northern Illinois "by force of personality" rather than "force of law."

The report said Hanrahan "should regard it as a continuing responsibility of his office to stimulate discussion and planning among his fellow county superintendents and among educators in general on how the state's total educational structure should be modified and strefgthened."

The report said the Cook County superintendent is "in a unique position" to understand the needs of growing suburban schools.

Worthy said the firm's recommendations for strengthening the Cook county school office are considered short-ranges with long-range improvements only possible through legislation.

THE STUDY also made these recommendations:

—That the state provide funds to double the number of professionals on Hanrahan's staff.

—That the county superintendent be elected only by voters in suburban Cook County, not by the City of Chicago.

—That Hanrahan's office beef up its consultant services to local schools.

—That legislation be passed to permit the superintendent's office to administer cooperative programs requested and financed by local school districts.

—That ineffective adtivities of the superintendent's office be reduced or eliminated.

The study said the county superintendent currently has a staff of 12 — three paid by the state, nine by the county and one from federal funds. Another dozen professionals should be added, it said.

Hanrahan acknowledged at the press conference that his staff is spread paperthin.

The county office, he noted, must conduct annual inspections of buildings in 146 school districts — but has only one man to do the job.

Hit Chamber Aid Proposal

An Illinois State Chamber proposal that the legislature back off from a state aid increase badly needed by Harper Junior College and the College of DuPage was sharply criticized today by a state junior college association official.

James Broman, executive director of the Illinois Association of Community and Junior Colleges, issued a statement expressing "deep concern" at the state chamber's recommendation that state aid go up only $2 per credit hour instead of the $4 raise to $15.50 recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE).

He said the state's business and industry stands to lose if the Illinois junior colleges don't get adequate funding.

BROMAN, LEGISLATIVE spokesman for the state junior college association to which Harper and the College of DuPage both belong, said the chamber suggestion that $7.1 million be trimmed from the state's budget by not giving as much to the junior colleges was "a shock, especially since the chamber of commerce was instrumental in creating the junior college system."

Broman said business and industry throughout the state will be hurt if the full $15.50 per credit hour aid level is not approved.

He said that local junior colleges need the state aid increase and a lower level would mean curtailment of expensive "occupational programs so vital to the economy" or increase in local property taxes to compensate for the state aid the junior colleges don't receive.

THE STATE chamber statement last week said its recommendation that state aid be increased only from $11.50 — this year's level, to $13.50 gibed with recommendations of the Illinois Junior College Board.

Broman said this is not so. He noted that the Illinois Junior College Board had originally recommended junior college state aid be increased from $11.50 to $17.

No Expressway Route Yet

by SYD JAMIESON

Itasca officials and representatives of the Illinois Division of Highways are endeavoring to reach agreement on final alignment of the proposed Elgin-O'Hare Expressway which will be located on the northern boundaries of Itasca.

Village Pres. Wilbert Nottke said this week that, although several objections were presented to highway officials during a joint meeting May 28 in Elgin, he has high hopes that careful consideration to suggestions offered by the Itasca group will be weighed carefully by the state.

Attending the afternoon session with Nottke were Trustee Eldon Corbin; Peter Spears, developer, Attorney Robert Bremer of Central Manufacturing District, and CMD engineers Edward Kraukaulic and Cliff Roepke

Nottke said Tuesday night during the village board meeting that highway officials were informed that Itasca "does not want to go too far with its projects and then have the state come in and attempt to undo what has been done

ACCORDING TO NOTTKE, such an approach will be unnecessary and it may prove costly "to follow this path." He reported to board members that the village is attempting to arrive at the best possible road alignment to provide for proper development in the area

"We are attempting to cooperate with the state to stop the expenditure of unnecessary funds for developed land," Nottke said

Major points discussed with highway officials were directed to objections by Itasca to the proposed high tower transmission line of Commonwealth Edison Co., to be located in the median strip of the expressway

"The unsightly high tower line would bisect a very high-cost and desirable residential land which has already been subdivided and planned for fine residential living," Nottke said

He told board members that the right-of-ways planned by Commonwealth Edison in conjunction with the expressway "would require a 600-foot-wide path through the residential area that would take many acres of land from the projected tax base of Itasca

This would result in a revenue loss for the village," he said

NOTTKE FURTHER COMMENTED that the high tower transmission line "would divide the village like the 'Berlin Wall' — and could prossibly produce new boundary problems"

Highway officials were offered a suggestion by Itasca representatives to an alternate location for the high line, he said.

This was for the right-of-way of the utility line to be placed along the present right-of-way on the eastern limits of Itasca, follow Salt Creek, then north to Devon Avenue and west to Elgin

"This path is in the flood plain area where no homes can feasibly be built," Nottke said. "We told the state," he said, "that this path would disturb nobody and be the least costly of all the paths suggested.

"If we have to have more power distribution to the west, it was suggested to follow the wishes of the residents and to do as little damage to property as possible. It is not our intent to impede progress, but to go forward with a planned program," Nottke said.

ANOTHER OBJECTION raised by the Itasca entourage was the proposed closing of Arlington Heights Road at Thorndale which "was of great importance to the north-south flow of traffic.

"We informed the Elgin office that our police and fire departments would be detoured to serve the northern region of the village and that commuter traffic from the northern boundaries of Itasca would not have free access to the direct path of the Milwaukee Railroad station."

Highway officials were also offered other comments for consideration in the preliminary discussion on the proposed expressway.

These included location of an interchange at Prospect and Thorndale roads, which Itasca officials felt could be more acceptable if located on Thorndale providing Addison Road was extended north from Irving Park.

According to Nottke, by extending Addison Road north to Thorndale, "this would give the area another north-south route leading to the Addison-Villa Park region. This road could be along the present Commonwealth Edison right-of-way and would also give easier access to the Wood Dale railroad depot for northern commuters.

"IT COULD SERVE as an eastern boundary line between Itasca and Wood Dale."

Highway officials were told that there was a serious question whether Prospect Road could be a main north-south thoroughfare as it does not have proper dedications and a 100-foot easement "would destroy the fifth and sixth holes of the Itasca Country Club golf course."

Another problem might be encountered when the Prospect-Thorndale sanitary sewer project is completed on the southern side of Thorndale, highway engineers were informed.

Begin Merger Study

By JUDY MORRIS

Members of school boards underlying Lake Park High School Dist 108 agreed Wednesday to begin a study of possible district consolidation.

Supt. E. W. J. Bugg of Roselle Dist 12 offered to head the study.

It was decided that two representatives from each of the five districts will comprise the committee for the study Participants can be either board members or interested citizens

C F. Nagro, a retired teacher, told the meeting of the boards, "Consolidation is important. If we can make a beginning at least now and not let it drop, we could go very far in improving education."

Bagg began the discussion by quoting from a report on consolidation written in 1943 the issue is not a new one, he said, and added, "We must give all our children an equal opportunity for education"

THE STATE will reimburse the districts for a portion of the cost of the study, Bagg said.

Much voluntary consolidation has already taken place in Illinois school districts, Bagg reported It is a feeling among many educators that the state may begin requiring consolidation in several years in order to insure the survival of small school districts.

One board member said he feels a consolidation study may take as long as three years.

"If we wait until the need arises to study the problem," he said, "it may be too late" The group concurred that the study should begin now

The school consolidation issue has many pros and cons. Those in favor of the system point to economy in sharing administrative salaries and other costs. Those against consolidation fear the loss of the individual school's identity.

THERE ARE several different forms consolidation can take. One solution is to combine elementary districts. This is the plan that will be studied by the committee.

Another possibility is to form a unit school district which would also take in the high school. Many school boards are against this system because they feel the problems of elementary boards and high school boards are too different.

Those who support a unit consolidation plan point to the continuity in education resulting from a single board which would deal with grades kindergarten through 12.

Supt. Carl Forrester of Lake Park High School has gone on record as saying, "There is value in the formula for a unit district."

A third alternative is to form two districts, one elementary and one high school, but to have them operate under the same name

The first meeting of the study committee is expected to take place later this month.

Rose Parade Set

The annual Roselle rose parade and queen contest will begin at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

Marshals for the parade will be Chuck Benson and Kurt Russell, disc jockeys from Chicago radio station WIND.

The parade this year will honor Gary Steger, injured Lake Park athlete. The parade route has been altered so that the procession will pass in front of Gary's home.

Seven contestants will compete for the title of "Miss Roselle Rose Queen." They will ride in open convertibles to the parade grounds, where the queen will be crowned.

The girls will be interviewed Saturday morning by a panel of judges. Beauty, talent and composure will be a part of the criteria. Paul Derda, Roselle Park director, will tabulate the votes and keep the sealed results until Sunday.

All seven contestants attend Lake Park High School.

The parade this year will include the famous Highlanders Bagpipe Band of Chicago, which was founded 49 years ago by a small group of Scottish immigrants who served in the Scottish regiments during World War I.

The band is authentic with members having been born in Canada, Ireland, Scotland and England, where they served with both civilian and military groups.

Other parade participants will be school bands, girl scouts, VFW members and color guards from the Navy, Coast Guard and Marines.

Another part of the Roselle festivities is a carnival at Parkside Park which began yesterday. Featured in the carnival is the "umbrella ride," premiered for the first time in this country.

Other rides include the ferris wheel, merry-go-round, tilt-a-whirl, flying scooter and round-up. Kiddie autos and the "Baby Frolic" are rides designed for even the smallest children.

Valley in Winter

(Copyright 1969 Paddock Publications Inc.)

During the next few weeks, migrant workers will be pouring into our Northwest suburbs, mostly from Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley. Who are these migrants? What is HOME to them? Today, in the third of a six-part series, Senior Staff Writer David Hoyt describes the migrant's jobs in the valley before he heads north.

Story and Photos by David Hoyt

Whether he's a common farm laborer, a crew leader, a landscaper or a nursery worker, when it comes to making a living the Mexican American migrant is usually better off during his northern migration than he is at home in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The valley is home — true enough. The valley is where the family is. The climate there is nice in the winter.

But valley agriculture simply cannot absorb a winter labor force that harvests most of the rest of the nation during the summer.

Between 100,000 and 125,000 migrants leave the valley each summer — about a third of the total population — and when they return there are simply not enough jobs to go around, not enough jobs to offer a decent wage.

"We hit about 6 per cent unemployment in the valley in the winter," Richard Stolle of the Texas Employment Commission says. "That's including people who'd like to work but can't. They (the growers) can afford to offer low wages and still pick and choose who they hire."

GENERALLY THE migrant laborer has no other skills so he takes what work he can get and waits for the next migration.

The man who makes $1.70 an hour in Minnesota is lucky to get 90 cents an hour doing the same thing in the valley

Stolle says $1.30 "is the federal standard minimum wage in agriculture," when he is asked about pay on the south Texas ranches

It's a good answer. But it won't always wash, because much of the picking is done on a piece-work scale and what is made in pice-work depends on the pieces.

Onion topping can bring a man good money. If the onions are big and the earth is not too hard, a man might put up six sacks of onions an hour, letting him average $1.50 an hour; 25 cents a sack is the going rate.

But that usually can't be done. The crews crawl along the rows, snipping frantically at onions not much bigger than

Scavenger Price Hike Asked

Itasca residents may find under a new scavenger contract proposal now under study by Trustee Roy Johnson that bulk items normally hauled away during the annual clean-up week in the village could be a weekly pickup at an additional rate of 13½ cents per family unit monthly.

This was one of the recommendations presented in a new contract agreement offered the village board by Everett Van Der Molen, Van Der Molen Disposal Co., Melrose Park.

In a letter to Johnson dated May 27, Van Der Molen also suggested changing the current pickup days of Monday and Tuesday to Friday only, but indications by board members Tuesday night were that a more preferable day would be Monday.

JOHNSON, IN COMMENTING on Van Der Molen's recommendations, pointed out that the scavenger firm is seeking a three-year contract with an option for a three-year renewal.

"He is suggesting that a contract covering a period beyond one year would have a wage clause to govern rates," Johnson informed board members.

According to Van Der Molen, "the contractor is protected on his equipment investment and the village is assured of stability of price based on a fixed pattern."

Included in the recommendations offered by Van Der Molen is that the village will continue to bill quarterly in advance and inform him of the number of units billed. The scavenger firm will bill the village after hauling each month with the rate based on the number of homes billed during the quarterly billing cycle.

change in the present practice of exchanging checks to cover a 10 per cent

He offered for further consideration a handling fee.

Van Der Molen suggested, "We will bill the village each month for the net amount. The contracts covering the services for the past few years netted out to $1.57½ per family unit monthly.

"THE NET RATE we would bill the village would be raised 10 cents per family unit to cover the increased operating costs since your last rate adjustment — thus our rate would be $1.67½ per family unit," he suggested.

As for the proposed weekly pickup of bulk items, Van Der Molen said the service "would increase your rate an additional 13½ cents per family unit monthly.

"This would bring the monthly rate to $1.81," he advised Johnson. Itasca is presently paying part of this cost in the sharing of the annual cleanup charge.

Johnson was instructed to meet with his committee on the new scavenger proposals and to report back to the board at its June 17 meeting.

Hearing Set on Sewer

A public hearing has been scheduled by the Itasca Board of Trustees to air its executed contract with Central Manufacturing District on the $600,000 Prospect-Thorndale sanitary sewer project.

The surprise announcement of the hearing set for 8 p.m., Tuesday in the village hall, was made by Village Pres. Wilbert Nottke at this week's village board meeting.

Nottke, reading from a prepared statement, said the board had scheduled the public hearing because of several comments village officials have received concerning the project from local residents.

"I urge all interested citizens of Itasca to attend this hearing, as there are undoubtedly a number of questions being asked of board members relative to the project," Nottke said.

He said village officials will answer all questions on the proposed sanitary sewer, which will provide for future expansion north of the Itasca Industrial Park of CMD.

"We have nothing to hide — we will bring everything out in the open," Nottke said.

Requested to attend the Tuesday hearing are members of the village water board; J. Richard Koehler, village engineer, and representatives of CMD.

NINE YEARS LATER, Mrs. Phanos stands in front of the Rose Restaurant in Roselle which she and her husband, Adam, own. A graduate of Lake Park High School, Mrs. Phanos has lived in the Roselle area all her life.

First Queen Recalls Crowning

by JUDY MORRIS

Tradition is a part of any beauty contest. One person in particular will observe Sunday's crowning of the Roselle Rose Queen with nostalgia.

Mrs. Ann Phanos, formerly Ann VanderWerf of Roselle, was the village's first rose queen in 1960. Mrs. Phanos presently lives in Roselle with her husband, Adam, and their 2-year-old son, Dino.

"My folks were pretty surprised," Mrs. Phanos said, "and I was very excited."

Festivities at that first rose pageant were much the same as they are now, Mrs. Phanos said. The 18 contestants rode in the parade in open convertibles just as this year's candidates will do.

MRS. PHANOS GREW UP in Roselle, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John VanderWerf, owned a grocery store on Bokelman Street near the present site of the Rose Restaurant which Mrs. Phanos and her husband own.

The first rose queen festival was organized by C. F. Nagro, a Roselle music teacher. Nagro was also the composer of the song "Roselle, Dear Home Town."

Aug. 7, 1960, was a bright and sunny day in Roselle. Record crowds turned out for the parade, many persons wearing a single rose pinned to lapel or dress. It was reported at the time that as many as 2,000 people saw Ann VanderWerf crowned as the first rose queen.

"I don't remember much about that day," Mrs. Phanos said.

"THERE WERE A LOT OF people, and I do remember being very nervous. Each girl was interviewed before the judges, and I'll never know how I got through it."

Gifts were given to the queen by local merchants. Savings bonds, gift certificates and even a piece of property in El Paso, Tex., were donated.

"I've never seen my lot in Texas," Mrs. Phanos said. She laughed. "I think I've still got the deed somewhere, but for all I know it's not even my property anymore."

After graduation from Lake Park High School in the same year she won the contest, Mrs. Phanos attended Elgin Community College for a year and then worked as a catering manager for a country club.

SHE HAS BEEN married for five years and now jointly manages their restaurant with her husband.

"The system works out really well," Mrs. Phanos said. "I take care of the front of the restaurant and Adam supervises the kitchen and management."

Roselle's first rose queen said she never entered any other beauty contests because "I just never thought about it."

ROSELLE'S FIRST rose queen, Mrs. Ann Phanos, formerly Ann Vanderwerf, remembers she was "very excited" when she won the title in 1960.

Cook County School Supt. Robert P. Hanrahan should become chief legislative spokesman for all northern Illinois schools, a consultant firm said this week.

The legislative recommendation was one of several recommendations made by the firm of Cresap, McCormick and Paget for strengthening the Cook County superintendent's office.

That recommendation is expected to ruffle feathers of other northern Illinois county superintendents and local school men working actively now to get school legislation through the General Assembly.

Hit Chamber Aid Proposal

An Illinois State Chamber proposal that the legislature back off from a state aid increase badly needed by Harper Junior College and the College of DuPage was sharply criticized today by a state junior college association official.

James Broman, executive director of the Illinois Association of Community and Junior Colleges, issued a statement expressing "deep concern" at the state chamber's recommendation that state aid go up only $2 per credit hour instead of the $4 raise to $15.50 recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE).

He said the state's business and industry stands to lose if the Illinois junior colleges don't get adequate funding.

BROMAN, LEGISLATIVE spokesman for the state junior college association to which Harper and the College of DuPage both belong, said the chamber suggestion that $7.1 million be trimmed from the state's budget by not giving as much to the junior colleges was "a shock, especially since the chamber of commerce was instrumental in creating the junior college system."

Broman said business and industry throughout the state will be hurt if the full $15.50 per credit hour aid level is not approved.

He said that local junior colleges need the state aid increase and a lower level would mean curtailment of expensive "occupational programs so vital to the economy" or increase in local property taxes to compensate for the state aid the junior colleges don't receive.

THE STATE chamber statement last week said its recommendation that state aid be increased only from $11.50 — this year's level, to $13.50 gibed with recommendations of the Illinois Junior College Board.

Broman said this is not so. He noted that the Illinois Junior College Board had originally recommended junior college state aid be increased from $11.50 to $17.

School Tax Vote Saturday

Tomorrow, residents of Bensenville and Wood Dale will vote on a 21-cent educational tax rate increase for Fenton High School A similar referendum was voted down last February

Polling places will be open Saturday from 9 a m to 7 p m Voters may register Saturday until noon at the Bensenville and Wood Dale village halls. In addition, a certified registrar will be at election headquarters at Fenton from 1 to 5 p m for latecomers

A controversy over proposed curtailments of the Fenton curriculum this fall touched off the movement to hold Saturday's referendum Concerned residents formed the Fenton Citizens Committee and appeared before the Dist. 100 board May 9 to request the referendum.

PASSAGE OF the referendum would raise the educational fund tax rate from $1 21 to $1 42 per $100 of assessed valuation, providing an additional $175,000 for the district when taxes are collected next May.

At present, Dist 100 has a deficit of about $750,000 in the educational fund

This time around, the referendum has gained support from both school and village officials. Appearing before a meeting of the citizens committee, Village Pres. John Varble told the group he would "personally support the efforts of this committee to provide a good education for our children."

AT THE same meeting, Lt. Arthur Garcia of the Bensenville Police Department said, "Rest assured that I will assist you in any way possible to pass this referendum."

Mrs. Richard Diegnau, co-chairman of the committee, said she is "very optimistic" about passage of the referendum. She told workers for the referendum, "Our purpose is to inform. If people have the facts, they can't help but vote yes."

Fenton Board Pres. James DiOrio said Thursday, "I have high hopes that we'll have a successful referendum. All we as a board can do is function the best way possible with the tools the people give us."

The main feeling among members of the citizens committee seems to be that their first goal is a large turnout at the polls.

Mrs Diegnau has said, "Even if the answer is no, we want a big turnout. At least then we will know how the people feel and can work from there." The committee anticipates a turnout of at least 3,000 voters.

The polling places for Dist. 100 are: Precinct 1, Mohawk School, Franzen Avenue, Bensenville; Precinct 2, Green Street School, Green Street, Bensenville; Precinct 3, Tioga School, Memorial Road and Addison Street, Bensenville; Precinct 4, Blackhawk Junior High School, Church Road, Bensenville; Precinct 5, Highland School, North Wood Dale Road, Wood Dale, and Precinct 6, Oakbrook School, South Wood Dale Road, Wood Dale.

STUDENTS IN Dist. 100 are planning a parade Saturday beginning at the high school at 10 a m. Bands, a float and representatives of school organizations will participate in the rally to support passage of the referendum.

Students and members of the Fenton Citizens Committee will be available Saturday for babysitting and shuttle services. Anyone who needs assistance may call election headquarters at Fenton, 766-2500. Several lines will be open to take calls.

Fenton Business Manager Kenneth Carroll has said that much of the opposition to the referendum has resulted from rumors begin spread around the district.

"If someone's against the referendum," he said, "they will latch onto any little thing to argue it." Nevertheless Carroll said he is optimistic about passage of the referendum because "This time there has been so much activity by people who haven't helped us before."

Emil Kupisch, co-chairman of the committee said, "People will pick up little things to use against us In this case, our enemy may be our neighbor, so word of mouth about the referendum must come into play."

Referring to the coming curtailments, Kupisch said, "There are too many areas to improve in education without taking away what we have."

Anyone with questions concerning the referendum may call Mrs. Richard Diegnau at 766-3004 or Fenton High School.

A Register Editorial

Help Dist. 100

Tomorrow could be a good day for students in Bensenville and Wood Dale if enough voters say "yes" to a 21-cent educational tax rate increase

The Dist 100 High School Board of Education asked for a similar tax boost in February but voters turned it down As a result, cutbacks to the tune of $140 000 will be made in next year's budget What does this mean to the high school?

The elimination of one period in the school day will mean that many students will not be able to fit band, chorus or drama into their schedules One-half of the art program will be cut, affecting more than 125 students

Some freshman and junior varsity sports will have to be eliminated, and other student clubs and organizations will have their budgets cut in halt

BUT THE academic cutback is most serious No longer will a student be able to take more than four solid subjects during a semester Thus the student who is really interested in learning more will be denied the opportunity of an additional course

Whether a student is headed for college, vocational school or directly into the business world, he will use his high school training on a daily basis Without a sound and well rounded educational base, it will be difficult for him to compete

But perhaps you don't have children in the high school and are not yet, or no longer, interested in what is happening there Consider another point

It has been frequently pointed out by Realtors that the quality of a town's educational system has a direct affect on the property values in that community. Few parents would buy a home in a community with an unaccredited high school.

IF FENTON does not receive additional funds by the fall of 1970, it is almost certain to lose its accreditation with the North Central Association.

It is unfortunate that the people who will be most strongly affected by this issue are not old enough to record their opinions at the polls But students at Fenton have found a new way to demonstrate how they feel about pending cutbacks.

They have constructed signs, written leaflets and offered their services as drivers and babysitters on election day. They will march through the streets of Bensenville tomorrow to demonstrate their concern about the fate of their school.

CAN ADULTS afford to do less?

We support the work of the Fenton Citizens Committee and the Fenton High School Student Council in urging you to vote "yes" tomorrow.

"All Power To The People"

In the past few days, the Black Panthers have leaped into the headlines in 96 point type as the FBI raided their headquarters in Chicago and in Denver. Who are they and what do they represent to our Northwest suburbs. May Top 400

Cutting the size of precincts in DuPage County may result in an estimated 65 additional over last year's count, according to preliminary figures.

Finalization of the number and locations of new precincts is expected later this month The number is expected to grow to 407, provided remaining townships fall in line

Donald J Wall, election committee chairman of the DuPage County Board of Supervisors, said this week that several precincts have grown as much as 1,500 in the last two years, since the last re-precincting Two started with less than five registered voters in the precinct and, due to wild development and growth, have grown to nearly 1,550, he said.

Rose Parade Set

The annual Roselle rose parade and queen contest will begin at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

Marshals for the parade will be Chuck Benson and Kurt Russell, disc jockeys from Chicago radio station WIND.

The parade this year will honor Gary Steger, injured Lake Park athlete. The parade route has been altered so that the procession will pass in front of Gary's home.

Seven contestants will compete for the title of "Miss Roselle Rose Queen." They will ride in open convertibles to the parade grounds, where the queen will be crowned.

The girls will be interviewed Saturday morning by a panel of judges. Beauty, talent and composure will be a part of the criteria. Paul Derda, Roselle Park director, will tabulate the votes and keep the sealed results until Sunday.

All seven contestants attend Lake Park High School.

The parade this year will include the famous Highlanders Bagpipe Band of Chicago, which was founded 49 years ago by a small group of Scottish immigrants who served in the Scottish regiments during World War 1.

The band is authentic with members having been born in Canada, Ireland, Scotland and England, where they served with both civilian and military groups.

Other parade participants will be school bands, girl scouts, VFW members and color guards from the Navy, Coast Guard and Marines.

Another part of the Roselle festivities is a carnival at Parkside Park which began yesterday. Featured in the carnival is the "umbrella ride," premiered for the first time in this country.

Other rides include the ferris wheel, merry-go-round, tilt-a-whirl, flying scooter and round-up. Kiddie autos and the "Baby Frolic" are rides designed for even the smallest children.

Begin Merger Study

By JUDY MORRIS

Members of school boards underlying Lake Park High School Dist. 108 agreed Wednesday to begin a study of possible district consolidation

Supt E W J Bagg of Roselle Dist 12 offered to head the study.

It was decided that two representatives from each of the five districts will comprise the committee for the study. Participants can be either board members or interested citizens

C F Nagro, a retired teacher, told the meeting of the boards, "Consolidation is important If we can make a beginning at least now and not let it drop, we could go very far in improving education"

Bagg began the discussion by quoting from a report on consolidation written in 1943, the issue is not a new one, he said, and added, "We must give all our children an equal opportunity for education."

THE STATE will reimburse the districts for a portion of the cost of the study, Bagg said.

Much voluntary consolidation has already taken place in Illinois school districts, Bagg reported. It is a feeling among many educators that the state may begin requiring consolidation in several years in order to insure the survival of small school districts

One board member said he feels a consolidation study may take as long as three years.

"If we wait until the need arises to study the problem," he said, "it may be too late." The group concurred that the study should begin now.

The school consolidation issue has many pros and cons. Those in favor of the system point to economy in sharing administrative salaries and other costs. Those against consolidation fear the loss of the individual school's identity.

THERE ARE several different forms consolidation can take. One solution is to combine elementary districts This is the plan that will be studied by the committee.

Another possibility is to form a unit school district which would also take in the high school. Many school boards are against this system because they feel the problems of elementary boards and high school boards are too different.

Those who support a unit consolidation plan point to the continuity in education resulting from a single board which would deal with grades kindergarten through 12.

Supt. Carl Forrester of Lake Park High School has gone on record as saying, "There is value in the formula for a unit district."

A third alternative is to form two districts, one elementary and one high school, but to have them operate under the same name.

The first meeting of the study committee is expected to take place later this month.

Ask State Assist

Wood Dale Village Councilman Dino Janis has sent a letter recently to Gov. Richard J Ogilvie asking Ogilvie's intercession into getting state approval of plans to widen and improve the intersection of Wood Dale and Irving Park roads

"We are writing your office as a last resort in the hopes of receiving some relief which involves some 9,000 residents in the Village of Wood Dale and some 80,000 to 100,000 residents surrounding our village," the letter starts

Janis explained how the intersection of Irving Park Road, a state highway, and Wood Dale Road, a county highway, has been known as one of the worst two lane intersections in DuPage County.

Janis said the project consisting of four lanes with a left turn lane added would cost an estimated $215,000. The DuPage County Board of Supervisors has agreed to share the project cost with Wood Dale, he added.

The village portion will be paid with Motor Fuel Tax fund money and other village funds, he said, with no cost to the state.

"AFTER RECEIVING tentative approval from the state engineer, we were waiting for formal approval of our plans," the letter said.

Valley in Winter

(Copyright 1969 Paddock Publications Inc.)

During the next few weeks, migrant workers will be pouring into our Northwest suburbs, mostly from Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley. Who are these migrants? What is HOME to them? Today, in the third of a six-part series, Senior Staff Writer David Hoyt describes the migrant's jobs in the valley before he heads north.

Story and Photos by David Hoyt

Whether he's a common farm laborer, a crew leader, a landscaper or a nursery worker, when it comes to making a living the Mexican American migrant is usually better off during his northern migration than he is at home in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The valley is home — true enough. The valley is where the family is The climate there is nice in the winter.

But valley agriculture simply cannot absorb a winter labor force that harvests most of the rest of the nation during the summer.

Between 100,000 and 125,000 migrants leave the valley each summer — about a third of the total population — and when they return there are simply not enough jobs to go around, not enough jobs to offer a decent wage.

"We hit about 6 per cent unemployment in the valley in the winter," Richard Stolle of the Texas Employment Commission says. "That's including people who'd like to work but can't They (the growers) can afford to offer low wages and still pick and choose who they hire"

GENERALLY THE migrant laborer has no other skills so he takes what work he can get and waits for the next migration

The man who makes $1 70 an hour in Minnesota is lucky to get 90 cents an hour doing the same thing in the valley

Stolle says $1.30 "is the federal standard minimum wage in agriculture" when he is asked about pay on the south Texas ranches.

It's a good answer. But it won't always wash, because much of the picking is done on a piece-work scale and what is made in pice-work depends on the pieces

Onion topping can bring a man good money. If the onions are big and the earth is not too hard, a man might put up six sacks of onions an hour, letting him average $1.50 an hour; 25 cents a sack is the going rate.

But that usually can't be done. The crews crawl along the rows, snipping, frantically at onions not much bigger than

Rose First Queen Recalls Crowning

NINE YEARS LATER, Mrs. Phanos stands in front of the Rose Restaurant in Roselle, which she and her husband, Adam, own. A graduate of Lake Park High School, Mrs. Phanos has lived in the Roselle area all her life.

by JUDY MORRIS

Tradition is a part of any beauty contest. One person in particular will observe Sunday's crowning of the Roselle Rose Queen with nostalgia.

Mrs. Ann Phanos, formerly Ann VanderWerf of Roselle, was the village's first rose queen in 1960. Mrs. Phanos presently lives in Roselle with her husband, Adam, and their 2-year-old son, Dino.

"My folks were pretty surprised," Mrs. Phanos said, "and I was very excited."

Festivities at that first rose pageant were much the same as they are now, Mrs. Phanos said. The 18 contestants rode in the parade in open convertibles just as this year's candidates will do.

MRS. PHANOS GREW UP in Roselle, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John VanderWerf, owned a grocery store on Bokelman Street near the present site of the Rose Restaurant which Mrs. Phanos and her husband own.

The first rose queen festival was organized by C. F. Nagro, a Roselle music teacher. Nagro was also the composer of the song "Roselle, Dear Home Town."

Aug. 7, 1960, was a bright and sunny day in Roselle. Record crowds turned out for the parade, many persons wearing a single rose pinned to lapel or dress. It was reported at the time that as many as 2,000 people saw Ann VanderWerf crowned as the first rose queen.

"I don't remember much about that day," Mrs. Phanos said.

"THERE WERE A LOT OF people, and I do remember being very nervous. Each girl was interviewed before the judges, and I'll never know how I got through it."

Gifts were given to the queen by local merchants. Savings bonds, gift certificates and even a piece of property in El Paso, Tex., were donated.

"I've never seen my lot in Texas," Mrs. Phanos said. She laughed. "I think I've still got the deed somewhere, but for all I know it's not even my property any more."

After graduation from Lake Park High School in the same year she won the contest, Mrs. Phanos attended Elgin Community College for a year and then worked as a catering manager for a country club.

SHE HAS BEEN married for five years and now jointly manages their restaurant with her husband.

"The system works out really well," Mrs. Phanos said. "I take care of the front of the restaurant and Adam supervises the kitchen and management."

Roselle's first rose queen said she never entered any other beauty contests because "I just never thought about it."

ROSELLE'S FIRST rose queen, Mrs. Ann Phanos, formerly Ann Vanderwerf, remembers she was "very excited" when she won the title in 1960.

More Power Urged

Cook County School Supt. Robert P. Hanrahan should become chief legislative spokesman for all northern Illinois schools, a consultant firm said this week.

The legislative recommendation was one of several recommendations made by the firm of Cresap, McCormick and Paget for strengthening the Cook County superintendent's office.

That recommendation is expected to ruffle feathers of other northern Illinois county superintendents and local school men working actively now to get school legislation through the General Assembly.

James Worthy, vice president of the firm, announced the results at a press conference Tuesday in Hanrahan's Chicago office.

HE SAID THE COUNTY superintendent should exercise leadership in legislative matters throughout northern Illinois "by force of personality" rather than "force of law."

The report said Hanrahan "should regard it as a continuing responsibility of his office to stimulate discussion and planning among his fellow county superintendents and among educators in general on how the state's total educational structure should be modified and strefgthened."

The report said the Cook County superintendent is "in a unique position" to understand the needs of growing suburban schools.

Worthy said the firm's recommendations for strengthening the Cook county school office are considered short-ranges with long-range improvements only possible through legislation.

THE STUDY also made these recommendations:

—That the state provide funds to double the number of professionals on Hanrahan's staff.

—That the county superintendent be elected only by voters in suburban Cook County, not by the City of Chicago.

—That Hanrahan's office beef up its consultant services to local schools.

—That legislation be passed to permit the superintendent's office to administer cooperative programs requested and financed by local school districts.

—That ineffective activities of the superintendent's office be reduced or eliminated.

The study said the county superintendent currently has a staff of 12 — three paid by the state, nine by the county and one from federal funds. Another dozen professionals should be added, it said.

Hanrahan acknowledged at the press conference that his staff is spread paperthin.

The county office, he noted, must conduct annual inspections of buildings in 146 school districts — but has only one man to do the job.

New Library Hours

The Roselle Public Library will have a new schedule of hours for the summer months beginning Monday. A cutback in open hours is the result of the relative lack of use of the library during the summer season, the loss of one librarian and vacation for the remaining librarians.

The new schedule is: Monday, from 1:30-5:30 p.m. and 6:30-9 p.m., Tuesday, from 1:30-5:30 p.m.; Wednesday, from 1:30-5:30 p.m.; Thursday, 1:30-5:30 p.m. and 6:30-9 p.m.; Friday, closed; Saturday, from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Hit Chamber Aid Proposal

An Illinois State Chamber proposal that the legislature back off from a state aid increase badly needed by Harper Junior College and the College of DuPage was sharply criticized today by a state junior college association official.

James Broman, executive director of the Illinois Association of Community and Junior Colleges, issued a statement expressing "deep concern" at the state chamber's recommendation that state aid go up only $2 per credit hour instead of the $4 raise to $15.50 recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE).

He said the state's business and industry stands to lose if the Illinois junior colleges don't get adequate funding.

BROMAN, LEGISLATIVE spokesman for the state junior college association to which Harper and the College of DuPage both belong, said the chamber suggestion that $7.1 million be trimmed from the state's budget by not giving as much to the junior colleges was "a shock, especially since the chamber of commerce was instrumental in creating the junior college system."

Broman said business and industry throughout the state will be hurt if the full $15.50 per credit hour aid level is not approved.

He said that local junior colleges need the state aid increase and a lower level would mean curtailment of expensive "occupational programs so vital to the economy" or increase in local property taxes to compensate for the state aid the junior colleges don't receive.

THE STATE chamber statement last week said its recommendation that state aid be increased only from $11.50 — this year's level, to $13.50 gibed with recommendations of the Illinois Junior College Board.

Broman said this is not so. He noted that the Illinois Junior College Board had originally recommended junior college state aid be increased from $11.50 to $17.

School Tax Vote Saturday

Tomorrow, residents of Bensenville and Wood Dale will vote on a 21-cent educational tax rate increase for Fenton High School A similar referendum was voted down last February

Polling places will be open Saturday from 9 a m to 7 p.m. Voters may register Saturday until noon at the Bensenville and Wood Dale village halls. In addition, a certified registrar will be at election headquarters at Fenton from 1 to 5 p.m. for latecomers.

A controversy over proposed curtailments of the Fenton curriculum this fall touched off the movement to hold Saturday's referendum Concerned residents formed the Fenton Citizens Committee and appeared before the Dist. 100 board May 9 to request the referendum.

PASSAGE OF the referendum would raise the educational fund tax rate from $1.21 to $1.42 per $100 of assessed valuation, providing an additional $175,000 for the district when taxes are collected next May.

At present, Dist. 100 has a deficit of about $750,000 in the educational fund.

This time around, the referendum has gained support from both school and village officials. Appearing before a meeting of the citizens committee, Village Pres. John Varble told the group he would "personally support the efforts of this committee to provide a good education for our children."

AT THE same meeting, Lt. Arthur Garcia of the Bensenville Police Department said, "Rest assured that I will assist you in any way possible to pass this referendum."

Mrs. Richard Diegnau, co-chairman of the committee, said she is "very optimistic" about passage of the referendum. She told workers for the referendum, "Our purpose is to inform. If people have the facts, they can't help but vote yes."

Fenton Board Pres. James DiOrio said Thursday, "I have high hopes that we'll have a successful referendum. All we as a board can do is function the best way possible with the tools the people give us."

The main feeling among members of the citizens committee seems to be that their first goal is a large turnout at the polls.

Mrs. Diegnau has said, "Even if the answer is no, we want a big turnout. At least then we will know how the people feel and can work from there." The committee anticipates a turnout of at least 3,000 voters.

The polling places for Dist. 100 are: Precinct 1, Mohawk School, Franzen Avenue, Bensenville; Precinct 2, Green Street School, Green Street, Bensenville; Precinct 3, Tioga School, Memorial Road and Addison Street, Bensenville; Precinct 4, Blackhawk Junior High School, Church Road, Bensenville; Precinct 5, Highland School, North Wood Dale Road, Wood Dale, and Precinct 6, Oakbrook School, South Wood Dale Road, Wood Dale.

STUDENTS IN Dist. 100 are planning a parade Saturday beginning at the high school at 10 a m. Bands, a float and representatives of school organizations will participate in the rally to support passage of the referendum.

Students and members of the Fenton Citizens Committee will be available Saturday for babysitting and shuttle services. Anyone who needs assistance may call election headquarters at Fenton, 766-2500. Several lines will be open to take calls.

Fenton Business Manager Kenneth Carroll has said that much of the opposition to the referendum has resulted from rumors begin spread around the district.

"If someone's against the referendum," he said, "they will latch onto any little thing to argue it." Nevertheless Carroll said he is optimistic about passage of the referendum because "This time there has been so much activity by people who haven't helped us before."

Emil Kupisch, co-chairman of the committee said, "People will pick up little things to use against us. In this case, our enemy may be our neighbor, so word of mouth about the referendum must come into play."

Referring to the coming curtailments, Kupisch said, "There are too many areas to improve in education without taking away what we have."

Anyone with questions concerning the referendum may call Mrs. Richard Diegnau at 766-3004 or Fenton High School.

A Register Editorial

Help Dist. 100

Tomorrow could be a good day for students in Bensenville and Wood Dale if enough voters say "yes" to a 21-cent educational tax rate increase

The Dist 100 High School Board of Education asked for a similar tax boost in February, but voters turned it down As a result, cutbacks to the tune of $140,000 will be made in next year's budget. What does this mean to the high school?

The elimination of one period in the school day will mean that many students will not be able to fit band, chorus or drama into their schedules. One-half of the art program will be cut, affecting more than 125 students

Some freshman and junior varsity sports will have to be eliminated, and other student clubs and organizations will have their budgets cut in half

BUT THE academic cutback is most serious No longer will a student be able to take more than four solid subjects during a semester Thus the student who is really interested in learning more will be denied the opportunity of an additional course

Whether a student is headed for college, vocational school or directly into the business world, he will use his high school training on a daily basis Without a sound and well rounded educational base, it will be difficult for him to compete

But perhaps you don't have children in the high school and are not yet, or no longer, interested in what is happening there Consider another point

It has been frequently pointed out by Realtors that the quality of a town's educational system has a direct affect on the property values in that community. Few parents would buy a home in a community with an unaccredited high school.

IF FENTON does not receive additional funds by the fall of 1970, it is almost certain to lose its accreditation with the North Central Association.

It is unfortunate that the people who will be most strongly affected by this issue are not old enough to record their opinions at the polls. But students at Fenton have found a new way to demonstrate how they feel about pending cutbacks.

They have constructed signs, written leaflets and offered their services as drivers and babysitters on election day. They will march through the streets of Bensenville tomorrow to demonstrate their concern about the fate of their school

CAN ADULTS afford to do less?

We support the work of the Fenton Citizens Committee and the Fenton High School Student Council in urging you to vote "yes" tomorrow.

Rose Parade Set

The annual Roselle rose parade and queen contest will begin at 1:30 p m. Sunday.

Marshals for the parade will be Chuck Benson and Kurt Russell, disc jockeys from Chicago radio station WIND.

The parade this year will honor Gary Steger, injured Lake Park athlete. The parade route has been altered so that the procession will pass in front of Gary's home.

Seven contestants will compete for the title of "Miss Roselle Rose Queen." They will ride in open convertibles to the parade grounds, where the queen will be crowned.

The girls will be interviewed Saturday morning by a panel of judges. Beauty, talent and composure will be a part of the criteria. Paul Derda, Roselle Park director, will tabulate the votes and keep the sealed results until Sunday.

All seven contestants attend Lake Park High School.

The parade this year will include the famous Highlanders Bagpipe Band of Chicago, which was founded 49 years ago by a small group of Scottish immigrants who served in the Scottish regiments during World War I.

The band is authentic with members having been born in Canada, Ireland, Scotland and England, where they served with both civilian and military groups.

Other parade participants will be school bands, girl scouts, VFW members and color guards from the Navy, Coast Guard and Marines.

Another part of the Roselle festivities is a carnival at Parkside Park which began yesterday. Featured in the carnival is the "umbrella ride," premiered for the first time in this country.

Other rides include the ferris wheel, merry-go-round, tilt-a-whirl, flying scooter and round-up. Kiddie autos and the "Baby Frolic" are rides designed for even the smallest children.

May Top 400

Cutting the size of precincts in DuPage County may result in an estimated 65 additional over last year's count, according to preliminary figures.

Finalization of the number and locations of new precincts is expected later this month. The number is expected to grow to 407, provided remaining townships fall in line.

Donald J. Wall, election committee chairman of the DuPage County Board of Supervisors, said this week that several precincts have grown as much as 1,500 in the last two years, since the last re-precincting. Two started with less than five registered voters in the precinct and, due to wild development and growth, have grown to nearly 1,550, he said.

Begin Merger Study

By JUDY MORRIS

Members of school boards underlying Lake Park High School Dist. 108 agreed Wednesday to begin a study of possible district consolidation.

Supt E. W J. Bagg of Roselle Dist. 12 offered to head the study.

It was decided that two representatives from each of the five districts will comprise the committee for the study. Participants can be either board members or interested citizens.

C. F. Nagro, a retired teacher, told the meeting of the boards. "Consolidation is important If we can make a beginning at least now and not let it drop, we could go very far in improving education."

Bagg began the discussion by quoting from a report on consolidation written in 1943. the issue is not a new one, he said, and added, "We must give all our children an equal opportunity for education."

THE STATE will reimburse the districts for a portion of the cost of the study, Bagg said.

Much voluntary consolidation has already taken place in Illinois school districts, Bagg reported. It is a feeling among many educators that the state may begin requiring consolidation in several years in order to insure the survival of small school districts.

One board member said he feels a consolidation study may take as long as three years.

"If we wait until the need arises to study the problem," he said, "it may be too late." The group concurred that the study should begin now.

The school consolidation issue has many pros and cons. Those in favor of the system point to economy in sharing administrative salaries and other costs. Those against consolidation fear the loss of the individual school's identity.

THERE ARE several different forms consolidation can take. One solution is to combine elementary districts. This is the plan that will be studied by the committee.

Another possibility is to form a unit school district which would also take in the high school Many school boards are against this system because they feel the problems of elementary boards and high school boards are too different.

Those who support a unit consolidation plan point to the continuity in education resulting from a single board which would deal with grades kindergarten through 12.

Supt. Carl Forrester of Lake Park High School has gone on record as saying, "There is value in the formula for a unit district."

A third alternative is to form two districts, one elementary and one high school, but to have them operate under the same name.

The first meeting of the study committee is expected to take place later this month.

Ask State Assist

Wood Dale Village Councilman Dino Janis has sent a letter recently to Gov. Richard J Ogilvie asking Ogilvie's intercession into getting state approval of plans to widen and improve the intersection of Wood Dale and Irving Park roads

"We are writing your office as a last resort in the hopes of receiving some relief which involves some 9,000 residents in the Village of Wood Dale and some 80,000 to 100,000 residents surrounding our village," the letter starts.

Janis explained how the intersection of Irving Park Road, a state highway, and Wood Dale Road, a county highway, has been known as one of the worst two lane intersections in DuPage County.

Janis said the project consisting of four lanes with a left turn lane added would cost an estimated $215,000. The DuPage County Board of Supervisors has agreed to share the project cost with Wood Dale, he added.

The village portion will be paid with Motor Fuel Tax fund money and other village funds, he said, with no cost to the state.

"AFTER RECEIVING tentative approval from the state engineer, we were waiting for formal approval of our plans," the letter said.

Valley in Winter

(Copyright 1969 Paddock Publications Inc.)

During the next few weeks, migrant workers will be pouring into our Northwest suburbs, mostly from Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley. Who are these migrants? What is HOME to them? Today, in the third of a six-part series, Senior Staff Writer David Hoyt describes the migrant's jobs in the valley before he heads north.

Story and Photos by David Hoyt

Whether he's a common farm laborer, a crew leader, a landscaper or a nursery worker, when it comes to making a living the Mexican American migrant is usually better off during his northern migration than he is at home in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The valley is home — true enough. The valley is where the family is The climate there is nice in the winter.

But valley agriculture simply cannot absorb a winter labor force that harvests most of the rest of the nation during the summer.

Between 100,000 and 125,000 migrants leave the valley each summer — about a third of the total population — and when they return there are simply not enough jobs to go around, not enough jobs to offer a decent wage.

"We hit about 6 per cent unemployment in the valley in the winter," Richard Stolle of the Texas Employment Commission says. "That's including people who'd like to work but can't They (the growers) can afford to offer low wages and still pick and choose who they hire."

GENERALLY THE migrant laborer has no other skills so he takes what work he can get and waits for the next migration

The man who makes $1 70 an hour in Minnesota is lucky to get 90 cents an hour doing the same thing in the valley

Stolle says $1 30 "is the federal standard minimum wage in agriculture," when he is asked about pay on the south Texas ranches.

It's a good answer. But it won't always wash, because much of the picking is done on a piece-work scale and what is made in pice-work depends on the pieces

Onion topping can bring a man good money. If the onions are big and the earth is not too hard, a man might put up six sacks of onions an hour, letting him average $1.50 an hour; 25 cents a sack is the going rate

But that usually can't be done The crews crawl along the rows, snipping frantically at onions not much bigger than

NINE YEARS LATER. Mrs. Phanos stands in front of the Rose Restaurant in Roselle, which she and her husband, Adam, own. A graduate of Lake Park High School, Mrs. Phanos has lived in the Roselle area all her life.

First Queen Recalls Crowning

by JUDY MORRIS

Tradition is a part of any beauty contest. One person in particular will observe Sunday's crowning of the Roselle Rose Queen with nostalgia.

Mrs. Ann Phanos, formerly Ann VanderWerf of Roselle, was the village's first rose queen in 1960. Mrs. Phanos presently lives in Roselle with her husband, Adam, and their 2-year-old son, Dino.

"My folks were pretty surprised," Mrs. Phanos said, "and I was very excited."

Festivities at that first rose pageant were much the same as they are now, Mrs. Phanos said. The 18 contestants rode in the parade in open convertibles just as this year's candidates will do.

MRS. PHANOS GREW UP in Roselle, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John VanderWerf, owned a grocery store on Bokelman Street near the present site of the Rose Restaurant which Mrs. Phanos and her husband own.

The first rose queen festival was organized by C. F. Nagro, a Roselle music teacher. Nagro was also the composer of the song "Roselle, Dear Home Town."

Aug. 7, 1960, was a bright and sunny day in Roselle. Record crowds turned out for the parade, many persons wearing a single rose pinned to lapel or dress. It was reported at the time that as many as 2,000 people saw Ann VanderWerf crowned as the first rose queen.

"I don't remember much about that day," Mrs. Phanos said.

"THERE WERE A LOT OF people, and I do remember being very nervous. Each girl was interviewed before the judges, and I'll never know how I got through it."

Gifts were given to the queen by local merchants. Savings bonds, gift certificates and even a piece of property in El Paso, Tex., were donated.

"I've never seen my lot in Texas," Mrs. Phanos said. She laughed. "I think I've still got the deed somewhere, but for all I know it's not even my property anymore."

After graduation from Lake Park High School in the same year she won the contest, Mrs. Phanos attended Elgin Community College for a year and then worked as a catering manager for a country club.

SHE HAS BEEN married for five years and now jointly manages their restaurant with her husband.

"The system works out really well," Mrs. Phanos said. "I take care of the front of the restaurant and Adam supervises the kitchen and management."

Roselle's first rose queen said she never entered any other beauty contests because "I just never thought about it."

ROSELLE'S FIRST rose queen, Mrs. Ann Phanos, formerly Ann Vanderwerf, remembers she was "very excited" when she won the title in 1960.

More Power Urged

Cook County School Supt. Robert P. Hanrahan should become chief legislative spokesman for all northern Illinois schools, a consultant firm said this week.

The legislative recommendation was one of several recommendations made by the firm of Cresap, McCormick and Paget for strengthening the Cook County superintendent's office.

That recommendation is expected to ruffle feathers of other northern Illinois county superintendents and local school men working actively now to get school legislation through the General Assembly.

James Worthy, vice president of the firm, announced the results at a press conference Tuesday in Hanrahan's Chicago office.

HE SAID THE COUNTY superintendent should exercise leadership in legislative matters throughout northern Illinois "by force of personality" rather than "force of law."

The report said Hanrahan "should regard it as a continuing responsibility of his office to stimulate discussion and planning among his fellow county superintendents and among educators in general on how the state's total educational structure should be modified and strefgthened."

The report said the Cook County superintendent is "in a unique position" to understand the needs of growing suburban schools.

Worthy said the firm's recommendations for strengthening the Cook county school office are considered short-ranges with long-range improvements only possible through legislation.

THE STUDY also made these recommendations:

—That the state provide funds to double the number of professionals on Hanrahan's staff.

—That the county superintendent be elected only by voters in suburban Cook County, not by the City of Chicago.

—That Hanrahan's office beef up its consultant services to local schools.

—That legislation be passed to permit the superintendent's office to administer cooperative programs requested and financed by local school districts.

—That ineffective activities of the superintendent's office be reduced or eliminated.

The study said the county superintendent currently has a staff of 12 — three paid by the state, nine by the county and one from federal funds. Another dozen professionals should be added, it said.

Hanrahan acknowledged at the press conference that his staff is spread paperthin.

The county office, he noted, must conduct annual inspections of buildings in 146 school districts — but has only one man to do the job.

New Library Hours

The Roselle Public Library will have a new schedule of hours for the summer months beginning Monday. A cutback in open hours is the result of the relative lack of use of the library during the summer season, the loss of one librarian and vacation for the remaining librarians.

The new schedule is: Monday, from 1:30-5:30 p.m. and 6:30-9 p.m.; Tuesday, from 1:30-5:30 p.m.; Wednesday, from 1:30-5:30 p.m., Thursday, 1:30-5:30 p.m. and 6:30-9 p.m.; Friday, closed; Saturday, from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Hit Chamber Aid Proposal

An Illinois State Chamber proposal that the legislature back off from a state aid increase badly needed by Harper Junior College and the College of DuPage was sharply criticized today by a state junior college association official.

James Broman, executive director of the Illinois Association of Community and Junior Colleges, issued a statement expressing "deep concern" at the state chamber's recommendation that state aid go up only $2 per credit hour instead of the $4 raise to $15.50 recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE).

He said the state's business and industry stands to lose if the Illinois junior colleges don't get adequate funding.

BROMAN, LEGISLATIVE spokesman for the state junior college association to which Harper and the College of DuPage both belong, said the chamber suggestion that $7.1 million be trimmed from the state's budget by not giving as much to the junior colleges was "a shock, especially since the chamber of commerce was instrumental in creating the junior college system."

Broman said business and industry throughout the state will be hurt if the full $15.50 per credit hour aid level is not approved.

He said that local junior colleges needl the state aid increase and a lower level would mean curtailment of expensive "occupational programs so vital to the economy" or increase in local property taxes to compensate for the state aid the junior colleges don't receive.

THE STATE chamber statement last week said its recommendation that state aid be increased only from $11.50 — this year's level, to $13.50 gibed with recommendations of the Illinois Junior College Board.

Broman said this is not so. He noted that the Illinois Junior College Board had originally recommended junior college state aid be increased from $11.50 to $17.

Oppose Complex Plan

Filibuster Is Flop

SPRINGFIELD — Black legislators in the House filibusterer unsuccessfully for more than two hours yesterday in an attempt to divert an appropriation bill and use part of the funds to train the unemployed for state jobs.

Negro legislators unsuceessfully tried to attach six amendments to the $37.1 million appropriation for the Department of Conservation.

Forsees ABM Approval

WASHINGTON — Easy Senate approval for President Nixon's anti-ballistic missile system was predicted yesterday by Republican Whip Hugh Scott, now that a nationwide poll has reported 84 per cent of the population favors an ABM.

Scott said the poll was conducted by a Princeton, N.J., research firm for a new citizens organization formed to mobilize public opinion in favor of the ABM system

Nixon Picks Vet Head

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. — President Nixon yesterday announced his selection of Donald E. Johnson, former national commander of the American Legion, as new director of Veterans' Administration, replacing William J. Driver, who resigned

Johnson, 44, runs a farm supply business in West Branch, Iowa.

A Red Choice Is OK

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State William P Rogers said yesterday the presence of some Communists in the South Vietnamese government would be acceptable to the United States if they were chosen in a free election.

Rogers said the U.S. was not wedded to any government in Saigon, but only to the principle that the people there "should have the right by free choice to decide their future."

SPEAKING BEFORE about 80 homeowners in the Mark Hopkins area of Elk Grove Village was Robert Frankenberg of Centex Industrial Park Association. Frankenberg addressed residents along with representatives of the village, Centex Corp., Dist. 59, Comunity Education., park board, and chamber of commerce. Meeting was sponsored by the Elk Grove Village Citizens Comittee.

More than 80 residents, most of them from the Mark Hopkins area or One-East section of Elk Grove Village, learned Wednesday that 600-unit apartment project may be built near their homes

Village officials told residents that they had met with a developer who would like to build multiple-family dwellings east of section One-East and north of Landmeier Road.

There are about 30 acres in the tract that would serve as a buffer zone with industry designated further east.

REACTION OF homeowners in One-East, between Oakton and Landmeier roads and Wildwood and Fleetwood drives, was mixed. Several spoke against multiple-family dwellings.

One man said residents of apartments would not pay as much in taxes and their children would overload the Mark Hopkins School.

He was told that a survey by Dist. 59 showed fewer children live in apartments that in single-family dwellings.

Other homeowners were concerned that multiple-family dwellings would be built as low-cost housing for labor in Centex Industrial Park.

TRUSTEE GEORGE Coney said, "the philosophy of the current village board is against low-cost housing."

However, Jack Pahl, village president, said Elk Grove Village does have a labor shortage, but the problem is common to other areas

During the meeting at Mark Hopkins School, where community leaders were invited to talk to residents, Robert Frankenberg of Centex Industrial Park Association spoke on the merits of his organization

Frankenberg said he wanted to clear up several misconceptions about CIPA. He said it is a nonprofit organization which derived its name from Centex Corp.

"We have no profit motives in mind and do not own any land," Frankenberg said.

FRANKENBERG said when James Gibson, former village trustee, was made executive secretary of CIPA it was not an attempt to buy a vote on the village board. He was the best man for the job, he said.

Frankenberg said he wanted to publicly clear this matter up.

He said the industrial park has given Elk Grove Village a solid assessed valuation and it has an international reputation.

"It is the largest, fastest growing, and best planned industrial park in the U.S.," he asserted.

"The industrial park sends no children to schools," Frankenberg said, emphasizing that the park contributes a lot of tax money to the community.

Elks In Village?

An Elk's Club may be coming to Elk Grove Village.

Richard Smith, of 63 Walpole Road, said he is attempting to interest Northwest suburbanites into forming a local chapter in the village

Jack Pahl, Village President; Frank Krebs, former village engineer, and Charles Hodlmair, township assessor, are working with Smith and Charles Bolek of Des Plaines Lodge 1526, George Hickey of the National Grand Lodge in Chicago, and C. W. Kaltschuck, executive secretary of the Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce.

Smith said the Elk's Club is a benevolent and social organization active in charities. It is especially active in caring for crippled children and furthering the education of underprivileged children, he said.

A NONPROFIT organization, it has a membership of 1,400,000 with 2,100 lodges throughout the country.

Any interested resident may join if he is a citizen, Smith said. A minimum of 100 bonafide applicants are needed to form a local chapter.

Smith, a warehouse manager of Continental Motors Corp., in Melrose Park, said he became interested in establishing a chapter ever since he moved to Elk Grove Village in 1966.

He currently is a member of Muskegon Lodge No. 274, where he lived and worked before moving more than three years ago.

Smith said a meeting of persons interested in forming a chapter will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Holiday Inn, Landmeier Road and Illinois Rt. 83.

Smith may be reached by calling 439-8665.

OK Bill on Marijuana

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to lessen penalties for the first offense of possession of marijuana passed the Senate, 39-0, Thursday with no debate, and returned to the House for concurrence in an amendment

The measure changes the first offense of possession of less than 2.5 grams of marijuana from a felony to a misdemeanor, and changes the maximum penalty possible from the current 2 to 10 years in prison to one year or a $1,500 fine, or both

U.S. Jet Gunned Down

SAIGON — Anti-aircraft gunners around the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi shot down an unarmed U.S. reconnaissance jet yesterday, and American fighter-bombers retaliated with the first announced attack on North Vietnam in six months

The two-man crew of the downed plane was rescued The U.S. command said results of the raid against the North Vietnamese gunners were not known.

Breadbasket To Lobby

SPRINGFIELD — The Rev. Jesse Jackson, head of Operation Breadbasket, yesterday said his organization will open an office in Springfield next week and hopes to organize a lobby in the legislature

Jackson said the office will probably open next Wednesday "to organize a lobby to fight hunger in Illinois."

Draw Up Teen Center Plans

After months of debates and discussions in the Elk Grove Park District board specific plans have been made for summer for the new teen center.

The major current project of the center, according to Recreation Supt. Suzanne Olson, is booking bands for dances which will be held each Thursday night during the summer months.

"This is what the kids are most interested in right now," says Miss Olson.

An audition for bands will be held at Elk Grove High School June 14 in conjunction with the high school, which is in need of bands for next school year. Each band will have 15 minutes to audition, and should contact Miss Olson before June 14.

ONLY MEMBERS will be allowed to attend the dances. They will be able to purchase a temporary membership card for 25 cents. Yearly membership cards will be available later, but the fee has not yet been set.

Miss Olson stressed that any teen will be eligible for membership after graduation from eighth grade.

It is hoped that the teen center, approved late in April, will be functioning fully by late August or early September. Detailed plans on the center have been completed.

The building will be a pre-fabricated cedar structure and will contain a large recreation room, kitchen, and small meeting room. The walls and roof are pre-cut and delivered and assembled on the site.

Bids are to be drawn up and submitted to the park board by June 12. The job specifications will be sent to area companies and about two weeks later the bids will be awarded to the lowest bidder.

VOLUNTEER HELP is needed in the electrical, plumbing, and heating trades in order to reduce the cost of the building. Contract bids will be awarded for concrete work, erection of the building, heating, and electrical work.

The recreation room will contain a snack bar, juke box, and dance floor where there will be live entertainment for dances. The games room is to include pool tables, ping-pong tables, and table games. There will also be a room reserved for quiet study, television room, movie room, and patio.

A daily schedule has also been drawn up for the teen center during the school year.

Mondays through Fridays, it will be open from 3 to 5:30 p.m. for informal activity for youths dropping in after school. From 7:30 to 9 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays, there will be planned activities — movies on Monday, special events, classes, or study Tuesdays, coffee house Wednesdays, and speaker's forum Thursdays. Each Friday, from 8 to 11 p.m., there will be a dance with live entertainment.

ON SATURDAYS, the center will again be open for informal activity from 10 to 5:30 p.m. There will then be a coffee house atmosphere from 8 to 11. Sundays, from 10 to 1 p.m., families can enjoy coffee and doughnuts. The center will remain open until 9:30 p.m.

The center will have a full-time direc-

Valley in Winter

(Copyright 1969 Paddock Publications Inc.)

During the next few weeks, migrant workers will be pouring into our Northwest suburbs, mostly from Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley. Who are these migrants? What is HOME to them? Today, in the third of a six-part series, Senior Staff Writer David Hoyt describes the migrant's jobs in the valley before he heads north.

Story and Photos by David Hoyt

Whether he's a common farm laborer, a crew leader, a landscaper or a nursery worker, when it comes to making a living the Mexican American migrant is usually better off during his northern migration than he is at home in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The valley is home — true enough. The valley is where the family is. The climate there is nice in the winter.

But valley agriculture simply cannot absorb a winter labor force that harvests most of the rest of the nation during the summer.

Between 100,000 and 125,000 migrants leave the valley each summer — about a third of the total population — and when they return there are simply not enough jobs to go around, not enough jobs to offer a decent wage.

"We hit about 6 per cent unemployment in the valley in the winter," Richard Stolle of the Texas Employment Commission says. "That's including people who'd like to work but can't. They (the growers) can afford to offer low wages and still pick and choose who they hire."

GENERALLY THE migrant laborer has no other skills so he takes what work he can get and waits for the next migration.

The man who makes $1.70 an hour in Minnesota is lucky to get 90 cents an hour doing the same thing in the valley.

Stolle says $1.30 "is the federal standard minimum wage in agriculture," when he is asked about pay on the south Texas ranches.

It's a good answer. But it won't always wash, because much of the picking is done on a piece-work scale and what is made in pice-work depends on the pieces.

Onion topping can bring a man good money. If the onions are big and the earth is not too hard, a man might put up six sacks of onions an hour, letting him average $1.50 an hour; 25 cents a sack is the going rate.

But that usually can't be done. The crews crawl along the rows, snipping frantically at onions not much bigger than

Animal Circus Coming July 8

Wild animals will come to Elk Grove Village July 8.

Dr. Alan Shapiro, president of the Kiwanis Club, announced the organization is sponsoring an appearance by Carson & Barnes Five-Ring Wild Animal Circus.

Performances featuring elephants, camels, llamas and traditional circus acts will be given at 2 and 8 p.m. at the Grove Shopping Center grounds.

Kiwanis Club will receive 50 per cent of the proceeds from the advance sale of tickets. Purchasers will save 50 cents on advance tickets.

Kiwanis will share 50 per cent of its profits from the advance sale with several non-profit civic and charitable organizations in the area as commission for direct sales made by these groups.

For further information call Dr. Shapiro at 439-5757 or Bob Winkle at 437-2200.

Collection of Films Available at Library

Home movie enthusiasts in Elk Grove Village have an added service provided by the local library.

Elk Grove Village Public Library, 101 Kennedy Blvd., is making available to the public 74 8mm films. The collection includes historical and sport documentaries, travel, biography, and excerpts from Hollywood film classics.

Films may be checked out on a regular adult library card on a first-come, first-served basis.

Ostrow: Need Equal Respect for Each Other

by SANDRA BROWNING

Frank Ostrow is an unimposing man with friendly eyes and an easy smile

If you live in northern Arlington Heights he and his wife and four children may be moving in next door to you this week

"Most people shy away from me because I am involved in something controversial Ostrow said in an interview with the Herald

Ostrow's part time interest is a group called the Remember the Pueblo Committee of the United States of which he is chairman In July, he started a group by that name in Kent Washington It has now grown to include committees across the nation Members recently changed the name to United States Pueblo Committee and plan to call it "US" for short

Frank Ostrow... "I m a maverick and I know it"

WITH OSTROW MOVING into Arlington Heights, he will be the second man in the area who heads a Remember the Pueblo Committee The Rev Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, is chairman of the national "Remember the Pueblo" committee

The two committees have similar names and were organized for similar reasons, but are separate groups which happened to spring up after the capture of the USS Pueblo by North Korea in January of 1968

Ostrow says he has talked with Lindstrom but the two groups will not unite forces He said these two committees and other groups organized as a result of the Pueblo incident will operate separately but will work cooperatively

THE REASON OSTROW formed his committee in July was to mold national opinion and inform the news media about the inhuman treatment which the men of the Pueblo were receiving He wanted to raise enough support to show politicians the strength of his cause to create hope for the captured men and to not let the matter be forgotten

Although the committee s name seems to imply its dedication to one purpose Ostrow says the goals of the group were broader

The World War II veteran says, How many more men do we have to kill and how many more violations do there have to be before action is taken?"

The seizing of the Pueblo and the April EC-121 reconnaissance plane incident "showed we are no longer safe,' he says

'Who is going to stand up for law?" the ex-Marine asks He says the Abe Fortas incident was an example of high level nonresponsibility for law

Ostrow says he feels the public has not been totally informed about the Pueblo investigation He says senators are trying to bury the incident but they should see it as too vital to international affairs to be forgotten

'If our senators can t see that, we need new senators Ostrow maintains 'All we want to do is to obtain the facts so that each person can make his own decision

Ostrow says the government has taken the commodity from people which officials are elected to preserve — time We need time to get the facts and become more informed he states

THE REASON OSTROW got involved in the committee was because "I got mad and I m going to stay mad It may take 12 years — this is no short range project

Ostrow looks at himself as a philosopher I guess My concern is how to motivate the broad segment of the middle He things many Americans are in favor of the goals of his committee but they are afraid to speak up 'I have no fear he says

As a former newspaper man, Ostrow says he has learned the position of sticking my neck out for those who were afraid to

Ostrow says he has been called a communist and threatened with jail Some persons refused to speak to him when he first became involved with the committee 'I found later they would come up to tell me they were on my side he says

THE BLOND-HAIRED Ostrow seems too quiet to be so involved in the nationwide committee He seems at a loss to explain how his attempt to "do something" got so big

'I'm a maverick and I know it' he says

And he doesn t seem to mind it

His answers are sometimes surprisingly simple, like when he says

"What we need is to have equal respect for each other '

Ask State Assist

Wood Dale Village Councilman Dino Janis has sent a letter recently to Gov Richard J Ogilvie asking Ogilvie s intercession into getting state approval of plans to widen and improve the intersection of Wood Dale and Irving Park roads

We are writing your office as a last resort in the hopes of receiving some relief which involves some 9 000 residents in the Village of Wood Dale and some 80 000 to 100 000 residents surrounding our village the letter starts

Janis explained how the intersection of Irving Park Road a state highway, and Wood Dale Road a county highway, has been known as one of the worst two lane intersections in DuPage County

Janis said the project consisting of four lanes with a left turn lane added would cost an estimated $215 000 The DuPage County Board of Supervisors has agreed to share the project cost with Wood Dale, he added

The village portion will be paid with Motor Fuel Tax fund money and other village funds he said with no cost to the state

"AFTER RECEIVING tentative approval from the state engineer, we were waiting for formal approval of our plans," the letter said

Hit Chamber Aid Proposal

An Illinois State Chamber proposal that the legislature back off from a state aid increase badly needed by Harper Junior college and the College of DuPage was sharply criticized today by a state junior college association official

James Broman executive director of the Illinois Association of Community and Junior Colleges, issued a statement expressing "deep concern" at the state chamber's recommendation that state aid go up only $2 per credit hour instead of the $4 raise to $15.50 recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE)

He said the state's business and industry stands to lose if the Illinois junior colleges don't get adequate funding

BROMAN, LEGISLATIVE spokesman for the state junior college association to which Harper and the College of DuPage both belong, said the chamber suggestion that $7 1 million be trimmed from the state's budget by not giving as much to the junior colleges was "a shock, especially since the chamber of commerce was instrumental in creating the junior college system."

Broman said business and industry throughout the state will be hurt if the full $15 50 per credit hour aid level is not approved

He said that local junior colleges needl the state aid increase and a lower level would mean curtailment of expensive "occupational programs so vital to the economy" or increase in local property taxes to compensate for the state aid the junior colleges don't receive.

THE STATE chamber statement last week said its recommendation that state aid be increased only from $11.50 — this year's level, to $13.50 gibed with recommendations of the Illinois Junior College Board.

Broman said this is not so He noted that the Illinois Junior College Board had originally recommended junior college state aid be increased from $11.50 to $17.

OK Chino Park Practice Use

With the blessings of the village board, Hoffman Estates Athletic Association (HEAA) and the Boys Club will continue their mutual use of Chino Park for football practice this year

According to Trustee Edward J Hennessy, who recently held a joint meeting with representatives of both youth groups, there has never been a problem regarding scheduling the use of Chino Park

Hall commissioner, said practice sessions for teams sponsored by both groups will begin about Aug 1

Game conflicts do not exist, since all games played by the Commandos and Raiders, HEAA teams, are played at the Conant High School football field on Sundays The Raiders and Titans, Boys Club teams, play their games on Sunday afternoons also but at Chino Park

Hennessy said Bob Hill, director of the Boys Club, and Louis Dalitta, HEAA foot-

PRACTICE SESSIONS for both groups, however will take place at Chino Park, and Hill and Dalitto have promised to work out an amiable solution for specific times

Hennessy also reported that both youth organizations had voiced several requests

The Boys Club would like to have the football field mowed before each Sunday game, and they also feel that since the village is maintaining the Chino Park sponsibility for striping the field sponsibility for striping th field

Hennessy said that the Boys Club also expressed willingness to paint the exterior of The Barn if materials are donated by village residents

"Perhaps some kind hearted hardware store owner might consider giving them about 60 gallons of paint," Hennessy quipped in obvious reference to retired Village Pres. Roy L. Jenkins, owner of a hardware franchise operation in downtown Hoffman Estates.

HEAA expressed concern about the condition of approximately $1,200 in sod installed by them on the pony league baseball diamond at Chino Park. Hennessy said "They are worried about members of the fire department playing on the diamond and tearing it up," he said

ACCORDING TO Ed Kalasa, assistant fire chief, who was present at this week's board meeting, the fire department baseball team has now moved its practice to Robert Frost and Helen Keller Junior High School diamonds.

"Anyway, we were just aerating the field for them," Kalasa commented.

In a related discussion, Wallace Bolm, superintendent of public works, reported extensive damage to drinking water fountains near the Boys Club Barn and Chino Park He said the fountains had just been remounted in cement to prevent damage and several of them are already in bad repair.

Chino Park is one of two park facilities owned by the village, although eventual plans call for possible release to the park district.

'Kids in Kitchen' Course Is Planned

The preparation of hot weather food and drink will be the subject of the five week summer session of the "Kids in the Kitchen" cooking course sponsored by the Elgin Young Women's Christian Association for girls in grades three through six.

The first class is scheduled for Wed., June 11. The sessions will meet each week from noon to 2:30 p.m. in the YW under the direction of Miss Wendy Null.

THE COOKING course will end with a picnic in Lord's Park with the menu selected and prepared by the girls.

Classes are limited to eight girls, and the total charge for each girl is $3.75.

Registrations can be made by contacting the youth department at the YW 683-7930.

Library Adopts Book Plan

Schaumburg Township Library Board has indicated that it will gather more facts before proceeding with plans for a library addition.

A 7,800-square-foot addition costing $195,000 had been proposed earlier to be built on the front of the present library building.

Board members at Wednesday's meeting requested further study of the availability of money from the township in future years, as well as money available in mortgage loans from local financial institutions.

Board Member Robert B. Lyons was named liaison representative with the township board of auditors to determine plans for future gifts to the library.

SCHAUMBURG TOWNSHIP is attempting to construct an administrative building, to be shared with Dist. 54 school officials and paid for with excess commission collected by the township. Last year the township collector received $88,000 as the township's share of taxes paid locally.

In this year's township budget, $20,760 will be transferred to the library fund for the township library.

Schaumburg Township Library Board members want to find out if the township will provide financial gifts to the library in future years, or if all of their available funds will be used to pay for an administrative building.

Library board members agreed that financing of a library addition should be carefully plotted before having an architect draw up any plans.

According to librarian Michael Madden, the library possibly could obtain mortgage loans up to 50 per cent of the library's value with improvements. This would mean that the library can borrow up to $187,000 under state library legislation, provided that mortgage money is available from banks.

The present Schaumburg Township Library building is valued at $170,000.

Slow, But Sure

Preparation of Hoffman Estates' 1969-70 appropriation and budget is coming along slowly, but surely, Trustee William W. Cowin, finance committee chairman, told the Herald Thursday.

Cowin said that due to the press of a heavy meeting schedule for all trustees, he is reluctant to call a number of committee meetings at close intervals.

"I am more concerned right now with going to each separate department and trying to determine what is really necessary and where things could be shaved down a bit," he said, emphasizing, however, that a minimum of 12 hours more work lies ahead in budget preparation.

THIS YEAR THE village board is working together as a committee-of-the-whole under Cowin's chairmanship, to prepare the appropriation and budget.

Regarding the total financial picture of the village at present, Cowin, who has two yearsre maining in his present term, said he will have a prepared statement for release at Monday night's village board meeting.

Two weeks ago, he was forced to request authorization for the immediate sale of $40,000 in tax anticipation warrants to meet current financial commitments.

In the past the village ha sold about $70,000 in tax anticipation warrants annually, however, that amount will increase to $115,000 after the current sale.

"I feel that we will be extremely lucky if we can avoid a tax increase next year," Cowin said, explaining that his feelings are based on a review of the needs and commitments of the village.

"I ALSO FEEL that the community is going to have to brace itself for this necessity, although certainly no one likes the idea," he added.

Cowin had previously served as chairman of the buildings and grounds committee until shortly after the April 15 election, when newly elected Pres. Frederick E. Downey named him chairman of finance and reorganized that group to a committee-of-the-whole.

Assessing the progress of Downey and three new trustees and a village clerk, Cowin said he is pleased with the way the new officials are diving into their work.

"Considering the fact that this is a new board with a considerably altered outlook, their interests and enthusiasm is really great, although it will be a while before their influence can have much effect on the total picture," Cowin said.

Madden Seeks Board Seat

Michael Madden, librarian at the Schaumburg Township Library, is a candidate for election to the 300-member governing board of the American Library Association.

Madden's name is listed on a ballot sent to 30,000 ALA members throughout the nation in April. He is running against a Baltimore librarian. Election results should be announced next week, according to the township librarian.

Madden will attend the national convention of the American Library Association in Atlantic City, N.J., June 20 to 25. Prior to the actual opening of the convention on June 23, he will participate in a three-day institute on public library construction.

Boys Softball Teams Start Weekly Play

Hoffman Estates Boys Club softball teams have begun weekly play at Sloan Playfield, Western and Bode roads.

Junior players, 9 through 12, meet each Monday, while Wednesday evenings are devoted to play between boys 13 through 15. All games and practice sessions begin at 6 p.m.

Club members interested in joining either softball team are asked to present membership cards to Don Gillespie, team manager, either evening at Sloan Playfield.

All equipment is furnished by Boys Club.

Boys Begin Practice

Practice for members of Hoffman Estates Boys Club softball teams begins this week, according to Mrs. Barbara Hill, club publicity chairman.

Newly appointed Manager Don Gillespie will direct 9 to 12-year-olds each Monday; 13 to 15-year-olds will practice each Wednesday.

All practice sessions will be held at Sloan Playfield, Western and Bode roads, at 6 p.m.

Club Dance Tonight

Hoffman Estates Boys Club will host its Third Ball tonight from 8 to 11 in The Barn.

Music and entertainment will be provided by the "Cougars and Darks Pandemonium Shadow Circus Band" and the "Fillet of Soul," both local teen combos.

Fuel Leak Is Unknown

Roselle officials state fire marshals Illinois Bell Telephone officials and local town officials are still looking for the source of gasoline which has repeatedly filled underground pipes at the intersection of Roselle and Irving Park roads in Roselle for the past three weeks

Thousands of gallons of gasoline and water have been pumped out of underground telephone pipelines since the danger was discovered May 19 by telephone company workmen

The holes have been pumped clean and scraped and washed but gasoline has been discovered each time following rainfall

ACCORDING TO DEPUTY State Fire Marshal Joseph Cybor the rain is picking up gas in underground pockets and running into the telephone lines The gas may have been there months before it was discovered he added but it is more likely it is a recent development

Cybor said all gasoline service stations have been checked around the intersection and several factories and other businesses also inspected One small leak was discovered at the Standard station on the southeast corner but it has been fixed and gas is still coming he added

He said he has been informed there was a fuel truck which dumped gas near the intersection a few months ago He added information about who did it and what company was involved has been withheld

I MAY HAVE to subpoena someone into court to find out he said and I will do just that

If the source of the leakage is found a sump hole could be dug near it he said and gas pumped out until there isn't any more

Carl Eybrie Illinois Bell spokesman said there had been little evidence of gas Wednesday but following rains Wednesday night there was gas found in the pipes again

It is checked daily he said and the phone company is paying to have it pumped out The danger is being kept to a minimum

When asked if this could be a leftover sabbotage trick from last year's phone strike he replied

It is out of the question since there is evidence this is too complicated to be planned It is an unfortunate happening which will be corrected

ROSELLE BUILDING Inspector William Manns said there was a part of Illow Creek which ran past Gorski's Food Mart parking lot southwest across Roselle Farmer's Lumber Yard at one time

It was filled in during the 1920's Manns said and when creeks are filled in there is always pockets of air created There could be a lot of gas collected under overturned bathtubs or refrigerators or spring beds which were used for filling up the creek bed

Manns said he has checked all incoming creeks around the area and has found no trace of gas in them If it doesn't rain this weekend he will check them again, he said

Al Motsch wants traffic lights installed at the corner of Route 83 and Shabonee in Mount Prospect

And he wants them now

We don't want to pay for this light in blood It's a dangerous corner and if something isn't done soon someone is gonna be killed there he said

Motsch who represents a lay citizen's safety committee told village board members Tuesday he had approached the village health and safety committee three times with his plea but each time was turned down

I think it's time Mr President that you dissolve the present safety committee and form a new one he told Mayor Robert Teichert

Motsch who lives at 600 S Pine said he would also like to see traffic lights installed at the intersection of Lincoln and Route 83

He explained that crossing guards are being used now to insure pedestrian safety but added it wasn't enough

Teichert said his request would be included in a traffic survey of Mount Prospect now underway

Board Confronted With Suit on 'Hazy Zoning'

This week the members of the DuPage County Board find themselves confronted with a mandamus suit about what appears to be some hazy zoning restrictions.

Mandamus summons were served Monday morning on every member of the board, individually. The return date is June 12, 1969, and the summons reads:

If you do not appear according to the command of this writ, judgment may be entered against you by default and a peremptory writ of mandamus allowed."

THE PROPERTY in this zoning dispute is near the corner of 63rd and Cass Avenue in Downers Grove Township. The petitioners are Finitzo Brothers, Inc. and others. There is considerable acreage.

Gordon Greenbaum & Browne, 33 N. LaSalle, Chicago, represent the petitioners.

In 1966 the petitioners sought a special use permit to erect multi-family dwellings. The county's response, it appears, was less than hasty so they went to court seeking a change in the zoning and asking for a declaratory judgment which would define the zoning situation.

This case had been pending all this time, so a spokesman for Gordon, Greenbaum and Browne says, the legal firm not knowing that on Sept. 27, 1966, the DuPage County Board voted favorably on their request for a special use permit.

According to their petition on June 17, 1966, the county board adopted and approved an ordinance on recommendation of the zoning board of appeals which ordained that "a special use permit be granted permitting the construction and operation of multiple-family dwellings."

Charles Hufnagel

BUT ON JULY 12, according to the petition, the board moved to "reconsider" and referred the matter back to the zoning committee, LeRoy James, chairman.

On Sept. 27, the county board on the recommendation of the zoning committee amended the ordinance adopted June 27 as follows: "to limit the number of three bedroom or more units to NOT MORE THAN 5 per acre," so says the petition.

Thus the petition says the ordinance adopted by the board on June 27, 1966, and amended Sept. 27, 1966 "has been at all times since its adoption, approval and amendment, and now is in full force and effect."

But the Chicago law firm seeking a use permit for the petitioner claims it did not learn until May 2, 1969, in a reply from Robert Stuart, director DuPage County zoning department, that "It appears that the subject property is zoned for single-family residence purposes; thus your request to this department is hereby denied."

THIS SHOOK UP Gordon, Greenbaum and Browne who immediately went to work. Here is the issue, the crux of the case, they say. What official action did the county board take after Sept. 27, 1966? A spokesman for the firm says they have combed the county board proceedings since then and have found nothing to change the board action of Sept. 27, 1966.

The DuPage County zoning director said, "The whole thing is confusing, and I believe the original ordinance is still in effect." This would mean that the action cited, by the board Sept. 27, was of no force and effect.

LeRoy James, chairman of the zoning committee, said the matter took place so far back that he was not clear on the details. Edward Van De Houten, assistant state's attorney assigned to zoning could not be reached for comment.

The Chicago legal firm which had initiated a suit to change the DuPage County zoning ordinance and was seeking a declaratory judgment had this suit pending over many months. They had never been advised, an attorney said, of the amendment they say the minutes of Sept. 27, 1966 show the county board passed favorable to their request. They dropped the suit at once.

ON THE BASIS of the allegations in the petition for mandamus and the contention of the complainant attorneys that there is nothing in the minutes to indicate a change from the amendment providing multiple dwellings to single-family dwellings since Sept. 27, 1966 raise points of what constitutes official acts.

The DuPage County zoning director makes the point that the minutes of the proceedings are not clear. He says the state's attorney opinion is that the subject property is not now zoned for multiple-family dwellings.

He further says the petitioners claim that the ordinance adopted allows this special use. They base their claim, he says, on the official board records.

According to Stuart, the minutes are hazy, and it's their interpretation that is causing the trouble.

"They believe," he says, "that the zoning ordinance gives them the right to go ahead with their project; conversely, the board's advice says they haven't."

Therefore the mandamus. The court will have to decide the precise meaning of official proceedings on and after June 17, 1966.

Holy Family Sets Service Records

New records of service were set last year at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines according to a report issued recently by the hospital.

The report showed that the pathology department averaged 15,921 tests per month, a 32 per cent increase over 1967.

X-ray department tests given to hospital patients and out-patients increased 9 per cent and totaled 33,238. Prescriptions filled for patients also showed a 9 per cent increase to total 176,905.

DURING THE YEAR, the hospital admitted 8,300 patients who stayed an average of 8.1 days. In addition, 1,218 babies were born at Holy Family during the year.

The largest number of patients from one area numbered 2,057 and came from Des Plaines. Mount Prospect residents were second with a total of 1,803 and Arlington Heights residents were third with 835.

Other surrounding communities and their patient totals are Bensenville, 89; Elk Grove Village, 122; Prospect Heights, 322; Hoffman Estates, 84; Wheeling, 467; Palatine, 382, and Rolling Meadows, 164.

The hospital laundry processed 1,036,800 pounds or 518 tons of linen during the year.

Traffic Tickets Up During May

The month of May saw an increase of 11 in the number of traffic citations issued by Itasca police over the previous month's total.

A total of 144 tickets were issued with 116 of them for moving violations. Two were issued for driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. The remaining 26 were given for nonmoving offenses.

OTHER POLICE action involved investigation of 12 accidents, a decrease of five from the previous month. Burglaries totaled only one reported. Three incidents of vandalism were reported.

Five thefts were reported. Four of them were over $50 and one under $50.

Indian Story Error

In the second article of the series, "Trails to Suburbia," May 28, the story of an American Indian in his quest for respectability, it was reported incorrectly that the personnel manager at Montgomery Ward's Chicago office acted in a prejudicial manner. Paddock Publications regrets the error.

Begin Merger Study

By JUDY MORRIS

Members of school boards underlying Lake Park High School Dist 108 agreed Wednesday to begin a study of possible district consolidation

Supt E. W. J. Bagg of Roselle Dist. 12 offered to head the study

It was decided that two representatives from each of the five districts will comprise the committee for the study. Participants can be either board members or interested citizens.

C. F. Nagro, a retired teacher, told the meeting of the boards, "Consolidation is important. If we can make a beginning at least now and not let it drop, we could go very far in improving education."

Bagg began the discussion by quoting from a report on consolidation written in 1943. the issue is not a new one, he said, and added, "We must give all our children an equal opportunity for education."

THE STATE will reimburse the districts for a portion of the cost of the study, Bagg said.

Much voluntary consolidation has already taken place in Illinois school districts, Bagg reported. It is a feeling among many educators that the state may begin requiring consolidation in several years in order to insure the survival of small school districts.

One board member said he feels a consolidation study may take as long as three years.

"If we wait until the need arises to study the problem," he said, "it may be too late." The group concurred that the study should begin now.

The school consolidation issue has many pros and cons. Those in favor of the system point to economy in sharing administrative salaries and other costs. Those against consolidation fear the loss of the individual school's identity.

THERE ARE several different forms consolidation can take. One solution is to combine elementary districts. This is the plan that will be studied by the committee.

Another possibility is to form a unit schoo' district which would also take in the high school. Many school boards are against this system because they feel the problems of elementary boards and high school boards are too different.

Those who support a unit consolidation plan point to the continuity in education resulting from a single board which would deal with grades kindergarten through 12.

Supt. Carl Forrester of Lake Park High School has gone on record as saying, "There is value in the formula for a unit district."

A third alternative is to form two districts, one elementary and one high school, but to have them operate under the same name.

The first meeting of the study committee is expected to take place later this month.

Family Living Is?

by SUE CARSON

The Citizens' Review Committee (CRC) of School Dist 21 Tuesday night voted unanimously to recommend to the school board that each teacher be required to explain to parents before the beginning of the school year the proposed Family Living program for his class.

The CRC found none of the curriculum materials presently being used in the district objectionable, but recommended that teachers give parents "fact sheets" explaining the proposed program

For the last month the CRC has been examining the curriculum materials used in Dist. 21 Family Living courses after the program came under fire by a group of area residents, the Concerned Parents Committee (CPC).

THOUGH SCHOOL board members, teachers and administrators are members of the CRC, the recommendations made Tuesday were voted on only by the parents who are members of the group.

Dist. 21 School Supterintendent Kenneth Gill explained that the CRC jecommendations are not binding on the school board, but will be seriously evaluated by them at their next meeting, scheduled for June 12

Gill said he plans to submit his own recommendations at that time "I plan to recommend to the board that the Family Living program in the schools be made voluntary," Gill stated. "In other words, a parent will be allowed to withdraw his child from the program if he (the parent) objects to it."

The superintendent said that this is not the general policy of the district at this time

"I will also recommend that the district do more to explain our program to the parents," Gill continued, following along the lines of a similar recommendation made by the CRC.

In other action, the CRC unanimously passed a motion to recommend that teachers not use any Family Living materials not specifically cited in the approved curriculum or introduce subjects in their classes not in the approved curriculum unless permission is first obtained from the teachers on the family living and sex education committee.

THE COMMITTEE recommended by a vote of 13-10 that the film "Boy to Man," now shown to sixth grade boys in their physical education classes, be shown to the boys only if their fathers are also present.

The recommendation was made after several persons on the CRC reported that several Wheeling parents had objected to a portion of the film dealing with masturbation, and that the subject could be handled better if parents were present to answer their children's questions

The CRC passed by a vote of 19-2 a motion to recommend that good in-service teacher training on methods of teaching family living courses be conducted before school begins in the fall, although Supt Gill said he believes the district already provides excellent training in this area

The CRC voted down a motion made by Mrs Gloria Pfister, a member of the CPC, which would have required the written approval of each parent before a child could participate in any phase of the family living program.

Highlands Park Trees Stripped

Extreme effects of vandalism were again apparent last week at Highlands Park in Hoffman Estates

According to a park spokesman, three of four large trees at the park were completely stripped of both branches and bark late last week.

The same park site has repeatedly suffered from broken windows, in the warming house and flowers pulled out after planting by several area Scout groups

PARK DIRECTORS do not plan immediate removal of the destroyed trees "to let the people see what happens at their parks."

In line with action taken by the village board last week, all park district properties are now being patrolled by the Hoffman Estates Police Department.

15 Minutes May Buy Life

For the small fee of 15 minutes, drivers can purchase a service Sunday that may save their lives.

The service, provided by a club of high school boys and dropouts called the Midnight Movers, is a vehicle safety check in the K-Mart parking lot on Dundee Road and Route 83 from 9 a.m. to early evening.

The safety check covers brakes, stop lights, tires, horn, steering, lights, turn signals and exhaust system of the cars, and a check is also made of safety belt use.

"THE CHECK NOT only identifies vehicle defects, but it develops other awarenesses of safety in the driver," said Wheeling Police Chief M. O. Horcher. "It's a pleasure to see young people applying themselves positively to prevent the murder mayhem on our highways."

Automobile drivers who pass the test will be given a safety sticker, provided free by the club. The 40 to 50 Midnight Movers finance their club through dues.

An automobile safety check is not required in Illinois, but it is strongly encouraged by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, who has issued a proclamation naming May and June "Vehicle Safety Check Months."

Road Work Is Slated

Improvements on several roads in the area will soon be made as part of the state's 1969 road program, announced this week by Public Works Director William F. Cellini.

About 1.7 miles of pavement will be laid on Elmhurst Road, between the Northwest Tollway and Golf Road. Other improvements will include widening of the bridge carrying Elmhurst over Higgins creek and channelization of Elmhurst Road, Oakton Street, and the Elmhurst Road - Algonquin Road intersections.

All of these highways are in Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, and unincorporated Elk Grove Township. The jobs will be handled by Rock Road Construction Co. of Chicago at a cost of $1,518,810.

ANOTHER IMPROVEMENT will be made on Golf Road, where 2.6 miles of concrete pavement will be laid between Algonquin and Elmhurst roads. This project also includes the channelization and signalization of the intersections of Golf and Arlington Heights and Busse roads.

Construction for this job will also be done by the Rock Road Co., at a cost of $3,313,087.

Honor Student Drops Out

By the staff of Forest Hospital, a private psychiatric hospital in Des Plaines.

Many a father who says, "I want my son to have the things I missed as a boy," does not realize that in the end he does just the opposite — and his son may well wind up in psychotherapy.

This is because many a father — and mother — stress the material things for their son such as the two-wheel bike "I never had as a boy," but do not stress the attention, love and affection which should be shown their offspring.

Mark R., for example, was a model son as he grew up. He was well-behaved, extremely polite with his elders, and an honor student through high school. An only child, he was showered with toys, bikes, trips and all the things his father had to do without as a boy during the Depression.

MARK'S PARENTS were proud of him. Every report card, every award for scholarship was displayed proudly on the family room bulletin board.

Because Mark's parents were not very demonstrative, he learned that in order to attract their attention, he had to continue to excel in his academic work. He therefore did not develop any close friendships, and at an age when boys would be out on the baseball field and having dates, he would be studying and aiming at his next scholarship medal.

When his lack of close friends would be called to his mother's attention, she would answer, "Oh, Mark is extremely creative and knows how to amuse himself."

Mark's mother, proud of her son, would hug him whenever he announced some new achievement. His father, a successful man who was very absorbed in his business, would pat Mark on the back and encourage him to "keep up the good work because I want things to be easier for you than they were for me."

THEN THE blowup came.

Mark enrolled at college and flunked out after his first year. He then reenrolled at another school, did well for a year, but later flunked out a second time.

Now, at the age of 20, Mark refuses to work, he has been running around with a gang of high-school dropouts, and his parents are horrified at what has been happening during these three years to their "model son."

Interestingly enough, Mark has been no behavior problem; he simply seems to have absolutely no ambition.

"We are at our wits' end," Mark's parents told the director of the Young Adult Service at a nearby psychiatric hospital. "Could you see our son and see if he needs any help?"

MARK IS NOW enrolled in the Young Adult Service as an out-patient. He sees a psychotherapist twice a week.

According to his therapist, Mark is in the throes of a belated adolescent rebellion, making up for those studious years that he should have been involved in more extroverted activities.

He also suffers from the fear that in spite of his accomplishments and pats on the shoulder from his father, that his father would be angry if he were actually to rise above him.

Simply put, Mark is angry at his parents and is trying to make up for the emotional loss of his adolescent years. Through psychotherapy, he will ultimately work through his fear and anger, and after "catching up," he should then be able to return to school, if he so desires, and set creative and realistic goals for himself.

Choral Festival Tonight

A choral festival will be presented at 8 p.m. today in the Elk Grove High School gym.

Participating in the affair will be the high school choral department and their guests from Dist. 59 junior high schools.

The final concert of the year, it will include performances by the high school concert choir, girls' glee club, freshman girls' chorus, Dempster Junior High School sixth grade chorus, Grove Junior High School chorus and Lively Junior High School chorus.

EACH CHORUS will perform several selections by itself and before joining together for a two-chorus composition by Ralph Vaughn Williams, "Lord, Thou Hast Been Our Refuge."

Harry Swenson, Elk Grove High choral director, will conduct the combined chorus of 250 students. Mrs. Lois Lundvall, Lively Junior High music instructor, will play the organ and David Swenson, a student at Elk Grove High, will play the trumpet.

There is no admission charge.

Kickin' It Around

YOU'VE COME A long way, baby," booms the now-familiar cigarette commercial that proclaims just how far ladies have come from the day when they had to sneak a smoke in the basement.

Whether the American woman slipped, was pushed or just jumped from the pedestal on which the male had placed her hasn't yet been made clear by those people whose business is watching our social structure.

But what is clear, very clear, is that today's women are crashing into worlds once so virtiely dominated by men.

You see these gals heading up businesses, sitting at the conference tables, elbowing men for the next bar stool. Equality is the object, and who can blame them?

But the men are holding on in one world, according to a recent study, and although this isn't a nation-wide trend, it still offers some interesting points for consideration.

That world where a man's word is still law is at certain country clubs. Many still operate under the theory that gals are second-class although women have made tremendous strides in golf.

Women, possibly through a combination of television and higher incomes in families, have taken up the game in increasing numbers. Golf, often described as a gentleman's game and certainly one of ladies, too, has become universal.

But at certain country clubs in this country the gals can be verbally spanked if they disobey. They're told to stay in the background, to keep quiet, to only play on certain days at certain hours or not to play at all.

In other words, "You may have come a long way, baby, but the men run this club and don't you forget it!"

If you gals want to strike out at one name, you might begin with a Charlie MacDonald, who won the first United States Golf Association Amateur tournament in the late 1890s.

MacDonald designed the National Golf Links in Southampton, Long Island, and once fired a greenkeeper who called the front tee on the fifth hole the "ladies" tee. MacDonald isn't around but his thinking is to a degree. There's a sign on the first tee which reads:

"Women players are at all times requested to stand aside for properly constituted golfers."

There is a sign at the entrance of a club in Great Britain that says, "No dogs or women allowed."

Actually, a study of the status of women at country clubs revealed that such ultimatums are scattered throughout the British Isles. Even clubs that have female members hold dear to the notion that the club is essentially for men. Very few have ladies tees and fewer still allow women in the clubhouse.

They're very strict about how the gals should dress and the Ladies Golf Union of Great Britain became quite upset when the British team that played in the Women's World Amateur, in Australia, made a stop in Kenya for an exhibition, and showed up in short skirts.

The officials curtly told the gals to lengthen their skirts. "They have been wearing miniskirts," the official announcement said, "and this would hardly set a good example for the natives."

Then there was the widely-publicized incident at a Curtis Cup match when a Ladies Golf Union member told the captain of the British team that one of the girls lacked a true sense of propriety, and should be informed that she must not wear an uplift bra. How about that?

We're not quite that strict in America although such famous country clubs as Baltusrol and Winged Foot still outlaw Bermuda shorts.

Then there's a club in Long Island — remember Charlie MacDonald? — which spells it out this way on how the female members should dress.

"Women are only permitted to wear shorts with cotton blouses — or if they wear knit shirts they must wear skirts — because they cannot be distracting at both ends at the same time."

Many country clubs throughout the United States won't let women play until after noon on weekends and at others not until after four o'clock in the afternoon.

Many of these regulations, which seem silly to most people, have been passed untouched from one generation to another, and the club just hasn't taken the time to do anything about it. Anyway, how many women are on the board of governors that change the by-laws?

There's one country club gals should just forget. They're not welcome. Women are so unaccepted at Burning Tree outside Washington, D. C., that many years ago the Secretary of State received a flat refusal when he wanted a dispensation for Lady Astor when she visited America.

THE LADY GOLFER
Battling for Equality

If you're a gal and go to the Pine Valley Golf Club in Clementon, N.J., you can only play on Sunday afternoons and never — and they stress "never" — enter the clubhouse except once a year for the final round of a special tournament.

"No dogs or women."

"No Bermuda shorts."

"No miniskirts."

"Do not enter clubhouse."

Ladies, you just aren't welcome everywhere in this game of golf, but slowly, very slowly in some areas, you are being accepted as a very important part of this $6 billion a year market.

"You've come a long way, baby . . ." but in golf circles there's obviously still a long way to go.

Prep Track Feature Set For York High Saturday

A glittering array of midwestern high school track stars will vie for honors in the first Golden Midwest Invitational at York High School in Elmhurst, Ill., Saturday.

"This meet shapes up as the finest prep meet ever held in the midwest," says Meet Referee Tom Rosandich, The University of Wisconsin-Parkside athletic director. With the top athletes coming from all over middle America, the meet will serve as an unofficial midwestern championship meet.

One of the highlights of the meet is expected to be the 880-yard run where Willie Thomas of Chicago Englewood, who has a 1:50.8 half to his credit, will try to break the national record of 1:48.8 set by Rich Joyce of Whittier, Calif., in 1965. He is expected to be pushed by Cincinnati's Reggie McAfee, who won the Ohio 880 in 1:52.5.

MERLYN HOOD of East Moline, Ill., the state 100 and 220-yard dash champion, is expected to be pushed by Willie Polk (9.6) of Flint, Mich.; Frank Johnson (9.6) of Kansas City, Kans.; and Dean Willims (9.5) of Omaha, Neb., in the 100. Hood has a 9.6 clocking on the books. In the 220, Johnson has done a fantastic 21.3 and tops the field that will include Hood (21.8) Polk (21.5), Rich Valhicelli of Hillside Proviso West (21.5) and Tom Jones of Elmhurst York (21.6).

The mile run could be the finest prep mile run in the midwest in years. Reggie McAffee of Cincinnati has done a 4:08.5 but will be challenged by Chuck Baker (4:08.9) of Indiana, Ken Popejoy (4:12.7) of Glenbard West in Glen Ellyn and Mike Lawless (4:13.6) of Racine, Wis.

The top preps in the nation will be on display in the hurdles. Tom Morrison (13.6) of Detroit's Reford Union has the best mark in the country in the 120-yard highs while Mark Bertell (13.9) of Mound Ridge, Kans., leads the field of contenders in the 180-yard lows.

Mark Visk

RON CLASSEN OF Wheaton North (19.1), the Illinois state low hurdle champion, is a threat in that event as are Gene Mobley (19.1) of Maywood Proviso East. Mike Stover (19.3) of Chicago Englewood and Rick Swenson (19.3) of Glenbard East in Lombard. Stover (14.0), Swenson (14.1) and Mobley (14.1) will also compete in the highs.

Oscar Wallace (24-6½), the Illinois state long jump champion from Alton, tops the field in that event. He will be pressed by the state champions from Michigan, Indiana, Missouri and Nebraska.

Jim Bowman (14-10), the Missouri champ from Kansas City Central, is the favorite in the pole vault. Steve Edwards (14-7) of Arcola, Ill., and Dave Burgener (14-6) of Elmhurst York also rate a chance.

DON PHILLIPS (64-3½), the state champion and record holder from Indianapolis, Wash., tops a strong field in the shot put. George Amunderson (62-2) of South Dakota figures to be his chief challenger.

Dave Anderson (9.03.3) of Shawnee Mission, Kans., has posted the second best two mile time in the country and rates as the runner to beat Saturday. Illinois State Champ Mark Visk (9.06.1) from Palatine, Duane Smith (9.09) from Moline and Pete Reiff (9:13) from Elmhurst York will be among Anderson's toughest competitors.

Larry Presser (6-8¼) comes into the meet with the best high jump mark. He will be challenged by Tony Wilson (6-7) the Ohio champ from Franklin Heights, Greg Hudon (6-6) from Glenbard East in Lombard and Algie Neal (6-5) from Aurora East.

GEORGE AMUNDERSON (211-4) of Aberdeen, S.D., is the only high school discus thrower in history to toss the platter over 200 feet and he will be out to top that mark Saturday.

State champions from eight states will make up the field in the 440. Top marks in this event belong to Mike Murphy (48.0) of Midland, Mich., and Mike Martmore (48.0) of Wellington, Kans.

Included on the program will be two events for girls — the 100-yard dash and the 880-yard run.

The meet is slated to get under way at 1:45 p.m.

Wheeling Shows Amazing .336

Averages Up in Mid-Suburban

by KEITH REINHARD
Mid-Suburban Statistician

Major league pitchers aren't the only ones finding it a bit more uncomfortable on the mound in 1969.

Mid-Suburban league statistics released this week indicate that the hitter's surge the big leagues are experiencing this season has seeped on down to the prep level as well. Strikeouts are down, batting averages and slugging tempos are up in comparison with MSL figures of a year ago.

Wheeling, enroute to the first perfect won-loss record in the loop's history, easily dominated the statistics. Surprisingly though, the two brand new entries — Hersey and Glenbard — were not left in a cloud of dust behind the upswing in offensive fireworks this spring.

THE HUSKIES AND Panthers won eight contests between them and Hersey finished in the upper half of the league in batting with a .221 mark that would have been third best in 1968.

The Wildcats, with an amazing .336 team batting average, did much to enhance the league's overall offensive output. It also helped them nearly double every other team in the conference in runs scored and RBIs and to a substantial lead in total bases.

The Wildcats also drew more walks, struck out less, stole more bases and hit more home runs than anyone else around. All of their marks eclipsed old conference records except in the circuit blow department where they equaled a high of seven hit by Fremd last season.

EVERY MEMBER OF last year's eight-team league fanned less in 1969 than they did in '68 except Elk Grove. The Grenadiers skyrocketed from a loop low of 87 last year to a high of 104 this spring.

Individually it was a Wheeling story too. The 'Cats had representatives in every column and led most of them. In runs scored, the top six slots were all filled by Wildcats.

There were some unexpected individual finishes too. The home run title was taken by Glenbard North's Tom Pauling, and Bill Newman, Wheeling's fine lefty twirler, paced the circuit in slugging at a hefty .882.

ONE OF THE MOST impressive feats was Rich Olson's 14 appearances at the plate without striking out once. There were four others who whiffed just once apiece while last season the best any one batter posted was four strikeouts in 39 official tries.

Jack Bastable, stellar 'Cat catcher, became the first in loop history to finish with a batting average in excess of .500 and he also made the top ratings in runs scored, RBIs, doubles, stolen bases, least strikeouts and slugging.

In finishing up with a career batting average of .382 over a three-year span Bastable headed a group of 17 hitting for .300 or better in '69 as opposed to just eight such hitters in '68.

In the area of pitching, Fremd's Tom Bruns, Palatine's Dave Hasbach and Wheeling's Marty Crain headed up different categories. Bruns fanned 64 to lead in total strikeouts, Hasbach just edged Hersey's Bob Leja for the high strikeouts per inning ratio and Crain gained the nod in pitching percentage with an unblemished 6-0 slate.

Ten Years Ago...

Maine won the state baseball championship . . . Arlington had topped the Blue Demons trice in the regular season with Don Gerken and Gene Dahlquist picking up the decisions for Coach Dick Kinneman's Cardinals . . . Catcher Harvey Foster was the only Palatine player named to the 15-man Tri-County All-Star team.

Means Not Enough Wins

'Not Enough Contact...'

by PAUL LOGAN

Two months ago Mid-Suburban League team managers were making sure their first aid kits were well supplied with plenty of bufferin, Excedrin and aspirin as they prepared for the predictable down-to-the-wire, nail biting, frantic finish

The year before Elk Grove had emerged with the title after a very tight race which was decided on the last day of the season. And it promised to be a carbon copy of that nerve tester again

BUT THIS time the only excitement was the jockeying for the runnerup spot for nobody figured on Wheeling getting off to such a fast start and then waltzing to the title.

And for the defending chamion Grove nine it promised to be a real banner year Coach Larry Peddy had what many diamond observers thought was an even better team on paper than the '68 champs who had compiled a 9-5 league mark.

However, this time around the Grenadiers registered a 7-7 record.

"We were lucky to break even with as many strikeouts as we had," Peddy recalled. "You've got to move the ball in high school in order to have a chance to win."

His Grenadiers fanned 104 times to lead the league in that category and still managed to finish tied with Forest View for fifth place. And for the 17-game overall total they carried their silent bats back to the rack 131 times!

"NOT ENOUGH contact on the ball was the main thing I think," said Peddy in summing up the season. And again the statistics bore him out.

While rampaging Wheeling was clubbing the ball at an amazing .336 clip, the Grove was barely meeting the sphere at a .213 percentage good for seventh in the league.

But there were a few exceptions to the lack of hitting of the former cinderella crew as Peddy explains:

"I was pleased with a couple of boys. I was really surprised with Losch (Mike) and Chesney's (Kevin) hitting ability. And Pleickhardt (Gary) did a pretty good job, too."

LOSCH, WHO displayed a fine arm for such a lanky shortstop, slashed the ball for a lofty league mark of .436, second only to Jack Bastable of Wheeling. His exceptional play landed him a spot on the all-conference team.

On the year this flashy junior batted a hefty .447 while leading his teammates in hits (21) and runs batted in (14), including a grandslam which helped win the final game of the season.

Pleickhardt was also named to the all-league squad — the second year he's earned the honor.

Pleickhardt hit .311 in the MSL and .315 overall. He paced the Grove in at bats (54), in getting on base (35), scoring runs (14) and sealing bases (8).

THE OTHER plus .300 hitter was Kevin Chesney. Somehow the league coaches overlooked this fine athlete who compiled a .321 mark in the league and a fine .333 total overall. He led his team in fewest strikeouts having just two in 33 at bats.

The closest batting average to these three was a .235 so the overall hitting balance will be one of the things the 1970 crew will be striving for.

On the pitching side the Grove will have a good nucleus with two of its three starting hurlers returning — Dave Ristau and Gordon Hollywood.

Ristau, who had never been beaten in MSL action (10-0) heading into this year's wars, started off pre-season play in a big way with a sparkling no-hitter over Ridgewood. However, the MSL was laying for him and dealt him four setbacks.

Overall the scrappy righty was the biggest winner on the staff with four victories and should be back on the beam next spring.

LEFTY HOLLYWOOD finished with a 2-2 record in his first varsity campaign and should be a big asset to Peddy in the future. He was 3-3 overall.

Eleven seniors will be graduating next week and one of them will be Tom Emshe Although he was involved in just three of the Grove's decisions, he did have the best winning percentage of .667 (2-1)

Larry Reddy

WHEN PEDDY took over the helm two seasons ago he said he wanted to establish a "winning attitude" in his players He did so in '68 with a 9-8-1 mark and in '69 with a 9-8 total. And although his boys didn't take first or second this time, he still thought they had done well

"I would say I had a lot of the seniors as sophomores and they went from a 3-14 record to two straight 9-8 marks In fact at one time in their sophomore year they were 0-13. They all stuck with it .They came back in the last ballgame "

And that they did. Even though they were down 6-2 and had no chance of copping the runnerup spot, they still showed they were winners by battling back

With this sort of guts which Peddy has instilled, the Grenadiers have to be always considered a diamond threat in the league.

Arnie's Aces Holds Lead

Arnie's Aces, led by Barb Sorters, managed to hold a very slim lead of one point in the Hoffman 59ers Ladies Golf League last week at Golden Acres Country Club.

The Aces were downed 9 to 5 by Bruns Real Estate, which moved up into a tie with Roselle State Bank for second place in the league

Roselle State Bank checked Brass & Glass 8½ to 5½, the Bankers thus sharing the second spot

Twinbrook V&S Hardware climbed out of the basement by hammering Hoffman Estates Liquors 13-1, dropping the Liquorettes into last place

Barbara Sorters and Jerri Urban shared the spotlight for low gross honors with a pair of 60's Low net was shot by Bernie Jenkins and Diane Curtin who both netted 49's

Team Standings are as follows

Arnie's Aces	24
Roselle State Bank	23
Bruns Real Estate	23
Brass & Glass	22
Twinbrook V&S Hardware	21½
Hoffman Estates Liquors	12½

Hersey High Conditioning Courses Set

A pair of diversified physical conditioning programs are being offered to students by Hersey High School this summer.

Open to all male students already enrolled there as well as those just entering as Freshmen next fall, the programs cover a wide range of activities aimed at enhancing physical fitness and mental alertness

A trio of veteran Hersey instructors will conduct the two programs Don Von Ebers will handle a gymnastic phase that deals with conditioning through mass activities, weight lifting, rope climbing, running and gymnastics

Tom Porter and Larry Travis will instruct a general physical conditioning phase that includes fitness exercise and tests, training on the weight machine, track and field events, mass group drills, wrestling, basketball, speedball and other activities

The physical conditioning program will run daily for eight weeks and cost $12. The gymnastic conditioning program will run daily for six weeks and cost $17

Each program has a pair of hour-long morning sessions to select from.

Further information and registration forms can be obtained by contacting Hersey High School at 259-8500

Omega Sports Ties for Top

The Hoffman Estates Men's Golf Acres Country Club, remained tightly bunched with only 10½ points separating the first 11 teams.

Snyder's Hoffman Drugs made the only bold move after play of May 28 by soundly defeating Twinbrook V&S Hardware 13 to 5 thus leaping from 7th to 3rd place in the standings. V&S dropped from 2nd to 4th as a result. Earl Conrad after four weeks of dismal play show a spark of old form by carding a solid 40 to lead the Druggists. Fred Pfeiffer and Ralph Zimmerman also contributed to the rout.

Omega Sports forged into a tie for 1st place with a 17-6 victory over Crest Heating. Specht, Soloway and Koppart crushed their opponents for the "Greek Letter Men" while Hank Styczykowski and George (Night Hawk) Robb managed to salvage points for Crest.

The very strong Hoffman Estates Liquors team defeated Plaza Shell 12 to 6 and appears to be moving slowly upwards after a poor start. With their humbling of the "Shellers," the "Bourbon Boys" moved from 9th to 7th position. Ed Hennessey, John Murray and Ron Palacz soundly defeated their rivals to account for the triumph. John O'Connell, benefitting from long hours of putting practice and a little "Irish" luck, defeated "The Groove" for the Plaza Shell Team.

MAJOR DIVISION

Braves	011 05x- 7x 0
Cards	000 100—1 4 0

Highlights — Doug Combs, backed by a big five run fifth inning, tossed a four hitter at the Cards to win 7-1. Combs was given power hitting by Mike Arendt, Tom Langlow and Mike Amoroso who all cracked doubles. Alan Bergmann was the losing pitcher despite tossing a five-hitter. Getting two-base hits for the Cards were Bob Barut in the fourth inning and Mark Krause in the 6th.

Yanks	000 31x—4 8 0
Dodgers	000 000—0 4 0

Highlights — The Yanks bombed the Dodgers 8-1 last week behind the stellar hurling of Manuel Gonzales. The fine Yank pitcher fanned 16 Dodgers while walking only three and giving up just one hit. The winners scored their runs all on RBI doubles — Bob Bury belted one in first, Gary Leflair smacked one in the fourth. Gonzales also cracked one in the fourth and Harkins got one in the fifth. Rich Madison gave up eight hits en route to the mound loss.

Cubs	010 303—10-7 0
Tigers	000 000 — 0 2-0

Highlights — The Cubs, played like their namesakes, crushed the Tigers last week, 10-0, behind the two hit ficing of pitcher Rich Liska. While he fanned nine his mates were blasting his opponent moundsman Jim Arndt, for seven safties, including three extra base hits. Jay Hahn socked a triple with two men on in the second which led to a nine run inning. The Cubs also scored three in both the fourth and the sixth. Highlighting the sixth was a leadoff homer by Dan Doran followed by a triple by Bob Kostelny.

Tigers	030 020 -5

Highlights — Paced by four doubles by his batters, Dennis Bucala pitched the Yanks pass the Tigers in a thriller, 6-5. The four big raps out of the 10 hits relinquished by losing hurler Jeff Isola were chalked up by these Yanks. Bob Bury with one on in the first, Mike Carragilla with one on in first also, Dennis Bucala in the 6th, and Manuel Gonzales with two on in the 6th also. Gonzales finished the day three for four.

MINOR DIVISION

Phillies	000 01 — 1 4 0
Indians	300 (18) 7x 38

Highlights — Eruption, explosion — call it what you will the Phillies probably are still trying to recover from the beating the Indians gave them in winning 20-1. The Phillies were still in the ballgame until the fourth inning when the Indians went on the warpath and sent 18 braves around the basepaths. The only thing that remained in doubt was whether the Phillies would ever get a hit or a run. Heading into the fifth Tannon Thompson had thrown a no hit shutout. But the Phillies got on the boards in the fifth with the game being called on account of darkness after that. Bobby Schachon capped the big Indian inning by clubbing a grandslam off losing hurler Mike Merker.

Expos	5
Athletics	2

Highlights — Bob Campbell notched the win for the Expos stopping the Athletics 7-2. His teammates also helped him gain the win by turning to two fine double plays. Chet Hedgecock carried the big bat for the Expos. David Stanton took the loss for the A's.

PTA Target: State Aid

A group representing PTA units in the Schaumburg Area Council will go to Springfield Monday to discuss state aid to schools and related issues.

The local delegation will talk with State Sen. John A. Graham, Rep. David J. Regner, Rep. Eugene Schlickman, and Rep. Eugenia Chapman.

Among those making the trip will be Mrs. Ray Badal, president of the Schaumburg Area PTA Council; Dist. 54 Supt. Wayne Schaible; Mrs. William Hannon; Mrs. Myron Czajkowski; and Asst. Supt. Milton Derr.

THE SCHAUMBURG group will promote legislative support for an increase in state aid to $550 per pupil and a state income tax to finance the increased pupil aid.

They will also express opposition to House Bills 1116 and 2350, which provide for financial aid to nonpublic schools in Illinois

About two-thirds of Dist. 54 revenue comes from state aid, while one-third comes from local taxes. The present foundation level of state aid is $400 per students.

The Illinois House has already approved a bill that would increase state aid to $550 per student, and the measure is now before the Senate.

Bills opposed by the local group would provide for aid to private and parochial schools in the state by purchasing secular education services, and making grants to parents of children in nonpublic schools

Under the latter proposal, approximately $26,500,000 would be spent for grants of $48 to parents of elementary pupils and grants of $60 to parents of high school pupils

ACCORDING TO a PTA position paper on public aid to private schools, however, "Parents who choose to educate their children in private schools must accept the responsibility for the financial support of those schools."

Gov Richard Ogilvie has asked for a 4 per cent state income tax, but legislators have generally favored a ceiling of 3 per cent. Mrs. Peggy Norton is the lobbyist in Springfield for the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Filibuster Is Flop

SPRINGFIELD — Black legislators in the House filibusterer unsuccessfully for more than two hours yesterday in an attempt to divert an appropriation bill and use part of the funds to train the unemployed for state jobs.

Negro legislators unsuceessfully tried to attach six amendments to the $37 1 million appropriation for the Department of Conservation.

Forsees ABM Approval

WASHINGTON — Easy Senate approval for President Nixon's anti-ballistic missile system was predicted yesterday by Republican Whip Hugh Scott, now that a nationwide poll has reported 84 per cent of the population favors an ABM.

Scott said the poll was conducted by a Princeton, N.J., research firm for a new citizens organization formed to mobilize public opinion in favor of the ABM system.

Nixon Picks Vet Head

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif — President Nixon yesterday announced his selection of Donald E. Johnson, former national commander of the American Legion, as new director of Veterans' Administration, replacing William J. Driver, who resigned.

Johnson, 44, runs a farm supply business in West Branch, Iowa.

A Red Choice Is OK

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State William P Rogers said yesterday the presence of some Communists in the South Vietnamese government would be acceptable to the United States if they were chosen in a free election.

Rogers said the U S was not wedded to any government in Saigon, but only to the principle that the people there "should have the right by free choice to decide their future."

OK Bill on Marijuana

SPRINGFIELD — A bill to lessen penalties for the first offense of possession of marijuana passed the Senate, 39-0, Thursday with no debate, and returned to the House for concurrence in an amendment

The measure changes the first offense of possession of less than 2 5 grams of marijuana from a felony to a misdemeanor, and changes the maximum penalty possible from the current 2 to 10 years in prison to one year or a $1,500 fine, or both.

U.S. Jet Gunned Down

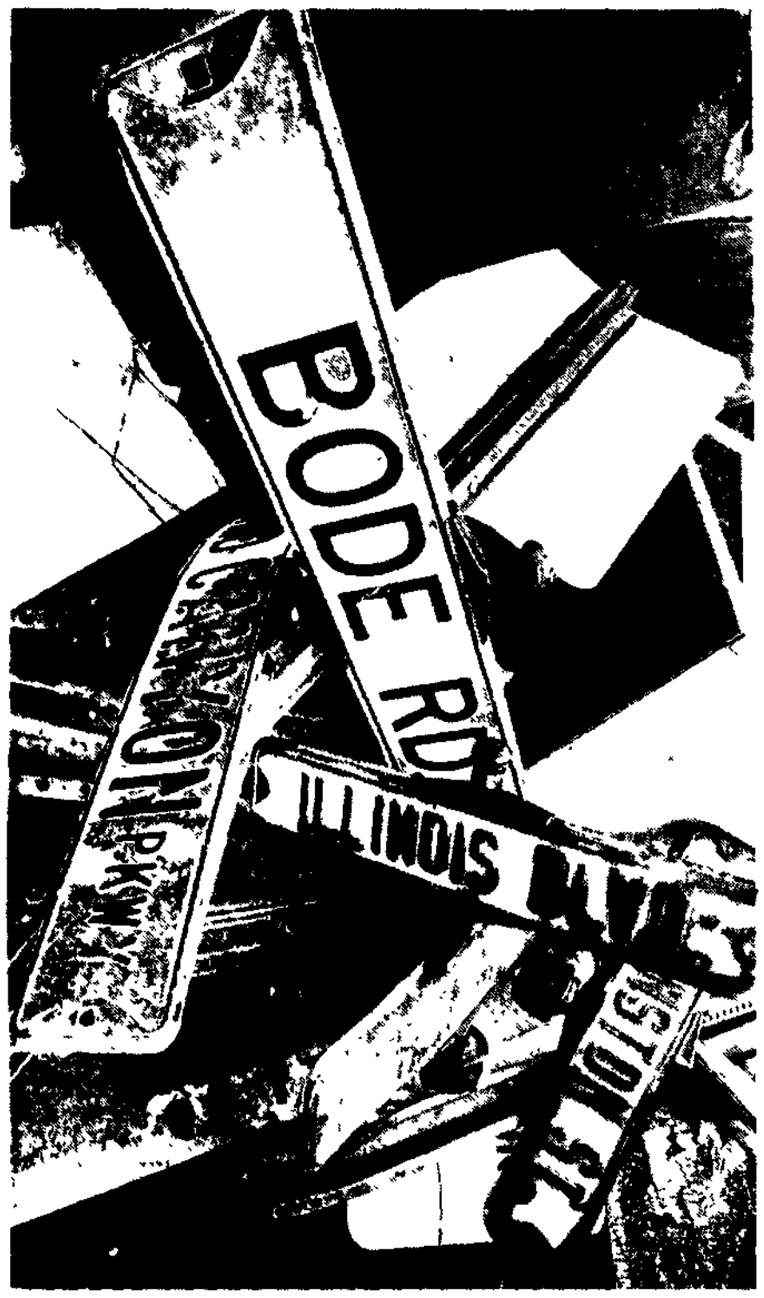
SAIGON — Anti-aircraft gunners around the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi shot down an unarmed U.S. reconnaissance jet yesterday, and American fighter-bombers retaliated with the first announced attack on North Vietnam in six months

The two-man crew of the downed plane was rescued. The U S command said results of the raid against the North Vietnamese gunners were not known

Breadbasket To Lobby

SPRINGFIELD — The Rev Jesse Jackson, head of Operation Breadbasket, yesterday said his organization will open an office in Springfield next week and hopes to organize a lobby in the legislature.

Jackson said the office will probably open next Wednesday "to organize a lobby to fight hunger in Illinois."



OLD STREET SIGNS never die, they just accumulate behind the Hoffman Estates Village Hall. The village board has ordered the public works department to get rid of the unsightly debris.

Valley in Winter

(Copyright 1969 Paddock Publications Inc.)

During the next few weeks, migrant workers will be pouring into our Northwest suburbs, mostly from Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley. Who are these migrants? What is HOME to them? Today, in the third of a six-part series, Senior Staff Writer David Hoyt describes the migrant's jobs in the valley before he heads north.

Story and Photos by David Hoyt

Whether he's a common farm laborer, a crew leader, a landscaper or a nursery worker, when it comes to making a living the Mexican American migrant is usually better off during his northern migration than he is at home in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The valley is home — true enough. The valley is where the family is The climate there is nice in the winter

But valley agriculture simply cannot absorb a winter labor force that harvests most of the rest of the nation during the summer

Between 100,000 and 125,000 migrants leave the valley each summer — about a third of the total population — and when they return there are simply not enough jobs to go around, not enough jobs to offer a decent wage

"We hit about 6 per cent unemployment in the valley in the winter," Richard Stolle of the Texas Employment Commission says. "That's including people who'd like to work but can't. They (the growers) can afford to offer low wages and still pick and choose who they hire"

GENERALLY THE migrant laborer has no other skills so he takes what work he can get and waits for the next migration.

The man who makes $1.70 an hour in Minnesota is lucky to get 90 cents an hour doing the same thing in the valley.

Stolle says $1.30 "is the federal standard minimum wage in agriculture," when he is asked about pay on the south Texas ranches

It's a good answer. But it won't always wash, because much of the picking is done on a piece-work scale and what is made in pice-work depends on the pieces.

Onion topping can bring a man good money. If the onions are big and the earth is not too hard, a man might put up six sacks of onions an hour, letting him average $1.50 an hour; 25 cents a sack is the going rate.

But that usually can't be done. The crews crawl along the rows, snipping frantically at onions not much bigger than

Civil War Books Bought for $27

Schaumburg Township Library recently purchased an 80-volume collection of Civil War history books for $27 at a private auction.

The books are all first editions, and each is signed by the author.

Among the collection is a journal of a military aide to Gen. Robert E. Lee, a first edition of MacKinlay Kantor's "Andersonville," and other works pertaining to the Civil War.

"It's a real fine collection," commented librarian Michael Madden.

No Tax Relief for '69

Nearly 100 Hanover Park residents from Longmeadows South and Longmeadows North in Schaumburg Township — crowded the village hall Wednesday to learn "there is little hope" they will have relief from apparently excessively high property taxes this year.

Village Atty. Bill Davies, however, advised the residents to pay taxes under protest and that he would do all he could — free of charge — to make the taxes more equitable next year.

The major complaint was that some residents received bills higher than others for property with the same assessed valuation. Davies asked residents to provide him with certain information by June 20 so that he can carry the story to the county assessor's office and hopefully effect a change.

HE ASKED residents to submit a check for their taxes, marked "taxes paid under protest." Along with information as to model of home, size of garage, whether the home has a basement, patio, and other data which can help to pinpoint property value.

Davies said, "This bill must be paid on time or you will be subject to penalty fees and other legal problems."

He pointed out that there is a possibility the assessor may be swayed by a large number of protesting voters, since he holds an elective office But the lawyer offered little hope that this year's tax bills could be adjusted.

A COMMITTEE WAS formed at the meeting of persons who will contact all residents who feel there tax bills are inequitable. Davies asked that residents cooperate with these volunteers so that he can give all information necessary to present to the assessor.

Persons who pay their taxes through a savings and loan institution should contact that organization to determine the procedure for payment of taxes under protest Some savings and loans will send the tax check to the owner Davies said such checks should carry the inscription "paid under protest" above the endorsement

School Ends Soon

The school year is gradually drawing to a close for pupils in Schaumburg Township.

June 13 will be the final day elementary pupils attend school. Most will receive report cards on that date.

All Dist. 54 pupils in grades one through eight will attend school for one hour June 13 to receive report cards and carry home personal materials.

Awards night programs for Dist. 54 eighth grade graduates at Helen Keller and Robert Frost junior high schools will be held June 12 and June 13, respectively, at the Conant High School gymnasium at 8 p m. Each school has approximately 350 graduates.

GRADUATION CEREMONIES for Conant High School seniors will be at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the school gymnasium. Diplomas will be awarded to 430 graduating pupils. Baccalaureate ceremonies are schduled at 8 p.m. on Tuesday at Conant.

Graduation for eighth grade pupils attending St. Hubert's parochial school in Hoffman Estates will be 8 p.m. tonight There are 139 pupils in the graduating class.

Librarian Will Leave

Mrs. Ronald Franck, Schaumburg Township Library Board president, has submitted ther resignation from the board, effective July 1. She will be moving from the area with her family.

Mrs. Franck, a resident of Hoffman Estates, was elected to a two-year board term in April and was subsequently named board president for the coming year.

Mrs. Franck's husband has been transferred to Indianapolis by his employer, Listra-Lighting Co., a division of International Telephone and Telegraph. A former Hoffman Estates village trustee, Franck will be regional manager for Lustra-Lighting's midwest division.

THE FRANCKS have resided in Hoffman Estates at 362 Ashley Road for seven years. They have three children.

In addition to serving on the library board, Mrs. Franck has also been treasurer of the Hoffman Estates Women's Club, treasurer of the Schaumburg Township-Hanover Park United Fund, and a member of the Hillcrest PTA board.

A business administration major in college, Mrs. Franck formerly worked full-time as an accountant for Sidney Herzog and Associates of Lincolnwood.

Schaumburg Township Librarian Michael Madden said the library board would not be interviewing possible replacements for Mrs. Franck's position until July.

Promises No Odor In Week

The Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) Board of Turstees was assured Thursday that an odor problem at its Hanover Park treatment plant will be cleared out in one week.

Ben Sosewitz, acting chief engineer of maintenance and operation, said he has two alternative actions if the lagoon does not clear itself of odor next week: He will have trucked away some two million gallons of sludge, or he will add a water cover that will create a different biological process of treating the material.

He mentioned that designs are being prepared for a near $2 million incinerator for the MSD which will eliminate future similar problems. It is hoped the incinerator can be completed by 1970, Sosewitz said.

HE HAD NO specific date to move to an alternate action in Hanover Park, saying his decision will be based on whether a crust forms on the lagoon and the odor disappears.

Hanover Park residents complained to village officials and MSD officials several weeks ago about an odor in their neighborhood. The complaints were traced to the Hanover plant's north lagoon, which had received undigested sludge from a plant cleaning operation.

The cleaning operation was necessary, Sosewitz said, because of an accumulation of grease and hair balls that caused a breakdown in the natural sewage treatment process.

Sosewitz said the proposed incinerator will burn such undigestible waste as grease and scum for all the district's treatment plants He said the incinerator will probably be placed at the West-Southwest sewage treatment plant in Stickney. There are other incinerators available, he said, but they are not designed for this type of material.

THE HANOVER plant was cleaned last December and at that time it was not known that the sludge would create an odor, he said. Digested sludge stored in lagoons creates no odor, he said.

Sosewitz warned if alternate action must be taken at the north lagoon, "a blowup" of odor may appear from disturbing the biological process

Sosewitz estimated it will take two weeks to haul away the sludge, based on 10 trucks hauling 50,000 and 60,000 gallons a day. The sludge will probably be taken to the Stickney treatment plant for processing there, he said.

"All Power To the People"

In the past few days, the Black Panthers, have leaped into the headlines in 96 point type as the FBI raided their headquarters in Chicago and in Denver. Who are they and what do they represent to our Northwest suburbs. Find out Monday in Paddock Publications in the first of a three-part series, "All Power to the People," by Writer James Vesely and Photographer Robert Finch.

Ostrow: Need Equal Respect for Each Other

by SANDRA BROWNING

Frank Ostrow is an unimposing man with friendly eyes and an easy smile.

If you live in northern Arlington Heights, he and his wife and four children may be moving in next door to you this week.

"Most people shy away from me because I am involved in something controversial," Ostrow said in an interview with the Herald.

Ostrow's part-time interest is a group called the Remember the Pueblo Committee of the United States of which he is chairman. In July, he started a group by that name in Kent, Washington. It has now grown to include committees across the nation. Members recently changed the name to United States Pueblo Committee and plan to call it "US" for short.

WITH OSTROW MOVING into Arlington Heights, he will be the second man in the area who heads a Remember the Pueblo Committee. The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, is chairman of the national "Remember the Pueblo" committee.

The two committees have similar names and were organized for similar reasons, but are separate groups which happened to spring up after the capture of the USS Pueblo by North Korea in January of 1968.

Ostrow says he has talked with Lindstrom but the two groups will not unite forces. He said these two committees and other groups organized as a result of the Pueblo incident will operate separately but will work cooperatively.

THE REASON OSTROW formed his committee in July was to mold national opinion and inform the news media about the inhuman treatment which the men of the Pueblo were receiving. He wanted to raise enough support to show politicians the strength of his cause, to create hope for the captured men and to not let the matter be forgotten.

Although the committee's name seems to imply its dedication to one purpose, Ostrow says the goals of the group were broader.

The World War II veteran says, "How many more men do we have to kill and how many more violations do there have to be before action is taken?"

The seizing of the Pueblo and the April EC-121 reconnaissance plane incident "showed we are no longer safe," he says.

"Who is going to stand up for law?" the ex-Marine asks. He says the Abe Fortas incident was an example of high level nonresponsibility for law.

Ostrow says he feels the public has not been totally informed about the Pueblo investigation. He says senators are trying cident and there should be a Senate investigation. He says senators are trying to bury the incident but they should see i" .. too vital to international affairs to be forgotten.

"If our senators can't see that, we need new senators," Ostrow maintains. "All we want to do is to obtain the facts so that each person can make his own decision."

Ostrow says the government has taken the commodity from people which officials are elected to preserve — time. "We need time to get the facts and become more informed," he states.

THE REASON OSTROW got involved in the committee was because "I got mad and I'm going to stay mad. It may take 12 years — this is no short-range project."

Ostrow looks at himself as a "philosopher, I guess. My concern is how to motivate the broad segment of the middle." He things many Americans are in favor of the goals of his committee but they are afraid to speak up. "I have no fear," he says.

As a former newspaper man, Ostrow says he has "learned the positio.. of sticking my neck out for those who were afraid to."

Ostrow says he has been called a communist and threatened with jail. Some persons refused to speak to him when he first became involved with the committee. "I found later they would come up to tell me they were on my side," he says.

THE BLOND-HAIRED Ostrow seems too quiet to be so involved in the nationwide committee. He seems at a loss to explain how his attempt to "do something" got so big.

"I'm a maverick and I know it," he says.

And he doesn't seem to mind it.

His answers are sometimes surprisingly simple, like when he says:

"What we need is to have equal respect for each other."

Frank Ostrow... "I'm a maverick and I know it."

Librarian's Article In ALA Publication

Schaumburg Township librarian Michael Madden is the author of a six-page magazine article in the June issue of Top of the News, published quarterly by the American Library Association (ALA).

The article is about radio spot announcements for various libraries throughout the country. Madden is chairman of a six-member ALA committee which had the responsibility of evaluating such radio announcements and their merit.

"We found that most spot announcements of libraries are weak," Madden said. Those of superior quality are cited in the magazine. "Of 130 tape announcements studied by the committee," Madden said, "we only recommended five."

Madden also had an article published in Top of the News in January, 1968, which covered an analysis of award-winning books during the last 30 years.

Hit Chamber Aid Proposal

An Illinois State Chamber proposal that the legislature back off from a state aid increase badly needed by Harper Junior College and the College of DuPage was sharply criticized today by a state junior college association official

James Broman, executive director of the Illinois Association of Community and Junior Colleges, issued a statement expressing "deep concern" at the state chamber's recommendation that state aid go up only $2 per credit hour instead of the $4 raise to $15.50 recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE)

He said the state's business and industry stands to lose if the Illinois junior colleges don't get adequate funding.

BROMAN, LEGISLATIVE spokesman for the state junior college association to which Harper and the College of DuPage both belong, said the chamber suggestion that $7.1 million be trimmed from the state's budget by not giving as much to the junior colleges was "a shock, especially since the chamber of commerce was instrumental in creating the junior college system."

Broman said business and industry throughout the state will be hurt if the full $15.50 per credit hour aid level is not approved.

He said that local junior colleges needl the state aid increase and a lower level would mean curtailment of expensive "occupational programs so vital to the economy" or increase in local property taxes to compensate for the state aid the junior colleges don't receive.

THE STATE chamber statement last week said its recommendation that state aid be increased only from $11.50 — this year's level, to $13.50 gibed with recommendations of the Illinois Junior College Board.

Broman said this is not so. He noted that the Illinois Junior College Board had originally recommended junior college state aid be increased from $11.50 to $17.

OK Chino Park Practice Use

With the blessings of the village board, Hoffman Estates Athletic Association (HEAA) and the Boys Club will continue their mutual use of Chino Park for football practice this year

According to Trustee Edward J. Hennessy, who recently held a joint meeting with representatives of both youth groups, there has never been a problem regarding scheduling the use of Chino Park.

Hall commissioner, said practice sessions for teams sponsored by both groups will begin about Aug. 1

Game conflicts do not exist, since all games played by the Commandos and Raiders, HEAA teams, are played at the Conant High School football field on Sundays. The Raiders and Titans, Boys Club teams, play their games on Sunday afternoons also, but at Chino Park

Hennessy said Bob Hill, director of the Boys Club, and Louis Dalitta, HEAA foot-

PRACTICE SESSIONS for both groups, however, will take place at Chino Park, and Hill and Dalitto have promised to work out an amiable solution for specific times.

Hennessy also reported that both youth organizations had voiced several requests

The Boys Club would like to have the football field mowed before each Sunday game, and they also feel that since the village is maintaining the Chino Park sponsibility for striping the field sponsibility for striping th field.

Hennessy said that the Boys Club also expressed willingness to paint the exterior of The Barn if materials are donated by village residents

"Perhaps some kind hearted hardware store owner might consider giving them about 60 gallons of paint," Hennessy quipped in obvious reference to retired Village Pres. Roy L. Jenkins, owner of a hardware franchise operation in downtown Hoffman Estates.

HEAA expressed concern about the condition of approximately $1,200 in sod installed by them on the pony league baseball diamond at Chino Park, Hennessy said "They are worried about members of the fire department playing on the diamond and tearing it up," he said.

ACCORDING TO Ed Kalasa, assistant fire chief, who was present at this week's board meeting, the fire department baseball team has now moved its practice to Robert Frost and Helen Keller Junior High School diamonds.

"Anyway, we were just aerating the field for them," Kalasa commented.

In a related discussion, Wallace Bolm, superintendent of public works, reported extensive damage to drinking water fountains near the Boys Club Barn and Chino Park. He said the fountains had just been remounted in cement to prevent damage and several of them are already in bad repair.

Chino Park is one of two park facilities owned by the village, although eventual plans call for possible release to the park district

Library Adopts Book Plan

Schaumburg Township Library Board has indicated that it will gather more facts before proceeding with plans for a library addition

A 7 800-square foot addition costing $195 000 had been proposed earlier to be built on the front of the present library building

Board members at Wednesday's meeting requested further study of the availability of money from the township in future years, as well as money available in mortgage loans from local financial institutions

Board Member Robert B Lyons was named liaison representative with the township board of auditors to determine plans for future gifts to the library

SCHAUMBURG TOWNSHIP is attempting to construct an administrative building, to be shared with Dist 54 school officials and paid for with excess commission collected by the township Last year the township collector received $88,000 as the township's share of taxes paid locally

In this year's township budget, $20,700 will be transferred to the library fund for the township library

Schaumburg Township Library Board members want to find out if the township will provide financial gifts to the library in future years or if all of their available funds will be used to pay for an administrative building

Library board members agreed that financing of a library addition should be carefully plotted before having an architect draw up any plans

According to librarian Michael Madden, the library possibly could obtain mortgage loans up to 50 per cent of the library's value with improvements This would mean that the library can borrow up to $187,000 under state library legislation, provided that mortgage money is available from banks

The present Schaumburg Township Library building is valued at $170,000

Slow, But Sure

Preparation of Hoffman Estates' 1969-70 appropriation and budget is coming along slowly, but surely, Trustee William W Cowin, finance committee chairman, told the Herald Thursday

Cowin said that due to the press of a heavy meeting schedule for all trustees, he is reluctant to call a number of committee meetings at close intervals

"I am more concerned right now with going to each separate department and trying to determine what is really necessary and where things could be shaved down a bit," he said, emphasizing, however, that a minimum of 12 hours more work lies ahead in budget preparation

THIS YEAR THE village board is working together as a committee-of-the-whole under Cowin's chairmanship, to prepare the appropriation and budget

Regarding the total financial picture of the village at present, Cowin, who has two yearsre maining in his present term, said he will have a prepared statement for release at Monday night's village board meeting

Two weeks ago, he was forced to request authorization for the immediate sale of $40,000 in tax anticipation warrants to meet current financial commitments

In the past the village ha sold about $70 000 in tax anticipation warrants annually, however, that amount will increase to $115,000 after the current sale

"I feel that we will be extremely lucky if we can avoid a tax increase next year," Cowin said, explaining that his feelings are based on a review of the needs and commitments of the village

"I ALSO FEEL that the community is going to have to brace itself for this necessity, although certainly no one likes the idea," he added

Cowin had previously served as chairman of the buildings and grounds committee until shortly after the April 15 election, when newly elected Pres Frederick E Downey named him chairman of finance and reorganized that group to a committee-of-the-whole

Assessing the progress of Downey and three new trustees and a village clerk, Cowin said he is pleased with the way the new officials are diving into their work

"Considering the fact that this is a new board with a considerably altered outlook, their interests and enthusiasm is really great, although it will be a while before their influence can have much effect on the total picture," Cowin said

Michael Madden, librarian at the Schaumburg Township Library, is a candidate for election to the 300-member governing board of the American Library Association

Madden's name is listed on a ballot sent to 30,000 ALA members throughout the nation in April He is running against a Baltimore librarian Election results should be announced next week, according to the township librarian

Madden will attend the national convention of the American Library Association in Atlantic City, N J , June 20 to 25 Prior to the actual opening of the convention on June 23, he will participate in a three-day institute on public library construction

Pool Vote Explained

by BARBARA O'REILLEY

The Wheeling Park Board presented the "package deal" swimming pool referendum in full to Wheeling citizens Wednesday night at Heritage Park, outlining what the recreation facility would cost the voter.

The $850,000 referendum includes the construction of a general purpose, instructional pool adjacent to Wheeling High School at Hintz Road and Route 83. In addition, the referendum allows for the purchase, renovation and remodeling of the existing community pool at Chamber of Commerce Park on Wolf Road.

The cost per homeowner of the June 14 referendum is eight cents per $100 of assessed valuation. In Cook County the assessed valuation is 40 to 50 per cent of the actual value of the home.

THAT IS, IF THE assessed valuation of a home is $10,000 the referendum increases the tax by $8, from $625 to $633.

A breakdown of the cost of the referendum is as follows:

—$600,000 is for the construction of the 75 by 45-foot pool in a three-level building connected to Wheeling High School by a corridor.

—$59,999 is the contingency on the price of the construction, allowing for rising costs.

—$1 is for the purchase of the land from School Dist. 214. The park district is leasing the land at token cost, because it is legally prohibited from making capital improvements on land it does not own.

—$160,000 is to purchase the existing community pool.

—$30,000 is for the improvements to the existing community pool and to Chamber of Commerce Park, where it is located.

TWO POLLING PLACES will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, June 14. Persons living west of the Soo Line tracks can vote at Jack London Junior High School, 1001 W. Dundee Road. Those living east of the tracks can vote in the Wheeling Park District Building in Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Road.

The proposed heated, indoor-outdoor pool, solely under the jurisdiction of the Wheeling Park District, will be leased by the high school district by the amount of time and space used.

It is estimated the school will use the facility 50 per cent of the time. Thus about $300,000, including the principal and interest, will be borne by the school district, which includes other communities.

The projected completion date for the proposed pool facility is next June, according to Ferd Arndt, superintendent of parks.

The pool will be in a multipurpose building directly in front of the high school fieldhouse and facing Route 83. The upper floor of the building will have seating facilities for 120 persons and a multi-use room which can be partitioned into quarters.

THE GROUND FLOOR will have locker space and shower facilities, and the lower floor will have a large multipurpose room.

The pool would have an admission price and memberships available. It has not been decided whether a membership the existing community pool could be used at both pools, said Mrs Lorraine Lark, Wheeling Park Board president.

Thomas Shirley, principal of Wheeling High School, pointed out that Arlington High School already has a similar swimming pool arrangement with its park board.

"We would like to assure our park board that we would use the entire facility," Shirley said. "The multipurpose rooms could be used for large instructional classes and for driver training. The weight-lifting and other exercise equipment that we would store in the facility would be for public use, also."

Shirley expressed the hope that the proposed swimming pool would draw more community members to the high school, where they can use all of the school facilities.

Improvements to the existing community pool and its surrounding park would include blacktopping the road adjacent to the Cameo Apartments. The present dirt road has been a source of annoyance for the apartment dwellers.

In addition to landscaping beautification, the present pool building will be covered, making it a year-round facility.

SAC Plane Missing

OMAHA, Neb — Strategic Air Command headquarters said yesterday an RC-135 reconnaissance aircraft with 19 persons aboard has been reported missing in the western Aleutian Islands

SAC headquarters said the plane was attached to a wing based at Eielson AFB near Fairbanks, Alaska, and was on a routine flight to Eielson from Shemya, Alaska.

Helicopter Crashes

PARIS — A U.S.-built helicopter crashed Thursday during a demonstration at the international air show, killing the British pilot in a disaster seen by tens of thousands of spectators.

The helicopter exploded in flight and plunged from an altitude of about 70 feet to the ground, about 300 yards from the huge crowd

Filibuster Is Flop

SPRINGFIELD — Black legislators in the House filibusterer unsuccessfully for more than two hours yesterday in an attempt to divert an appropriation bill and use part of the funds to train the unemployed for state jobs.

Negro legislators unsuccessfully tried to attach six amendments to the $37.1 million appropriation for the Department of Conservation

A Red Choice Is OK

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State William P Rogers said yesterday the presence of some Communists in the South Vietnamese government would be acceptable to the United States if they were chosen in a free election.

Rogers said the U.S. was not wedded to any government in Saigon, but only to the principle that the people there "should have the right by free choice to decide their future."

Road Program Passed

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday Governor Ogilvie's highway program, including a one-cent hike in the gasoline tax and increasing auto license fees.

Democrats spoke in opposition to one of the proposals for creating a highway authority to float $2 billion in bonds over the next 10 years for road repairs and construction The license plate increase bill would hike the $8 to $12 category to $20 and the $18 to $20 category to $30

U.S. Jet Gunned Down

SAIGON — Anti-aircraft gunners around the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi shot down an unarmed U.S. reconnaissance jet yesterday, and American fighter-bombers retaliated with the first announced attack on North Vietnam in six months

The two-man crew of the downed plane was rescued The U S command said results of the raid against the North Vietnamese gunners were not known

Breadbasket To Lobby

SPRINGFIELD — The Rev Jesse Jackson, head of Operation Breadbasket, yesterday said his organization will open an office in Springfield next week and hopes to organize a lobby in the legislature.

Jackson said the office will probably open next Wednesday "to organize a lobby to fight hunger in Illinois."

It Rains, Then Floods

by ALAN AKERSON

In Chicago, lawyers are planning their tactics for the next pretrial meeting over the Cambridge drainage dispute.

On Jackson Drive, southeast of the Cambridge subdivision, residents await the results of these meetings, while they brace themselves for the next rain and the flooding that will come with it.

For one thing is certain on Jackson Drive: When it rains, it floods.

The street lies in an unincorporated area southeast of the subdivision, directly in the path of Cambridge storm sewer drainage. When a light rain hits, residents talk of a flood several inches deep lasting only a number of hours. With a heavy rain, the flood's severity is measured in feet and days.

Only 20 to 25 people live on the street. Most of the lots are at least an acre in size.

THE PEOPLE have banded together to form a semi-official group called the Jackson Drive Homeowners Association. Tuesday night the group outlined its dilemma to the Wheeling Township Board of Auditors, but was told the township could not legally help in any way.

Charles Hinze, who, with his wife, "Chick," operates a ceramics shop in his Jackson Drive home, is the group's spokesman.

He summed up the situation in two sentences: "When it rains, the water comes down from Cambridge and floods the ditches, street and some homes. Before Cambridge we had water, but it drained in a day; now it just stays."

"We were told (by the township) to get a lawyer and have him sit in on these pretrial meetings. But, heck, if they keep on continuing the case, it will drain us financially to hire a lawyer." (Most of the residents are paying off heavy mortgages.)

HINZE TOLD of a couple who moved into their house on Jackson Drive during a rainy day: "That night they had five inches of water in their kitchen."

The Hinzes have been luckier: "Once the water got as high as our front step," said Chick, "but it didn't get into the house."

The water, that time, was high enough that when Hinze tried to drive through it in his panel truck, he got only part of the way to his front gate before the water stopped him. He had to wade back to the house.

As part of their business, the Hinzes conduct evening ceramics classes. Last fall Hinze put in a gravel parking lot over the drainage ditch in front of his house. He is quick to point out that he placed a culvert in the ditch big enough to handle any drainage, before he put in the gravel.

"When it rains, though," he said, "the parking lot is under water. The floods really hurt our business."

Couple to Describe Jungle Experiences

Experiences at a jungle camp in Mexico will be described Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. David Scherling at the 7 p.m. service of the Wheeling Evangelical Free Church, which meets at Carl Sandburg School, Schoenbeck Road.

The Scherlings are members of Wycliffe Bible Translators, a group which seeks to translate the Bible into foreign languages.

Slides of the Scherling's training in Mexico will also be shown.

CCPA: It's Legal

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Police unions are legal in Illinois, the Wheeling Chapter of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) contends.

Sgt. Gene Wolf, chapter president, has taken issue with a statement by Wheeling Village Atty. Paul Hamer, saying the village board cannot legally deal with the association as a bargaining agent for the village's police force.

He points to Section 10-4-1 of the Illinois Municipal Code, which he says gives the village board the power to recognize the association.

That section of the code says, "The corporate authorities of any municipality may provide by ordinance in regard to the relation between all municipal officers and employes in resepct to each other, the municipality, and the people."

WOLF EXPLAINS that under that provision, the village board could recognize the association as a representative of the policemen if it wished. Quotes from trustees and Pres. Ted C Scanlon at recent board meetings that the board is willing to meet with the policemen as individuals, but cannot accept their association, indicate a meeting may be possible.

If the board deems not to recognize the association under that provision, all is still not lost for the CCPA.

Four bills currently before the Illinois Legislature in various stages of approval, could give the policemen a right to demand their organization be recognized.

Most likely of the four to pass are Senate Bill 18 and House Bill 778. The senate bill, which is currently under discussion in the house committee on industry and labor relations, has passed the Senate. It would prohibit strikes, provide for adjustment of grievances, and establish a certification procedure for employe organizations as representative organizations.

THAT BILL would provide for mediation and fact-finding to resolve disputes and create statewide advisory committees and boards.

HB778 has passed the House and is now awaiting Senate approval. It specifically grants public employe labor organizations the right to bargain collectively with public employers. It would create a state labor relations board to supervise labor elections for public employe labor organizations, and to hear complaints and investigate charges of unfair labor practices arising between public employers and employes.

Another bill which deals specifically with allowing collective bargaining between the policemen's designated bargaining unit and the policemen's employer remains in the House Committee on Municipalities.

The fourth bill, which had received a "do-pass" from the House Committee on Industry and Labor Relations contains essentially the same recommendations as SB 18.

"All Power To the People"

In the past few days, the Black Panthers have leaped into the headlines in 96 point type as the FBI raided their headquarters in Chicago and in Denver. Who are they and what do they represent to our Northwest suburbs. Find out Monday in Paddock Publications in the first of a three-part series, "All Power to the People," by Writer James Vesely and Photographer Robert Finch.

During the next few weeks, migrant workers will be pouring into our Northwest suburbs, mostly from Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley. Who are these migrants? What is HOME to them? Today, in the third of a six-part series, Senior Staff Writer David Hoyt describes the migrant's jobs in the valley before he heads north.

Story and Photos by David Hoyt

Whether he's a common farm laborer, a crew leader, a landscaper or a nursery worker, when it comes to making a living the Mexican American migrant is usually better off during his northern migration than he is at home in the Lower Rio Grande Valley

The valley is home — true enough. The valley is where the family is. The climate there is nice in the winter.

But valley agriculture simply cannot absorb a winter labor force that harvests most of the rest of the nation during the summer.

Between 100,000 and 125,000 migrants leave the valley each summer — about a third of the total population — and when they return there are simply not enough jobs to go around, not enough jobs to offer a decent wage.

"We hit about 6 per cent unemployment in the valley in the winter," Richard Stolle of the Texas Employment Commission says. "That's including people who'd like to work but can't. They (the growers) can afford to offer low wages and still pick and choose who they hire."

GENERALLY THE migrant laborer has no other skills so he takes what work he can get and waits for the next migration.

The man who makes $1.70 an hour in Minnesota is lucky to get 90 cents an hour doing the same thing in the valley.

Stolle says $1.30 "is the federal standard minimum wage in agriculture," when he is asked about pay on the south Texas ranches.

It's a good answer. But it won't always wash, because much of the picking is done on a piece-work scale and what is made in pice-work depends on the pieces.

Onion topping can bring a man good money. If the onions are big and the earth is not too hard, a man might put up six sacks of onions an hour, letting him average $1.50 an hour; 25 cents a sack is the going rate.

But that usually can't be done. The crews crawl along the rows, snipping frantically at onions not much bigger than

Ostrow: Need Equal Respect for Each Other

by SANDRA BROWNING

Frank Ostrow is an unimposing man with friendly eyes and an easy smile.

If you live in northern Arlington Heights, he and his wife and four children may be moving in next door to you this week.

"Most people shy away from me because I am involved in something controversial," Ostrow said in an interview with the Herald.

Ostrow's part-time interest is a group called the Remember the Pueblo Committee of the United States of which he is chairman. In July, he started a group by that name in Kent, Washington. It has now grown to include committees across the nation. Members recently changed the name to United States Pueblo Committee and plan to call it "US" for short.

WITH OSTROW MOVING into Arlington Heights, he will be the second man in the area who heads a Remember the Pueblo Committee. The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, is chairman of the national "Remember the Pueblo" committee.

The two committees have similar names and were organized for similar reasons, but are separate groups which happened to spring up after the capture of the USS Pueblo by North Korea in January of 1968.

Ostrow says he has talked with Lindstrom but the two groups will not unite forces. He said these two committees and other groups organized as a result of the Pueblo incident will operate separately but will work cooperatively.

THE REASON OSTROW formed his committee in July was to mold national opinion and inform the news media about the inhuman treatment which the men of the Pueblo were receiving. He wanted to raise enough support to show politicians the strength of his cause, to create hope for the captured men and to not let the matter be forgotten.

Although the committee's name seems to imply its dedication to one purpose, Ostrow says the goals of the group were broader.

The World War II veteran says, "How many more men do we have to kill and how many more violations do there have to be before action is taken?"

The seizing of the Pueblo and the April EC-121 reconnaissance plane incident "showed we are no longer safe," he says.

"Who is going to stand up for law?" the ex-Marine asks. He says the Abe Fortas incident was an example of high level nonresponsibility for law.

Frank Ostrow... "I'm a maverick and I know it."

Ostrow says he feels the public has not been totally informed about the Pueblo investigation. He says senators are trying cident and there should be a Senate investigation. He says senators are trying to bury the incident but they should see it is too vital to international affairs to be forgotten.

"If our senators can't see that, we need new senators," Ostrow maintains. "All we want to do is to obtain the facts so that each person can make his own decision."

Ostrow says the government has taken the commodity from people which officials are elected to preserve — time. "We need time to get the facts and become more informed," he states.

THE REASON OSTROW got involved in the committee was because "I got mad and I'm going to stay mad. It may take 12 years — this is no short-range project."

Ostrow looks at himself as a "philosopher, I guess. My concern is how to motivate the broad segment of the middle."

He things many Americans are in favor of the goals of his committee but they are afraid to speak up. "I have no fear," he says.

As a former newspaper man, Ostrow says he has "learned the position of sticking my neck out for those who were afraid to."

Ostrow says he has been called a communist and threatened with jail. Some persons refused to speak to him when he first became involved with the committee. "I found later they would come up to tell me they were on my side," he says.

THE BLOND-HAIRED Ostrow seems too quiet to be so involved in the nationwide committee. He seems at a loss to explain how his attempt to "do something" got so big.

"I'm a maverick and I know it," he says.

And he doesn't seem to mind it.

His answers are sometimes surprisingly simple, like when he says:

"What we need is to have equal respect for each other."

Free Lance

by MARY DRESSER

Despite all the verbal licks I have used to drub teachers, I must admit they merit respect and sincere administration.

. . . Not the silly, fuzzy-headed losers who fudge their way through playpen "colleges" of education and emerge instant experts on what our children shall become.

. . . Not the old-time servers, mealy-mouthing concern for kids while counting up tenure and figuring how many days of sick leave they have accrued.

. . . Not administrators who have reached the pinacle of incompetence and pursue the innocuous until it becomes a religious creed, with the school board god and mediocrity their dogma.

Teaching has probably the same proportion of humbug as journalism.

It is too bad good teachers can't put bylines on their students.

IT'S TOO BAD Wheeling High power mechanics teacher Henry Dokes can't hang his byline on the boys who graduate from his class — boys who are proud of the craft they have learned from him.

It's too bad Donald Graham, principal of Sullivan School in Dist. 23, can't get a byline for students who have graduated from science classe he conducted while a teacher at MacArthur Junior High.

Kids who were in Graham's classes have been pulling in science awards by the bushel basket at both Wheeling and Hersey high schools.

Too bad Harold Petersen of Hersey High can't byline the students he has directed in play productions this year. Petersen has badgered and cajoled a respect for excellence from the students.

ON THE ELEMENTARY school level, it's tough that Dorothy Ehrke, former principal of Ross School in Dist. 23, couldn't stamp her byline on all the tykes graduating from her kindergarten-through-second-grade classes.

Mary Dresser

Dorothy had the magnificent capacity to love just about every child in the school. She not only loved them, she worried about them, and on occasion could be more concerned about the child than his parents.

There are teachers like Graham and Dokes and Mrs. Ehrke in schools all over this area.

There are also bad teachers. Perhaps they should also have bylines so society could identify the results of their incompetence and sloth.

It is unfortunate that tenure perpetuates the bad teachers in the school systems.

I'd like to throw tenure out the window and make districts bid for good teachers as if they were star baseball players.

THE GOOD ONES ARE so valuable they should be making more money than Ernie Banks.

A little financial competition might also improve the performance of the bush league teachers.

I'd also like to suggest to the kids that on the last day of school, they wear their teacher's name pinned to their dresses or shirts.

If the teacher deserves a byline, give it to him or her.

Steeple in Trouble

by ANNE SLAVICEK

A new problem has for a second time delayed Wheeling's 105-year-old community Church from its location next to the village hall.

Originally, moving of the church was delayed until an addition on the back of the building could be torn down.

The steeple is creating the newest problem, because, when the church is moved, the steeple will catch on the main power line in town.

Ron Ignatius, a member of the historical society in charge of getting the church moved, says the steeple will have to be removed before the church can be moved to Chamber of Commerce Park.

IGNATIUS SAID THAT while the electrical company would have disconnected the wires so the church could be moved, they would only do so at midnight. Cutting the wires would have been an added expense for the slim funds already donated to move the church.

Ignatius says additional donations are needed to help pay for getting the church moved and restored. Individuals or organizations interested in preserving the church can send contributions to the historical society.

The original problem of getting the addition torn off was solved by Irv Maihach, a local contractor who came to the rescue.

Maihach will now remove the old church's steeple before the move, so the electric lines can go undisturbed, says Ignatius.

Ignatius estimated Monday that the church could be moved sometime this week.

Village Alerted for Tornado

Buffalo Grove residents were prepared for the touchdown of one of the many tornadoes reported in surrounding areas Wednesday night, but fortunately the preparations turned out to be unnecessary.

Police Chief Harold Smith told the Herald that one citizen reported sighting a tornado southeast of the Cambridge subdivision about 8:50 p.m. Smith was not sure if an actual funnel cloud existed or if the report was triggered by excessive winds above the ground.

IN ORDER TO cover areas of the town outside the range of the warning siren, police patroled the streets with loudspeakers warning residents of the tornado watch and telling homeowners to turn on radios.

The chief said one lady called the station Thursday morning to thank the police for their efforts.

Buffalo Grove has had some houses damaged by windstorms during other tornado alerts, but a twister never touched down in the village as far as Smith can remember.

By Thursday, all that was left of the storm was six inches of water on University Drive.

Schools Oppose Apartment Plan

School Dist. 26 has taken a moderate stand in opposing the rezoning of a 5.2-acre site at River and Foundry roads east of Mount Prospect.

If the rezoning request is granted, developers plan to construct two five-story apartment buildings with stores in the ground floor of one of them. Also scheduled is a professional building and a building on the corner to be used, presumably by a franchise restaurant.

The Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals heard the rezoning request Monday. However, a decision on the request won't be made for at least three weeks.

The school district sent a letter to the zoning board opposing the project because, presently the school district is bonded to its legal limits. The letter also pointed out the district now has additional children from Maryville Academy attending its schools.

Curtain Rises Friday On Class Production

"Tish," a comedy-mystery by Alice Chadwicke, will be presented Friday by the fine arts production class at River Trails Junior High School.

The play will be presented at 8 p.m. in the school gymnasium. No admission will be charged.

The 32 students in the class have made their own costumes, props and sets as part of a special class project, and 13 of them will act in the production.

The play is being co-directed by River Trails teachers Fred Thayer and Mrs. Marcelyn Ratner.

Rain, Then Flood

side of their yard In it were three salamanders her son had caught near the storm sewer in front of their property. The sewer was flooded at the time

The Hinzes pointed out a white frame house at the end of Jackson Drive and just beyond Cambridge There lives William B Frazier, the man who built a dam to stop the Cambridge water from draining across his land

As a result of Frazier's dam, Richard Brown, the subdivision's developer, has joined with three Cambridge residents to sue Frazier They contend Frazier's dam has upset the natural flow of water

Frazier says Brown had already upset the natural flow of water when he raised the level of the land for his subdivision "And the law says I can raise my land two feet above his," Frazier points out

THOUGH FRAZIER is 68 and retired now, he still performs occasional auto repair work in his back yard. "With the water, though, it's too muddy to work on cars." He pointed to a 12-year-old Ford on which he had spent a week trying to change the motor "It's just too wet to get anything done out here," he said.

He showed where he once kept a garden He didn't put it in this year because the water would have washed it away.

Frazier started to talk about his dam, and as he did, a drizzle began falling.

"I'm going to get a bulldozer he said and raise the level of my dam another three feet"

Presently the dam, consisting of dirt piled against two old cars, is about three feet high. He built it about two and a half years ago.

The dam holds a stagnant pool of water about three feet deep and 100 feet wide. Frazier says he constantly chases area school children away from the pool because he's afraid the pool "has got some sort of disease in it."

FRAZIER WALKED to the back of his property line. Between his acreage and the subdivision lies a muddy "no-man's" land about 40 feet wide. In the center of it is the sewer that dumps all of Cambridge's storm water onto the ground just above Frazier's land No water was coming from it just then.

"If this rain keeps up 10 minutes longer," he said, "the water will be gushing out of there"

He pointed to three houses nearest his property "I told those people before they bought those houses what happens here when it rains. But they bought anyway," Frazier said "And now they're suing me."

OCCASIONALLY water gurgled from a drain pipe at the base of one of the houses. "Those are their basement pups," explained Frazier.

Frazier walked back to the house, discussing his lawsuit: "I'm not too worried; I like a good fight."

Meanwhile, the rain began falling harder

Chicagoan, 21, Faces Trail on Hypo Charge

A Chicago man will be tried July 22 in Arlington Heights District Court for possession of a hypodermic syringe.

David N. Graff, 21, of 234 N. Lorel, Chicago, was charged Tuesday by Wheeling police.

Police charged Graff following a report from Ann Hardman, 291 N. 3rd St., Wheeling.

Police say a bag of brownish green seeds and a white pill found on Graff have been sent to the Illinois Crime Lab for identification. They are continuing the investigation in the case.

After being informed of his rights, Graff told police that the seeds were marijuana, their reports state.

Mental Health Loses Martin

The Wheeling Township Mental Health Board accepted the resignation of Jack Martin on Tuesday Martin, assistant administrator of High School Dist 214, is taking a leave of absence to do graduate work

Board members will make recommendtions to Township Supervisor Mrs. Ethel Kolerus concerning a replacement for Martin and for the Rev Richard Warren, who recently moved from Prospect Heights to California

NEXT MEETING of the group is scheduled for the fourth Tuesday in September when members will study the survey of mental health needs in the area sponsored by Clearbrook Center for the Retarded, Northwest Mental Health Clinic and St. Alexius Hospital.

Early this year the Board recommended that a total of $83,760 in surplus township funds be allocated to mental health agencies in the area The township board of auditors agreed and residents at the annual town meeting in April approved grants to Clearbrook, Northwest Mental Health Clinic and Countryside Center for the Retarded.

ALSO RECEIVING funds were Community Social Services of Wheeling and the Salvation Army's family services agency in Des Plaines.

Thursday D-Day for School Aid Bill?

by MARY SCHLOTT

This weekend apparently is the time when the greatest citizen pressure for increased state school aid must be mustered

State Sen John A Graham of the Third District said next Thursday may be D Day for state school aid

Graham in a pivotal position on a Senate task force evaluating the state's needs for higher education and the common schools said he thinks the level of state aid may be decided by the end of next week

He is doubtful that Gov Richard Ogilvie's $520 state aid recommendation will survive that hurdle

PROPONENTS TO go higher than that, to $550 are 'in real trouble" Graham told the Herald Thursday

Graham said flatly however that he is confident that the state aid per pupil won't go below $500 though it 'may be the ultimate decision

Talk in the Senate he said, indicates that many legislators would like to hold to $520 — or something close — but change the state aid formula in a way that will give the schools less but won't be so conspicuous

They could do it in a couple of ways — by changing the way the state figures the number of students a school district can draw state aid for or by changing the qualifying rate," the effort level tax a school district must levy to get state aid

No Illinois school district will get the full $520 foundation level per pupil if the Ogilvie proposal goes through The state aid formula doesn't work that way

THE STATE GIVES a school district the difference between the foundation level and what the district can raise per pupil by levying the qualifying rate tax on its total taxable property

Currently the state foundation level is $400 with a qualifying tax rate of 84 cents per $100 assessed evaluation, with the paying schools on the basis of average daily attendance, not total enrollment, and allowing high school enrollment to be increased 15 per cent because it costs more to educate high school students

Ogilvie is recommending a $520 foundation level, a qualifying rate of 90 cents per $100 assessed valuation, with the state paying on the basis of average daily membership instead of attendance, and with high school attendance figured at 1 25 the number of students

Graham said much of the talk in the payout by setting a $520 foundation aid level — or something near — but going to a $1 08 qualifying rate instead of 90 cents

THE CHANGE would mean local schools would get substantially less aid than they would at a 90-cent "effort level' qualifying rate

Graham, whose current work on the tax Senate is to cut the state's total task force calls for analysis of the state's higher education spending needs, has been burrowing away at reams of paper work in a room with close to 20 auditors

He eventually will help decide whether the junior college's state aid level is increased from $11 50 per credit hour to $15 50, as the Illinois Board of Higher Education recommends, or to just $13 50 per credit hour — a recommendation of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce The decision on that lies several days away as well

The auditors Graham said, will help the Senate make a "realistic appraisal' of the state's spending needs

"We are trying to use the fine knife of surgery to do a delicate job of pruning when it needs to be done' Graham said "Even in higher education we are not planning to wield a broadaxe in cutting programs '

Ask State Assist

Wood Dale Village Councilman Dino Janis has sent a letter recently to Gov Richard J Ogilvie asking Ogilvie's intercession into getting state approval of plans to widen and improve the intersection of Wood Dale and Irving Park roads

"We are writing your office as a last resort in the hopes of receiving some relief which involves some 9,000 residents in the Village of Wood Dale and some 80,000 to 100,000 residents surrounding our village " the letter starts

Janis explained how the intersection of Irving Park Road, a state highway, and Wood Dale Road, a county highway, has been known as one of the worst two lane intersections in DuPage County

Janis said the project consisting of four lanes with a left turn lane added would cost an estimated $215 000 The DuPage County Board of Supervisors has agreed to share the project cost with Wood Dale, he added

The village portion will be paid with Motor Fuel Tax fund money and other village funds, he said, with no cost to the state

"AFTER RECEIVING tentative approval from the state engineer we were waiting for formal approval of our plans," the letter said

He said the state now wants further changes before granting approval The additional work is mainly the lengthening of the widening process of Irving Park Road, he added The additional cost is estimated to be $50,000 to $75,000, he said

"Any improvement is better than no improvement,' Janis said 'since the village cannot afford to further improve Irving Park Road beyond plans "

Janis asked Ogilvie to intercede so work could be started this fall because the work is already four years behind the need, he said

Van Meir Resigns

Winston Harwood, superintendent of School District 26 announced to the school board Tuesday night the resignation of Edward Van Meir, principal of Euclid School

Van Meir is accepting a post as assistant professor at Eastern Illinois University where he will be coordinator of student teachers in the Chicago area

VAN MEIR'S resignation creates the second administrative vacancy in District 26

Last month James Retzlaff, principal of River Trails Jr High,'accepted a contract for the new post of assistant superintendent for District 26 at a salary of $17,000

James Ackley, principal of Indian Grove School will take over Retzlaff's duties as principal of the junior high in the fall

In other action, the board approved the superintendent's salary of $23 000 for the 1969 70 school year

SAC Plane Missing

OMAHA, Neb. — Strategic Air Command headquarters said yesterday an RC-135 reconnaissance aircraft with 19 persons aboard has been reported missing in the western Aleutian Islands.

SAC headquarters said the plane was attached to a wing based at Eielson AFB near Fairbanks, Alaska, and was on a routine flight to Eielson from Shemya, Alaska.

Helicopter Crashes

PARIS — A U.S.-built helicopter crashed Thursday during a demonstration at the international air show, killing the British pilot in a disaster seen by tens of thousands of spectators.

The helicopter exploded in flight and plunged from an altitude of about 70 feet to the ground, about 300 yards from the huge crowd.

Filibuster Is Flop

SPRINGFIELD — Black legislators in the House filibusterer unsuccessfully for more than two hours yesterday in an attempt to divert an appropriation bill and use part of the funds to train the unemployed for state jobs.

Negro legislators unsuceessfully tried to attach six amendments to the $37.1 million appropriation for the Department of Conservation.

A Red Choice Is OK

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State William P Rogers said yesterday the presence of some Communists in the South Vietnamese government would be acceptable to the United States if they were chosen in a free election.

Rogers said the U S was not wedded to any government in Saigon, but only to the principle that the people there "should have the right by free choice to decide their future."

Road Program Passed

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday Governor Ogilvie's highway program, including a one-cent hike in the gasoline tax and increasing auto license fees.

Democrats spoke in opposition to one of the proposals for creating a highway authority to float $2 billion in bonds over the next 10 years for road repairs and construction The license plate increase bill would hike the $8 to $12 category to $20 and the $18 to $20 category to $30.

U.S. Jet Gunned Down

SAIGON — Anti-aircraft gunners around the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi shot down an unarmed U S. reconnaissance jet yesterday, and American fighter-bombers retaliated with the first announced attack on North Vietnam in six months

The two-man crew of the downed plane was rescued The U S command said results of the raid against the North Vietnamese gunners were not known

Breadbasket To Lobby

SPRINGFIELD -- The Rev. Jesse Jackson, head of Operation Breadbasket, yesterday said his organization will open an office in Springfield next week and hopes to organize a lobby in the legislature.

Jackson said the office will probably open next Wednesday "to organize a lobby to fight hunger in Illinois."

Pool Vote Explained

by BARBARA O'REILLEY

The Wheeling Park Board presented the "package deal" swimming pool referendum in full to Wheeling citizens Wednesday night at Heritage Park, outlining what the recreation facility would cost the voter.

The $850,000 referendum includes the construction of a general purpose, instructional pool adjacent to Wheeling High School at Hintz Road and Route 83. In addition, the referendum allows for the purchase, renovation and remodeling of the existing community pool at Chamber of Commerce Park on Wolf Road.

The cost per homeowner of the June 14 referendum is eight cents per $100 of assessed valuation. In Cook County the assessed valuation is 40 to 50 per cent of the actual value of the home.

THAT IS, IF THE assessed valuation of a home is $10,000 the referendum increases the tax by $8, from $625 to $633.

A breakdown of the cost of the referendum is as follows:

—$600,000 is for the construction of the 75 by 45-foot pool in a three-level building connected to Wheeling High School by a corridor.

—$59,999 is the contingency on the price of the construction, allowing for rising costs.

—$1 is for the purchase of the land from School Dist. 214. The park district is leasing the land at token cost, because it is legally prohibited from making capital improvements on land it does not own.

—$160,000 is to purchase the existing community pool.

—$30,000 is for the improvements to the existing community pool and to Chamber of Commerce Park, where it is located.

TWO POLLING PLACES will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, June 14. Persons living west of the Soo Line tracks can vote at Jack London Junior High School, 1001 W. Dundee Road. Those living east of the tracks can vote in the Wheeling Park District Building in Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Road.

The proposed heated, indoor-outdoor pool, solely under the jurisdiction of the Wheeling Park District, will be leased by the high school district by the amount of time and space used.

It is estimated the school will use the facility 50 per cent of the time. Thus about $300,000, including the principal and interest, will be borne by the school district, which includes other communities.

The projected completion date for the proposed pool facility is next June, according to Ferd Arndt, superintendent of parks.

The pool will be in a multipurpose building directly in front of the high school fieldhouse and facing Route 83. The upper floor of the building will have seating facilities for 120 persons and a multi-use room which can be partitioned into quarters.

THE GROUND FLOOR will have locker space and shower facilities, and the lower floor will have a large multipurpose room.

The pool would have an admission price and memberships available. It has not been decided whether a membership to the existing community pool could be used at both pools, said Mrs. Lorraine Lark, Wheeling Park Board president.

Thomas Shirley, principal of Wheeling High School, pointed out that Arlington High School already has a similar swimming pool arrangement with its park board.

"We would like to assure our park board that we would use the entire facility," Shirley said. "The multipurpose rooms could be used for large instructional classes and for driver training. The weight-lifting and other exercise equipment that we would store in the facility would be for public use, also."

Shirley expressed the hope that the proposed swimming pool would draw more community members to the high school, where they can use all of the school facilities.

Improvements to the existing community pool and its surrounding park would include blacktopping the road adjacent to the Cameo Apartments. The present dirt road has been a source of annoyance for the apartment dwellers.

In addition to landscaping beautification, the present pool building will be covered, making it a year-round facility.

Couple to Describe Jungle Experiences

Experiences at a jungle camp in Mexico will be described Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. David Scherling at the 7 p.m. service of the Wheeling Evangelical Free Church, which meets at Carl Sandburg School, Schoenbeck Road.

The Scherlings are members of Wycliffe Bible Translators, a group which seeks to translate the Bible into foreign languages.

Slides of the Scherling's training in Mexico will also be shown.

It Rains, Then Floods

by ALAN AKERSON

In Chicago, lawyers are planning their tactics for the next pretrial meeting over the Cambridge drainage dispute.

On Jackson Drive, southeast of the Cambridge subdivision, residents await the results of these meetings, while they brace themselves for the next rain and the flooding that will come with it.

For one thing is certain on Jackson Drive: When it rains, it floods.

The street lies in an unincorporated area southeast of the subdivision, directly in the path of Cambridge storm sewer drainage. When a light rain hits, residents talk of a flood several inches deep lasting only a number of hours. With a heavy rain, the flood's severity is measured in feet and days.

Only 20 to 25 people live on the street. Most of the lots are at least an acre in size.

THE PEOPLE have banded together to form a semi-official group called the Jackson Drive Homeowners Association. Tuesday night the group outlined its dilemma to the Wheeling Township Board of Auditors, but was told the township could not legally help in any way.

Charles Hinze, who, with his wife, "Chick," operates a ceramics shop in his Jackson Drive home, is the group's spokesman.

He summed up the situation in two sentences: "When it rains, the water comes down from Cambridge and floods the ditches, street and some homes. Before Cambridge we had water, but it drained in a day; now it just stays."

"We were told (by the township) to get a lawyer and have him sit in on these pretrial meetings. But, heck, if they keep on continuing the case, it will drain us financially to hire a lawyer." (Most of the residents are paying off heavy mortgages.)

HINZE TOLD of a couple who moved into their house on Jackson Drive during a rainy day: "That night they had five inches of water in their kitchen."

The Hinzes have been luckier: "Once the water got as high as our front step," said Chick, "but it didn't get into the house."

The water, that time, was high enough that when Hinze tried to drive through it in his panel truck, he got only part of the way to his front gate before the water stopped him. He had to wade back to the house.

As part of their business, the Hinzes conduct evening ceramics classes. Last fall Hinze put in a gravel parking lot over the drainage ditch in front of his house. He is quick to point out that he placed a culvert in the ditch big enough to handle any drainage, before he put in the gravel.

"When it rains, though," he said, "the parking lot is under water. The floods really hurt our business."

"All Power To The People"

In the past few days, the Black Panthers have leaped into the headlines in 96 point type as the FBI raided their headquarters in Chicago and in Denver. Who are they and what do they represent to our Northwest suburbs. Find out Monday in Paddock Publications in the first of a three-part series, "All Power to the People," by Writer James Vesely and Photographer Robert Finch.

Winter Work is Disappearing

(Copyright 1969 Paddock Publications Inc.)

During the next few weeks, migrant workers will be pouring into our Northwest suburbs, mostly from Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley. Who are these migrants? What is HOME to them? Today, in the third of a six-part series, Senior Staff Writer David Hoyt describes the migrant's jobs in the valley before he heads north.

The Seasonal Suburbanite

Story and Photos by David Hoyt

Whether he's a common farm laborer, a crew leader, a landscaper or a nursery worker, when it comes to making a living the Mexican American migrant is usually better off during his northern migration than he is at home in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The valley is home — true enough. The valley is where the family is. The climate there is nice in the winter.

But valley agriculture simply cannot absorb a winter labor force that harvests most of the rest of the nation during the summer.

Between 100,000 and 125,000 migrants leave the valley each summer — about a third of the total population — and when they return there are simply not enough jobs to go around, not enough jobs to offer a decent wage.

"We hit about 6 per cent unemployment in the valley in the winter," Richard Stolle of the Texas Employment Commission says. "That's including people who'd like to work but can't. They (the growers) can afford to offer low wages and still pick and choose who they hire."

GENERALLY THE migrant laborer has no other skills so he takes what work he can get and waits for the next migration.

The man who makes $1.70 an hour in Minnesota is lucky to get 90 cents an hour doing the same thing in the valley.

Stolle says $1.30 "is the federal standard minimum wage in agriculture," when he is asked about pay on the south Texas ranches.

It's a good answer. But it won't always wash, because much of the picking is done on a piece-work scale and what is made in pice-work depends on the pieces.

Onion topping can bring a man good money. If the onions are big and the earth is not too hard, a man might put up six sacks of onions an hour, letting him average $1.50 an hour; 25 cents a sack is the going rate.

But that usually can't be done The crews crawl along the rows, snipping frantically at onions not much bigger than

CCPA: It's Legal

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Police unions are legal in Illinois, the Wheeling Chapter of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) contends.

Sgt. Gene Wolf, chapter president, has taken issue with a statement by Wheeling Village Atty. Paul Hamer, saying the village board cannot legally deal with the association as a bargaining agent for the village's police force.

He points to Section 10-4-1 of the Illinois Municipal Code, which he says gives the village board the power to recognize the association.

That section of the code says, "The corporate authorities of any municipality may provide by ordinance in regard to the relation between all municipal officers and employes in resepct to each other, the municipality, and the people."

WOLF EXPLAINS that under that provision, the village board could recognize the association as a representative of the policemen if it wished. Quotes from trustees and Pres. Ted C. Scanlon at recent board meetings that the board is willing to meet with the policemen as individuals, but cannot accept their association, indicate a meeting may be possible.

If the board deems not to recognize the association under that provision, all is still not lost for the CCPA.

Four bills currently before the Illinois Legislature in various stages of approval, could give the policemen a right to demand their organization be recognized.

Most likely of the four to pass are Senate Bill 18 and House Bill 778. The senate bill, which is currently under discussion in the house committee on industry and labor relations, has passed the Senate. It would prohibit strikes, provide for adjustment of grievances, and establish a certification procedure for employe organizations as representative organizations.

THAT BILL would provide for mediation and fact-finding to resolve disputes and create statewide advisory committees and boards.

HB778 has passed the House and is now awaiting Senate approval. It specifically grants public employe labor organizations the right to bargain collectively with public employers. It would create a state labor relations board to supervise labor elections for public employe labor organizations, and to hear complaints and investigate charges of unfair labor practices arising between public employers and employes.

Another bill which deals specifically with allowing collective bargaining between the policemen's designated bargaining unit and the policemen's employer remains in the House Committee on Municipalities.

The fourth bill, which had received a "do-pass" from the House Committee on Industry and Labor Relations contains essentially the same recommendations as SB 18.

Ostrow: Need Equal Respect for Each Other

by SANDRA BROWNING

Frank Ostrow is an unimposing man with friendly eyes and an easy smile

If you live in northern Arlington Heights, he and his wife and four children may be moving in next door to you this week

"Most people shy away from me because I am involved in something controversial," Ostrow said in an interview with the Herald

Ostrow's part-time interest is a group called the Remember the Pueblo Committee of the United States of which he is chairman In July, he started a group by that name in Kent, Washington. It has now grown to include committees across the nation Members recently changed the name to United States Pueblo Committee and plan to call it "US" for short.

WITH OSTROW MOVING into Arlington Heights, he will be the second man in the area who heads a Remember the Pueblo Committee The Rev Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, is chairman of the national "Remember the Pueblo" committee.

The two committees have similar names and were organized for similar reasons, but are separate groups which happened to spring up after the capture of the USS Pueblo by North Korea in January of 1968

Ostrow says he has talked with Lindstrom but the two groups will not unite forces. He said these two committees and other groups organized as a result of the Pueblo incident will operate separately but will work cooperatively

THE REASON OSTROW formed his committee in July was to mold national opinion and inform the news media about the inhuman treatment which the men of the Pueblo were receiving. He wanted to raise enough support to show politicians the strength of his cause, to create hope for the captured men and to not let the matter be forgotten.

Although the committee's name seems to imply its dedication to one purpose, Ostrow says the goals of the group were broader.

The World War II veteran says, "How many more men do we have to kill and how many more violations do there have to be before action is taken?"

The seizing of the Pueblo and the April EC-121 reconnaissance plane incident "showed we are no longer safe," he says

"Who is going to stand up for law?" the ex-Marine asks. He says the Abe Fortas incident was an example of high level nonresponsibility for law.

Ostrow says he feels the public has not been totally informed about the Pueblo investigation. He says senators are trying cident and there should be a Senate investigation. He says senators are trying to bury the incident but they should see i' .s too vital to international affairs to be forgotten.

"If our senators can't see that, we need new senators," Ostrow maintains "All we want to do is to obtain the facts so that each person can make his own decision "

Ostrow says the government has taken the commodity from people which officials are elected to preserve — time. "We need time to get the facts and become more informed," he states.

THE REASON OSTROW got involved in the committee was because "I got mad and I'm going to stay mad It may take 12 years — this is no short-range project "

Ostrow looks at himself as a "philosopher, I guess. My concern is how to motivate the broad segment of the middle." He things many Americans are in favor of the goals of his committee but they are afraid to speak up "I have no fear," he says

As a former newspaper man, Ostrow says he has "learned the position of sticking my neck out for those who were afraid to "

Ostrow says he has been called a communist and threatened with jail. Some persons refused to speak to him when he first became involved with the committee "I found later they would come up to tell me they were on my side," he says

THE BLOND-HAIRED Ostrow seems too quiet to be so involved in the nationwide committee. He seems at a loss to explain how his attempt to "do something" got so big.

"I'm a maverick and I know it," he says.

And he doesn't seem to mind it.

His answers are sometimes surprisingly simple, like when he says:

"What we need is to have equal respect for each other."

Frank Ostrow... "I'm a maverick and I know it."

Free Lance

Mary Dresser

Despite all the verbal licks I have used to drub teachers, I must admit they merit respect and sincere administration.

. . . Not the silly, fuzzy-headed losers who fudge their way through playpen "colleges" of education and emerge instant experts on what our children shall become

Not the old-time servers, mealy-mouthing concern for kids while counting up tenure and figuring how many days of sick leave they have accrued.

. Not administrators who have reached the pinacle of incompetence and pursue the innocuous until it becomes a religious creed, with the school board god and mediocrity their dogma.

Teaching has probably the same proportion of humbug as journalism.

It is too bad good teachers can't put bylines on their students.

IT'S TOO BAD Wheeling High power mechanics teacher Henry Dokes can't hang his byline on the boys who graduate from his class — boys who are proud of the craft they have learned from him.

It's too bad Donald Graham, principal of Sullivan School in Dist. 23, can't get a blyine for students who have graduated from science classe he conducted while a teacher at MacArthur Junior High.

Kids who were in Graham's classes have been pulling in science awards by the bushel basket at both Wheeling and Hersey high schools.

Too bad Harold Petersen of Hersey High can't byline the students he has directed in play productions this year. Petersen has badgered and cajoled a respect for excellence from the students.

ON THE ELEMENTARY school level, it's tough that Dorothy Ehrke, former principal of Ross School in Dist. 23, couldn't stamp her byline on all the tykes graduating from her kindergarten-through-second-grade classes.

Dorothy had the magnificent capacity to love just about every child in the school. She not only loved them, she worried about them, and on occasion could be more concerned about the child than his parents.

There are teachers like Graham and Dokes and Mrs. Ehrke in schools all over this area.

There are also bad teachers. Perhaps they should also have bylines so society could identify the results of their incompetence and sloth.

It is unfortunate that tenure perpetuates the bad teachers in the school systems.

I'd like to throw tenure out the window and make districts bid for good teachers as if they were star baseball players.

THE GOOD ONES ARE so valuable they should be making more money than Ernie Banks.

A little financial competition might also improve the performance of the bush league teachers.

I'd also like to suggest to the kids that on the last day of school, they wear their teacher's name pinned to their dresses or shirts.

If the teacher deserves a byline, give it to him or her.

Village Alerted for Tornado

Buffalo Grove residents were prepared for the touchdown of one of the many tornadoes reported in surrounding areas Wednesday night, but fortunately the preparations turned out to be unnecessary

Police Chief Harold Smith told the Herald that one citizen reported sighting a tornado southeast of the Cambridge subdivision about 8 50 p m. Smith was not sure if an actual funnel cloud existed or if the report was triggered by excessive winds above the ground.

IN ORDER TO cover areas of the town outside the range of the warning siren, police patroled the streets with loudspeakers warning residents of the tornado watch and telling homeowners to turn on radios.

The chief said one lady called the station Thursday morning to thank the police for their efforts.

Buffalo Grove has had some houses damaged by windstorms during other tornado alerts, but a twister never touched down in the village as far as Smith can remember.

By Thursday, all that was left of the storm was six inches of water on University Drive.

Schools Oppose Apartment Plan

School Dist 26 has taken a moderate stand in opposing the rezoning of a 5.2-acre site at River and Foundry roads east of Mount Prospect

If the rezoning request is granted, developers plan to construct two five-story apartment buildings with stores in the ground floor of one of them Also scheduled is a professional building and a building on the corner to be used, presumably by a franchise restaurant.

The Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals heard the rezoning request Monday. However, a decision on the request won't be made for at least three weeks.

The school district sent a letter to the zoning board opposing the project because, presently the school district is bonded to its legal limits The letter also pointed out the district now has additional children from Maryville Academy attending its schools

by ANNE SLAVICEK

A new problem has for a second time delayed Wheeling's 105-year-old community Church from its location next to the village hall.

Originally, moving of the church was delayed until an addition on the back of the building could be torn down.

The steeple is creating the newest problem, because, when the church is moved, the steeple will catch on the main power line in town.

Ron Ignatius, a member of the historical society in charge of getting the church moved, says the steeple will have to be removed before the church can be moved to Chamber of Commerce Park.

IGNATIUS SAID THAT while the electrical company would have disconnected the wires so the church could be moved, they would only do so at midnight Cutting the wires would have been an added expense for the slim funds already donated to move the church.

Ignatius says additional donations are needed to help pay for getting the church moved and restored. Individuals or organizations interested in preserving the church can send contributions to the historical society.

The original problem of getting the addition torn off was solved by Irv Maihach, a local contractor who came to the rescue

Maihach will now remove the old church's steeple before the move, so the electric lines can go undisturbed, says Ignatius.

Ignatius estimated Monday that the church could be moved sometime this week.

Curtain Rises Friday On Class Production

"Tish," a comedy-mystery by Alice Chadwicke, will be presented Friday by the fine arts production class at River Trails Junior High School.

The play will be presented at 8 p.m. in the school gymnasium. No admission will be charged.

The 32 students in the class have made their own costumes, props and sets as part of a special class project, and 13 of them will act in the production.

The play is being co-directed by River Trails teachers Fred Thayer and Mrs. Marcelyn Ratner

SAC Plane Missing

OMAHA, Neb — Strategic Air Command headquarters said yesterday an RC-135 reconnaissance aircraft with 19 persons aboard has been reported missing in the western Aleutian Islands.

SAC headquarters said the plane was attached to a wing based at Elelson AFB near Fairbanks, Alaska, and was on a routine flight to Eielson from Shemya, Alaska

Helicopter Crashes

PARIS — A U.S.-built helicopter crashed Thursday during a demonstration at the international air show, killing the British pilot in a disaster seen by tens of thousands of spectators.

The helicopter exploded in flight and plunged from an altitude of about 70 feet to the ground, about 500 yards from the huge crowd

Filibuster Is Flop

SPRINGFIELD — Black legislators in the House filibusterer unsuccessfully for more than two hours yesterday in an attempt to divert an appropriation bill and use part of the funds to train the unemployed for state jobs.

Negro legislators unsuceessfully tried to attach six amendments to the $37.1 million appropriation for the Department of Conservation.

A Red Choice Is OK

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State William P Rogers said yesterday the presence of some Communists in the South Vietnamese government would be acceptable to the United States if they were chosen in a free election.

Rogers said the U S. was not wedded to any government in Saigon, but only to the principle that the people there "should have the right by free choice to decide their future "

Road Program Passed

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday Governor Ogilvie's highway program, including a one-cent hike in the gasoline tax and increasing auto license fees.

Democrats spoke in opposition to one of the proposals for creating a highway authority to float $2 billion in bonds over the next 10 years for road repairs and construction. The license plate increase bill would hike the $8 to $12 category to $20 and the $18 to $20 category to $30

U.S. Jet Gunned Down

SAIGON — Anti-aircraft gunners around the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi shot down an unarmed U.S reconnaissance jet yesterday, and American fighter-bombers retaliated with the first announced attack on North Vietnam in six months

The two-man crew of the downed plane was rescued The U S command said results of the raid against the North Vietnamese gunners were not known

Breadbasket To Lobby

SPRINGFIELD – The Rev Jesse Jackson, head of Operation Breadbasket, yesterday said his organization will open an office in Springfield next week and hopes to organize a lobby in the legislature.

Jackson said the office will probably open next Wednesday "to organize a lobby to fight hunger in Illinois "

WATCH ON THE LINE. William B. Frazier stands on top of dam he built along part of his property line to stop Cambridgesstorm drainage water from washing across hill property. Though the dam resulted in a lawsuit against Frzier, he said he plans to build it higher.

It Rains, Then Floods

by ALAN AKERSON

In Chicago, lawyers are planning their tactics for the next pretrial meeting over the Cambridge drainage dispute.

On Jackson Drive, southeast of the Cambridge subdivision, residents await the results of these meetings, while they brace themselves for the next rain and the flooding that will come with it.

For one thing is certain on Jackson Drive: When it rains, it floods.

The street lies in an unincorporated area southeast of the subdivision, directly in the path of Cambridge storm sewer drainage. When a light rain hits, residents talk of a flood several inches deep lasting only a number of hours. With a heavy rain, the flood's severity is measured in feet and days.

Only 20 to 25 people live on the street. Most of the lots are at least an acre in size.

THE PEOPLE have banded together to form a semi-official group called the Jackson Drive Homeowners Association. Tuesday night the group outlined its dilemma to the Wheeling Township Board of Auditors, but was told the township could not legally help in any way.

Charles Hinze, who, with his wife, "Chick," operates a ceramics shop in his Jackson Drive home, is the group's spokesman.

He summed up the situation in two sentences: "When it rains, the water comes down from Cambridge and floods the ditches, street and some homes. Before Cambridge we had water, but it drained in a day; now it just stays."

"We were told (by the township) to get a lawyer and have him sit in on these pretrial meetings. But, heck, if they keep on continuing the case, it will drain us financially to hire a lawyer." (Most of the residents are paying off heavy mortgages.)

HINZE TOLD of a couple who moved into their house on Jackson Drive during a rainy day: "That night they had five inches of water in their kitchen."

The Hinzes have been luckier: "Once the water got as high as our front step," said Chick, "but it didn't get into the house."

The water, that time, was high enough that when Hinze tried to drive through it in his panel truck, he got only part of the way to his front gate before the water stopped him. He had to wade back to the house.

As part of their business, the Hinzes conduct evening ceramics classes. Last fall Hinze put in a gravel parking lot over the drainage ditch in front of his house. He is quick to point out that he placed a culvert in the ditch big enough to handle any drainage, before he put in the gravel.

"When it rains, though," he said, "the parking lot is under water. The floods really hurt our business."

The Wheeling Park Board presented the "package deal" swimming pool referendum in full to Wheeling citizens Wednesday night at Heritage Park, outlining what the recreation facility would cost the voter.

The $850,000 referendum includes the construction of a general purpose, instructional pool adjacent to Wheeling High School at Hintz Road and Route 83. In addition, the referendum allows for the purchase, renovation and remodeling of the existing community pool at Chamber of Commerce Park on Wolf Road.

The cost per homeowner of the June 14 referendum is eight cents per $100 of assessed valuation. In Cook County the assessed valuation is 40 to 50 per cent of the actual value of the home.

THAT IS, IF THE assessed valuation of a home is $10,000 the referendum increases the tax by $8, from $625 to $633.

A breakdown of the cost of the referendum is as follows:

—$600,000 is for the construction of the 75 by 45-foot pool in a three-level building connected to Wheeling High School by a corridor.

—$59,999 is the contingency on the price of the construction, allowing for rising costs.

—$1 is for the purchase of the land from School Dist. 214. The park district is leasing the land at token cost, because it is legally prohibited from making capital improvements on land it does not own.

—$160,000 is to purchase the existing community pool.

—$30,000 is for the improvements to the existing community pool and to Chamber of Commerce Park, where it is located.

TWO POLLING PLACES will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, June 14. Persons living west of the Soo Line tracks can vote at Jack London Junior High School, 1001 W. Dundee Road. Those living east of the tracks can vote in the Wheeling Park District Building in Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Road.

The proposed heated, indoor-outdoor pool, solely under the jurisdiction of the Wheeling Park District, will be leased by the high school district by the amount of time and space used.

It is estimated the school will use the facility 50 per cent of the time. Thus about $300,000, including the principal and interest, will be borne by the school district, which includes other communities.

The projected completion date for the proposed pool facility is next June, according to Ferd Arndt, superintendent of parks.

The pool will be in a multipurpose building directly in front of the high school fieldhouse and facing Route 83. The upper floor of the building will have seating facilities for 120 persons and a multi-use room which can be partitioned into quarters.

THE GROUND FLOOR will have locker space and shower facilities, and the lower floor will have a large multipurpose room.

The pool would have an admission price and memberships available It has not been decided whether a membership to the existing community pool could be used at both pools, said Mrs. Lorraine Lark, Wheeling Park Board president

Thomas Shirley, principal of Wheeling High School, pointed out that Arlington High School already has a similar swimming pool arrangement with its park board.

"We would like to assure our park board that we would use the entire facility," Shirley said. "The multipurpose rooms could be used for large instructional classes and for driver training. The weight-lifting and other exercise equipment that we would store in the facility would be for public use, also."

Shirley expressed the hope that the proposed swimming pool would draw more community members to the high school, where they can use all of the school facilities.

Improvements to the existing community pool and its surrounding park would include blacktopping the road adjacent to the Cameo Apartments. The present dirt road has been a source of annoyance for the apartment dwellers.

In addition to landscaping beautification, the present pool building will be covered, making it a year-round facility.

Couple to Describe Jungle Experiences

Experiences at a jungle camp in Mexico will be described Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. David Scherling at the 7 p.m. service of the Wheeling Evangelical Free Church, which meets at Carl Sandburg School, Schoenbeck Road.

The Scherlings are members of Wycliffe Bible Translators, a group which seeks to translate the Bible into foreign languages.

Slides of the Scherling's training in Mexico will also be shown.

CCPA: It's Legal

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Police unions are legal in Illinois, the Wheeling Chapter of the Cook County Police Association (CCPA) contends.

Sgt. Gene Wolf, chapter president, has taken issue with a statement by Wheeling Village Atty. Paul Hamer, saying the village board cannot legally deal with the association as a bargaining agent for the village's police force.

He points to Section 10-4-1 of the Illinois Municipal Code, which he says gives the village board the power to recognize the association.

That section of the code says, "The corporate authorities of any municipality may provide by ordinance in regard to the relation between all municipal officers and employes in resepct to each other, the municipality, and the people."

WOLF EXPLAINS that under that provision, the village board could recognize the association as a representative of the policemen if it wished. Quotes from trustees and Pres. Ted C. Scanlon at recent board meetings that the board is willing to meet with the policemen as individuals, but cannot accept their association, indicate a meeting may be possible.

If the board deems not to recognize the association under that provision, all is still not lost for the CCPA.

Four bills currently before the Illinois Legislature in various stages of approval, could give the policemen a right to demand their organization be recognized.

Most likely of the four to pass are Senate Bill 18 and House Bill 778. The senate bill, which is currently under discussion in the house committee on industry and labor relations, has passed the Senate It would prohibit strikes, provide for adjustment of grievances, and establish a certification procedure for employe organizations as representative organizations.

THAT BILL would provide for mediation and fact-finding to resolve disputes and create statewide advisory committees and boards

HB778 has passed the House and is now awaiting Senate approval. It specifically grants public employe labor organizations the right to bargain collectively with public employers. It would create a state labor relations board to supervise labor elections for public employe labor organizations, and to hear complaints and investigate charges of unfair labor practices arising between public employers and employes.

Another bill which deals specifically with allowing collective bargaining between the policemen's designated bargaining unit and the policemen's employer remains in the House Committee on Municipalities.

The fourth bill, which had received a "do-pass" from the House Committee on Industry and Labor Relations contains essentially the same recommendations as SB 18.

"All Power To The People"

In the past few days, the Black Panthers have leaped into the headlines in 96 point type as the FBI raided their headquarters in Chicago and in Denver. Who are they and what do they represent to our Northwest suburbs. Find out Monday in Paddock Publications in the first of a three-part series, "All Power to the People," by Writer James Vesely and Photographer Robert Finch.

Winter Work is Disappearing

(Copyright 1969 Paddock Publications Inc.)

During the next few weeks, migrant workers will be pouring into our Northwest suburbs, mostly from Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley. Who are these migrants? What is HOME to them? Today, in the third of a six-part series, Senior Staff Writer David Hoyt describes the migrant's jobs in the valley before he heads north.

The Seasonal Suburbanite

Story and Photos by David Hoyt

Whether he's a common farm laborer, a crew leader, a landscaper or a nursery worker, when it comes to making a living the Mexican American migrant is usually better off during his northern migration than he is at home in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The valley is home — true enough. The valley is where the family is. The climate there is nice in the winter.

But valley agriculture simply cannot absorb a winter labor force that harvests most of the rest of the nation during the summer.

Between 100,000 and 125,000 migrants leave the valley each summer — about a third of the total population — and when they return there are simply not enough jobs to go around, not enough jobs to offer a decent wage.

"We hit about 6 per cent unemployment in the valley in the winter," Richard Stolle of the Texas Employment Commission says. "That's including people who'd like to work but can't. They (the growers) can afford to offer low wages and still pick and choose who they hire."

GENERALLY THE migrant laborer has no other skills so he takes what work he can get and waits for the next migration.

The man who makes $1.70 an hour in Minnesota is lucky to get 90 cents an hour doing the same thing in the valley.

Stolle says $1.30 "is the federal standard minimum wage in agriculture," when he is asked about pay on the south Texas ranches.

It's a good answer. But it won't always wash, because much of the picking is done on a piece-work scale and what is made in pice-work depends on the pieces.

Onion topping can bring a man good money. If the onions are big and the earth is not too hard, a man might put up six sacks of onions an hour, letting him average $1.50 an hour; 25 cents a sack is the going rate.

But that usually can't be done The crews crawl along the rows, snipping frantically at onions not much bigger than

Ostrow: Need Equal Respect for Each Other

by SANDRA BROWNING

Frank Ostrow is an unimposing man with friendly eyes and an easy smile

If you live in northern Arlington Heights, he and his wife and four children may be moving in next door to you this week

"Most people shy away from me because I am involved in something controversial," Ostrow said in an interview with the Herald

Ostrow's part-time interest is a group called the Remember the Pueblo Committee of the United States of which he is chairman In July, he started a group by that name in Kent, Washington. It has now grown to include committees across the nation. Members recently changed the name to United States Pueblo Committee and plan to call it "US" for short.

WITH OSTROW MOVING into Arlington Heights, he will be the second man in the area who heads a Remember the Pueblo Committee. The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, is chairman of the national "Remember the Pueblo" committee

The two committees have similar names and were organized for similar reasons, but are separate groups which happened to spring up after the capture of the USS Pueblo by North Korea in January of 1968

Ostrow says he has talked with Lindstrom but the two groups will not unite forces. He said these two committees and other groups organized as a result of the Pueblo incident will operate separately but will work cooperatively.

THE REASON OSTROW formed his committee in July was to mold national opinion and inform the news media about the inhuman treatment which the men of the Pueblo were receiving. He wanted to raise enough support to show politicians the strength of his cause, to create hope for the captured men and to not let the matter be forgotten.

Although the committee's name seems to imply its dedication to one purpose, Ostrow says the goals of the group were broader

The World War II veteran says, "How many more men do we have to kill and how many more violations do there have to be before action is taken?"

The seizing of the Pueblo and the April EC-121 reconnaissance plane incident "showed we are no longer safe," he says

"Who is going to stand up for law?" the ex-Marine asks. He says the Abe Fortas incident was an example of high level nonresponsibility for law.

Ostrow says he feels the public has not been totally informed about the Pueblo investigation. He says senators are trying to bury the incident but they should see it is too vital to international affairs to be forgotten.

"If our senators can't see that, we need new senators," Ostrow maintains. "All we want to do is to obtain the facts so that each person can make his own decision."

Ostrow says the government has taken the commodity from people which officials are elected to preserve — time. "We need time to get the facts and become more informed," he states.

THE REASON OSTROW got involved in the committee was because "I got mad and I'm going to stay mad. It may take 12 years — this is no short-range project."

Ostrow looks at himself as a "philosopher, I guess. My concern is how to motivate the broad segment of the middle."

He things many Americans are in favor of the goals of his committee but they are afraid to speak up "I have no fear," he says

As a former newspaper man, Ostrow says he has "learned the positive of sticking my neck out for those who were afraid to"

Ostrow says he has been called a communist and threatened with jail. Some persons refused to speak to him when he first became involved with the committee "I found later they would come up to tell me they were on my side," he says

THE BLOND-HAIRED Ostrow seems too quiet to be so involved in the nation wide committee. He seems at a loss to explain how his attempt to "do something" got so big.

"I'm a maverick and I know it," he says

And he doesn't seem to mind it

His answers are sometimes surprisingly simple, like when he says:

"What we need is to have equal respect for each other."

Frank Ostrow... "I'm a maverick and I know it."

Free Lance

Despite all the verbal licks I have used to drub teachers, I must admit they merit respect and sincere administration.

. . . Not the silly, fuzzy-headed losers who fudge their way through playpen "colleges" of education and emerge instant experts on what our children shall become

. Not the old-time servers, mealy-mouthing concern for kids while counting up tenure and figuring how many days of sick leave they have accrued.

Not administrators who have reached the pinacle of incompetence and pursue the innocuous until it becomes a religious creed, with the school board god and mediocrity their dogma.

Teaching has probably the same proportion of humbug as journalism.

It is too bad good teachers can't put bylines on their students.

IT'S TOO BAD Wheeling High power mechanics teacher Henry Dokes can't hang his byline on the boys who graduate from his class — boys who are proud of the craft they have learned from him.

It's too bad Donald Graham, principal of Sullivan School in Dist. 23, can't get a byline for students who have graduated from science classe he conducted while a teacher at MacArthur Junior High.

Kids who were in Graham's classes have been pulling in science awards by the bushel basket at both Wheeling and Hersey high schools.

Too bad Harold Petersen of Hersey High can't byline the students he has directed in play productions this year. Petersen has badgered and cajoled a respect for excellence from the students.

ON THE ELEMENTARY school level, it's tough that Dorothy Ehrke, former principal of Ross School in Dist. 23, couldn't stamp her byline on all the tykes graduating from her kindergarten-through-second-grade classes.

Dorothy had the magnificent capacity to love just about every child in the school. She not only loved them, she worried about them, and on occasion could be more concerned about the child than his parents.

There are teachers like Graham and Dokes and Mrs. Ehrke in schools all over this area.

There are also bad teachers. Perhaps they should also have bylines so society could identify the results of their incompetence and sloth.

It is unfortunate that tenure perpetuates the bad teachers in the school systems.

I'd like to throw tenure out the window and make districts bid for good teachers as if they were star baseball players.

THE GOOD ONES ARE so valuable they should be making more money than Ernie Banks.

A little financial competition might also improve the performance of the bush league teachers.

I'd also like to suggest to the kids that on the last day of school, they wear their teacher's name pinned to their dresses or shirts.

If the teacher deserves a byline, give it to him or her.

Village Alerted for Tornado

Buffalo Grove residents were prepared for the touchdown of one of the many tornadoes reported in surrounding areas Wednesday night, but fortunately the preparations turned out to be unnecessary

Police Chief Harold Smith told the Herald that one citizen reported sighting a tornado southeast of the Cambridge subdivision about 8:50 p.m. Smith was not sure if an actual funnel cloud existed or if the report was triggered by excessive winds above the ground.

IN ORDER TO cover areas of the town outside the range of the warning siren, police patroled the streets with loudspeakers warning residents of the tornado watch and telling homeowners to turn on radios.

The chief said one lady called the station Thursday morning to thank the police for their efforts.

Buffalo Grove has had some houses damaged by windstorms during other tornado alerts, but a twister never touched down in the village as far as Smith can remember.

By Thursday, all that was left of the storm was six inches of water on University Drive.

Schools Oppose Apartment Plan

School Dist 26 has taken a moderate stand in opposing the rezoning of a 5.2-acre site at River and Foundry roads east of Mount Prospect

If the rezoning request is granted, developers plan to construct two five-story apartment buildings with stores in the ground floor of one of them Also scheduled is a professional building and a building on the corner to be used, presumably by a franchise restaurant.

The Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals heard the rezoning request Monday. However, a decision on the request won't be made for at least three weeks

The school district sent a letter to the zoning board opposing the project because, presently the school district is bonded to its legal limits. The letter also pointed out the district now has additional children from Maryville Academy attending its schools

by ANNE SLAVICEK

A new problem has for a second time delayed Wheeling's 105-year-old community Church from its location next to the village hall.

Originally, moving of the church was delayed until an addition on the back of the building could be torn down.

The steeple is creating the newest problem, because, when the church is moved, the steeple will catch on the main power line in town.

Ron Ignatius, a member of the historical society in charge of getting the church moved, says the steeple will have to be removed before the church can be moved to Chamber of Commerce Park.

IGNATIUS SAID THAT while the electrical company would have disconnected the wires so the church could be moved, they would only do so at midnight. Cutting the wires would have been an added expense for the slim funds already donated to move the church.

Ignatius says additional donations are needed to help pay for getting the church moved and restored. Individuals or organizations interested in preserving the church can send contributions to the historical society.

The original problem of getting the addition torn off was solved by Irv Maihach, a local contractor who came to the rescue.

Maihach will now remove the old church's steeple before the move, so the electric lines can go undisturbed, says Ignatius.

Ignatius estimated Monday that the church could be moved sometime this week.

Curtain Rises Friday On Class Production

"Tish," a comedy-mystery by Alice Chadwicke, will be presented Friday by the fine arts production class at River Trails Junior High School.

The play will be presented at 8 p.m. in the school gymnasium. No admission will be charged.

The 32 students in the class have made their own costumes, props and sets as part of a special class project, and 13 of them will act in the production.

The play is being co-directed by River Trails teachers Fred Thayer and Mrs. Marcelyn Ratner.

Sees School Aid D-Day

by MARY SCHLOTT

This weekend apparently is the time when the greatest citizen pressure for increased state school aid must be mustered.

State Sen. John A. Graham of the Third District said next Thursday may be D-Day for state school aid.

Graham, in a pivotal position on a Senate task force evaluating the state's needs for higher education and the common schools, said he thinks the level of state aid may be decided by the end of next week.

He is doubtful that Gov. Richard Ogilvie's $520 state aid recommendation will survive that hurdle.

PROPOSALS TO go higher than that, to $550, are "in real trouble," Graham told the Herald Thursday.

Graham said flatly, however, that he is confident that the state aid per pupil won't go below $500, though it "may be the ultimate decision."

Talk in the Senate, he said, indicates that many legislators would like to hold to $520 — or something close — but change the state aid formula in a way that will give the schools less, but won't be so conspicuous.

They could do it in a couple of ways — by changing the way the state figures the number of students a school district can draw state aid for or by changing the "qualifying rate," the effort-level tax a school district must levy to get state aid.

No Illinois school district will get the full $520 foundation level per pupil if the Ogilvie proposal goes through. The state aid formula doesn't work that way.

THE STATE GIVES a school district the difference between the foundation level and what the district can raise per pupil by levying the qualifying rate tax on its total taxable property.

Currently the state foundation level is $400, with a qualifying tax rate of 84 cents per $100 assessed evaluation, with the paying schools on the basis of average daily attendance, not total enrollment, and allowing high school enrollment to be increased 15 per cent because it costs more to educate high school students.

Ogilvie is recommending a $520 foundation level, a qualifying rate of 90 cents per $100 assessed valuation, with the state paying on the basis of average daily membership instead of attendance, and with high school attendance figured at 1.25 the number of students.

Graham said much of the talk in the payout by setting a $520 foundation aid level — or something near — but going to a $1.08 qualifying rate instead of 90 cents.

THE CHANGE would mean local schools would get substantially less aid than they would at a 90-cent "effort level" qualifiyng rate.

Graham, whose current work on the tax Senate is to cut the state's total task force calls for analysis of the state's higher education spending needs, has been burrowing away at reams of paper work in a room with close to 20 auditors.

He eventually will help decide whether the junior college's state aid level is increased from $11.50 per credit hour to $15.50, as the Illinois Board of Higher Education recommends, or to just $13.50 per credit hour — a recommendation of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce. The decision on that lies several days away as well.

The auditors, Graham said, will help the Senate make a "realistic appraisal" of the state's spending needs.

"We are trying to use the fine knife of surgery to do a delicate job of pruning when it needs to be done," Graham said "Even in higher education we are not planning to wield a broadaxe in cutting programs."

SAC Plane Missing

OMAHA, Neb. — Strategic Air Command headquarters said yesterday an RC-135 reconnaissance aircraft with 19 persons aboard has been reported missing in the western Aleutian Islands.

SAC headquarters said the plane was attached to a wing based at Eielson AFB near Fairbanks, Alaska, and was on a routine flight to Eielson from Shemya, Alaska.

Helicopter Crashes

PARIS — A U.S.-built helicopter crashed Thursday during a demonstration at the international air show, killing the British pilot in a disaster seen by tens of thousands of spectators.

The helicopter exploded in flight and plunged from an altitude of about 70 feet to the ground, about 500 yards from the huge crowd.

Filibuster Is Flop

SPRINGFIELD — Black legislators in the House filibusterer unsuccessfully for more than two hours yesterday in an attempt to divert an appropriation bill and use part of the funds to train the unemployed for state jobs.

Negro legislators unsucceessfully tried to attach six amendments to the $37.1 million appropriation for the Department of Conservation.

A Red Choice Is OK

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said yesterday the presence of some Communists in the South Vietnamese government would be acceptable to the United States if they were chosen in a free election

Rogers said the U.S. was not wedded to any government in Saigon, but only to the principle that the people there "should have the right by free choice to decide their future."

Road Program Passed

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday Governor Ogilvie's highway program, including a one-cent hike in the gasoline tax and increasing auto license fees.

Democrats spoke in opposition to one of the proposals for creating a highway authority to float $2 billion in bonds over the next 10 years for road repairs and construction. The license plate increase bill would hike the $8 to $12 category to $20 and the $18 to $20 category to $30

U.S. Jet Gunned Down

SAIGON — Anti-aircraft gunners around the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi shot down an unarmed U.S. reconnaissance jet yesterday, and American fighter bombers retaliated with the first announced attack on North Vietnam in six months

The two-man crew of the downed plane was rescued. The U.S. command said results of the raid against the North Vietnamese gunners were not known

Breadbasket To Lobby

SPRINGFIELD — The Rev. Jesse Jackson, head of Operation Breadbasket, yesterday said his organization will open an office in Springfield next week and hopes to organize a lobby in the legislature.

Jackson said the office will probably open next Wednesday "to organize a lobby to fight hunger in Illinois."

THE WEEKEND IS here, and this scene — long lines of cars — will be repeated Saturday and Sunday at the Palatine dump on Smith Road. The land fill area is open only on Saturdays and Sundays, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Only cars displaying a Palatine Village sticker are allowed to use the dump.

Summer Activities for Young, Old

by MARIANNE BRETSNYDER

The Salt Creek Rural Park District has provided summer activities for vacationing children and adults seeking ways to use leisure time

Supervised playgrounds are being offered at the Stephen M. Rose, South and Winston parks for youngsters age 5 and up. Activities at Stephen M. Rose Park will be held daily. South Park will have a Monday afternoon program, and Winston Park will have a Friday afternoon program.

The playgrounds will be open from June 23 to August 20.

Pre-schoolers 3, 4 and 5-years-old, will have a supervised daily program at Stephen M. Rose Park beginning June 23.

Beginning bowlers can attend four sessions at Beverly Lanes in Arlington Heights, starting July 9.

A BEGINNING recorder class for boys and girls ages 8 to 14 will be held three times a week at Stephen M. Rose Park, beginning June 23.

A "charm course" in social graces, visual poise, wardrobe and diet will be conducted by a registered model at Stephen M. Rose Park daily for one week.

This course for young ladies in grades 7-10 will begin June 23.

Horseback riding lessons for beginners, available through the Palatine Park District, will be given at Palington Stables. Vic Locascio at Stephen M. Rose Park will arrange the sessions.

Young people in grades 5-12 can take the American Asso. of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation Youth Fitness test this summer.

The battery of seven tests measure over-all youth fitness based on national norms. Each child will be given a profile record.

The tests will start July 1 at Stephen M. Rose Park, and will last as long as necessary to complete.

SIX ARTS AND CRAFTS sessions starting June 23 at Stephen M. Rose Park will be conducted for boys and girls in grades 1-6.

Women's volleyball will be offered Tuesday nights beginning June 24 at Stephen M. Rose Park.

South Park has available a men's softball program Thursday nights, beginning June 26.

The Park District is also sponsoring a horseshoe tourney for men starting June 24 as well as trips to Cubs ball games and other places to be announced.

Registration and payment of fees can be made at Stephen M. Rose Park Building during the week of June 16-23 from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.

Winter Work is Disappearing

(Copyright 1969 Paddock Publications Inc.)

During the next few weeks, migrant workers will be pouring into our Northwest suburbs, mostly from Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley. Who are these migrants? What is HOME to them? Today, in the third of a six-part series, Senior Staff Writer David Hoyt describes the migrant's jobs in the valley before he heads north.

The Seasonal Suburbanite

Story and Photos by David Hoyt

Whether he's a common farm laborer, a crew leader, a landscaper or a nursery worker, when it comes to making a living the Mexican American migrant is usually better off during his northern migration than he is at home in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The valley is home — true enough. The valley is where the family is. The climate there is nice in the winter.

But valley agriculture simply cannot absorb a winter labor force that harvests most of the rest of the nation during the summer.

Between 100,000 and 125,000 migrants leave the valley each summer — about a third of the total population — and when they return there are simply not enough jobs to go around, not enough jobs to offer a decent wage.

"We hit about 6 per cent unemployment in the valley in the winter," Richard Stolle of the Texas Employment Commission says. "That's including people who'd like to work but can't. They (the growers) can afford to offer low wages and still pick and choose who they hire."

GENERALLY THE migrant laborer has no other skills so he takes what work he can get and waits for the next migration.

The man who makes $1.70 an hour in Minnesota is lucky to get 90 cents an hour doing the same thing in the valley.

Stolle says $1.30 "is the federal standard minimum wage in agriculture," when he is asked about pay on the south Texas ranches.

It's a good answer. But it won't always wash, because much of the picking is done on a piece-work scale and what is made in pice-work depends on the pieces.

Onion topping can bring a man good money. If the onions are big and the earth is not too hard, a man might put up six sacks of onions an hour, letting him average $1.50 an hour; 25 cents a sack is the going rate.

But that usually can't be done. The crews crawl along the rows, snipping frantically at onions not much bigger than

Aid Action Is Key

Next week's action in Springfield, expected to raise the amount of state aid to schools, could resolve the current dispute between Dist. 15 teachers and the board of education.

Unwilling to accept next year's salary schedule already adopted by the school board, the local Educators Assn. (EA) believes their demands can be met if an increase in state aid to $550 per pupil is approved by the general assembly. If state aid is not raised to $550, the group will ask the school board to call a referendum for a tax rate increase in the educational fund.

Teachers want a 4.5 per cent yearly increment included in the 1969-70 salary schedule. In a 6 to 1 vote, they rejected the board's salary schedule providing a 3.5 increment.

However, the school board told teachers that reconsideration would be given to next year's salary schedule, if a large enough state aid increase is approved.

The EA has requested a spot on the agenda of Wednesday's board meeting in order to seek recognition as a negotiating agent for Dist. 14 teachers.

In the meantime, all tenure teachers (those entering their third year of teaching in the district) have been asked not to return contracts for next year until a new salary schedule is adopted. The 1969-70 salary agreement unanimously approved by the board in May provides for a beginning salary of $7,000.

Agreeable to the starting salary, the EA is primarily concerned with proposed steps in the schedule which do not provide a substantial annual raise to keep experienced teachers, according to George Yingst, chairman of the teacher's salary committee.

"All Power To The People"

In the past few days, the Black Panthers have leaped into the headlines in 96 point type as the FBI raided their headquarters in Chicago and in Denver. Who are they and what do they represent to our Northwest suburbs. Find out Monday in Paddock Publications in the first of a three-part series, "All Power to the People," by Writer James Vesely and Photographer Robert Finch.

Ostrow: Need Equal Respect for Each Other

by SANDRA BROWNING

Frank Ostrow is an unimposing man with friendly eyes and an easy smile.

If you live in northern Arlington Heights he and his wife and four children may be moving in next door to you this week.

"Most people shy away from me because I am involved in something controversial," Ostrow said in an interview with the Herald.

Ostrow's part-time interest is a group called Remember the Pueblo Committee of the United States of which he is chairman. In July, he started a group by that name in Kent, Washington. It has now grown to include committees across the nation. Members recently changed the name to United States Pueblo Committee and plan to call it "US" for short.

WITH OSTROW MOVING into Arlington Heights, he will be the second man in the area who heads a Remember the Pueblo Committee. The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, is chairman of the national "Remember the Pueblo" committee.

The two committees have similar names and were organized for similar reasons, but are separate groups which happened to spring up after the capture of the USS Pueblo by North Korea in January of 1968.

Ostrow says he has talked with Lindstrom but the two groups will not unite forces. He said these two committees and other groups organized as a result of the Pueblo incident will operate separately but will work cooperatively.

THE REASON OSTROW formed his committee in July was to mold national opinion and inform the news media about the inhuman treatment which the men of the Pueblo were receiving. He wanted to raise enough support to show politicians the strength of his cause, to create hope for the captured men and to not let the matter be forgotten.

Although the committee's name seems to imply its dedication to one purpose, Ostrow says the goals of the group were broader.

The World War II veteran says, "How many more men do we have to kill and how many more violations do there have to be before action is taken?"

The seizing of the Pueblo and the April EC-121 reconnaissance plane incident "showed we are no longer safe," he says.

"Who is going to stand up for law?" the ex-Marine asks. He says the Abe Fortas incident was an example of high level nonresponsibility for law.

Ostrow says he feels the public has not been totally informed about the Pueblo investigation. He says senators are trying to bury the incident but they should see it is too vital to international affairs to be forgotten.

"If our senators can't see that, we need new senators," Ostrow maintains. "All we want to do is to obtain the facts so that each person can make his own decision."

Ostrow says the government has taken the commodity from people which officials are elected to preserve — time. "We need time to get the facts and become more informed," he states.

THE REASON OSTROW got involved in the committee was because "I got mad and I'm going to stay mad. It may take 12 years — this is no short-range project."

Ostrow looks at himself as a "philosopher, I guess. My concern is how to motivate the broad segment of the middle." He things many Americans are in favor of the goals of his committee but they are afraid to speak up. "I have no fear," he says.

As a former newspaper man, Ostrow says he has "learned the position of sticking my neck out for those who were afraid to."

Ostrow says he has been called a communist and threatened with jail. Some persons refused to speak to him when he first became involved with the committee. "I found later they would come up to tell me they were on my side," he says.

THE BLOND-HAIRED Ostrow seems too quiet to be so involved in the nationwide committee. He seems at a loss to explain how his attempt to "do something" got so big.

"I'm a maverick and I know it," he says.

And he doesn't seem to mind it.

His answers are sometimes surprisingly simple, like when he says:

"What we need is to have equal respect for each other."

Frank Ostrow... "I'm a maverick and I know it."

A Herald Editorial

Help The Joint

The reaction of many Palatine Township residents to the proposal last year that $100,000 be raised to develop a teen center probably was "I'll believe it when I see it."

At least that's the way the fund-raising effort went for some time. Residents of Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Inverness didn't see it, so they didn't believe it.

But that didn't stop the teens who knew that they needed some kind of recreational facility and that they would have to get it themselves.

THE YOUNG people, who are students at five high schools (Palatine, Forest View, Fremd, Sacred Heart and St. Viator) were not content to let their plans fall short of the goal.

They, and a handful of adults who saw the value of the effort, launched a massive fund campaign that moved the teen center goal from the "impossible" category into the "successful, but barely, and still needing help" category.

And that's where it is today, the eve of the "Jog for the Joint."

The teens have purchased the desired property — the former LeVade Ranch on Smith Road, northwest of Palatine proper — but they still need funds to remodel it and convert it into The Joint, a center for this area's teens.

THEIR PARENTS should know well that there are few, if any, other places for the teens to go.

Tomorrow, more than 1,000 teens will sweep through Palatine, Inverness and Rolling Meadows in an attempt to raise the remaining funds.

They want to do it now, because they want The Joint to open this summer.

They are not asking for donations. They are trying to sell $25 bonds which they will repay in 12 years. In other words, they are asking for a loan to help the teens in Palatine Township.

We urge residents of the community to be generous with the teens.

The young people who are doing the work now will not reap all the benefits of The Joint; they're working for the future.

If the teens can do it, the adults certainly can too.

Marines To Honor Late Hero

At a June 14 Marine parade and open house, Mr. and Mrs. Otto W. Arnold of Palatine will accept decorations awarded posthumously to their late son Marine David B. Arnold, for action in Viet Nam.

The decorations will be awarded during the parade ceremony held by Staff Non-Commissioned Officers of the Marine Air Reserve Training Detachment at Glenview Naval Air Station.

The parade and observation of some of the various aircraft and weapons used by the Marine Corps will be held from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. It is open to the public.

Members of the 12th U.S. Army Special Forces Group from Oak Park will demonstrate military uses of a helicopter.

A ten minute precision drill exhibition will be presented by the 4th Marine Aircraft Wing Drum and Bugle Team.

An air show will include a high speed fly over by a single A4 Skyhawk using the "buddy system."

Concluding the air show will be a formation fly over by four H34 helicopters and four A4 Skyhawks.

Hit Chamber Aid Proposal

An Illinois State Chamber proposal that the legislature back off from a state aid increase badly needed by Harper Junior College and the College of DuPage was sharply criticized today by a state junior college association official.

James Broman, executive director of the Illinois Association of Community and Junior Colleges, issued a statement expressing "deep concern" at the state chamber's recommendation that state aid go up only $2 per credit hour instead of the $4 raise to $15.50 recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE).

He said the state's business and industry stands to lose if the Illinois junior colleges don't get adequate funding.

BROMAN, LEGISLATIVE spokesman for the state junior college association to which Harper and the College of DuPage both belong, said the chamber suggestion that $7.1 million be trimmed from the state's budget by not giving as much to the junior colleges was "a shock, especially since the chamber of commerce was instrumental in creating the junior college system."

Broman said business and industry throughout the state will be hurt if the full $15.50 per credit hour aid level is not approved.

He said that local junior colleges need the state aid increase and a lower level would mean curtailment of expensive "occupational programs so vital to the economy" or increase in local property taxes to compensate for the state aid the junior colleges don't receive.

THE STATE chamber statement last week said its recommendation that state aid be increased only from $11.50 — this year's level, to $13.50 gibed with recommendations of the Illinois Junior College Board.

Broman said this is not so. He noted that the Illinois Junior College Board had originally recommended junior college state aid be increased from $11.50 to $17.

FINAL EXAMS and graduation faced ducted in evening shifts all week at Harper Junior College students this Forest View and Elk Grove high week. Two-hour exams were con- schools.

Muller Elected New Trustee of College

Wilfred Muller of Palatine has been elected to the board of trustees of Eureka College.

A 1932 graduate of the Illinois liberal arts college, Muller was one of four new trustees elected May 31.

The new board member is assistant treasurer of Field Enterprises, secretary and treasurer of Three World, Inc., and served 17 years on the Palatine Unit School District board.

Gustafson To Receive His Master's Degree

James G. Gustafson of Palatine will receive his master's degree from Northern Illinois University next week.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gustafson, 419 S. Hale St., he will begin teaching data processing and computing at Wisconsin State University in Whitewater in September.

Gustafson received his bachelor's degree from the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana.

Plan Jog for the Joint

A "Jog for the Joint" Saturday will seek to raise the balance of funds needed to complete the Palatine Township Youth Organization (PTYO) teen center.

Joggers will begin at the Joint, the former Levade Ranch at Smith Road and Northwest Highway, proceed to Inverness and the unincorporated areas, continue to Palatine and Winston Park, and finish the march in Rolling Meadows.

Teens will sell bonds and accept donations along their routes to raise the remaining funds to renovate the old barn and recreation room into a coffeehouse and dance area for Palatine and Rolling Meadows youth.

THEY WILL SELL 12-year, non-interest bonds door-to-door. So far, $60,000 of the $100,000 goal has been raised.

The bond drive will end with a dance-concert at Sacred Heart of Mary High School Auditorium in Rolling Meadows. Performing at the dance will be "The Mercy" and Joe Kelly Blues Band.

Assorted Artifacts

The California Indian Museum in Sacramento contains artifacts from all cultures native to the state.

Drive Starts On Tornado Information

A drive to inform Rolling Meadows residents of proper precautions to take in event of tornadoes will begin at city hall Saturday at 11 a.m.

A joint project of the Rolling Meadows Civil Defense, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, the three groups will deliver a copy of the booklet, "In Time of Emergency," to every home in the city.

ROLLING MEADOWS does not, at present, have a city-wide siren warning installation, this is being worked on, however, and it is hoped that next year the project will be completed, according to Carmen Vinezeano, deputy director of Rolling Meadows Civil Defense.

The booklet and attached letter will explain what steps should be taken if Rolling Meadows is threatened with a tornado.

Library Defers Expansion

A plan that would answer the Rolling Meadows Public Library patron's high demand for popular fiction and nonfiction books, was adopted by the library board Tuesday night.

The McNaughton Plan allows libraries to offer new books without delay to members of the plan. Books are made available on the day they are published.

This is accomplished at a minimal cost to the library because the plan eliminates out-right purchase of current fiction and non-fiction.

McNaughton's flexible service supplies multiple copies of popular current tiels without the burden of adding them to permanent collections.

Those titles which prove to be of a lasting value may be purchased in lieu of return at 75 per cent off list price.

BOOKS ARE delivered completely processed and ready for circulation, thus avoiding the delay and expense of handling at the library.

It costs a library $1.75 to process a book.

A permanent inventory level is established, forming a revolving collection kept current by the addition and withdrawal of one-tenth of the books each month.

The return of books no longer in demand means a saving of both space and the cost of maintaining them on the library's shelves.

Virginia Connell, Rolling Meadows librarian, said the plan would cost $107.50 per month, adding that the library budget of $11,000 now makes it possible to include this plan.

A permanent inventory of 250 books could be obtained initially, with selections to be made by the library from current backlists of fiction and non-fiction supplied by McNaughton.

The library is entitled to as many copies of any title thereafter, and every 30 days will receive an additional 25 books.

Under this plan, new books will total 300 per year at a total cost per month of $107.50.

"On a month-to-month basis, studies show that there are not more than five titles that are in demand and three copies of each can be ordered," Miss Connell said. "The remaining 10 books can be ordered on a one-to-one basis."

The first seven months allows the library to build up a collection without any return. But beginning with the eighth month, 25 books a month must be returned. These books, however, are of the library's choice.

THE BOOKS arrive fully processed and aid in cutting library costs. They can be kept in a permanent collection and at the end of the year, if the library decides to purchase a book, it can do so at 75 per cent off the list cost.

In this way, a library can build up a back-log of needed books.

It is estimated that this plan can save the library about $1,200 a year.

With the McNaughton Plan, the librarian can contract to lease any number of already processed copies during the period of the book's high demand and gradually return the excess copies to the source of supply as the demand diminishes, eventually keeping only the one or two copies really needed for the stacks.

This plan is already in use at libraries in Palatine, Melrose Park, Oak Lawn and Morton Grove.

Wittig Leaves Bible Church

After serving 17 years as pastor of the Palatine Bible Church, the Rev. Emil C. Wittig delivered his farewell message Sunday before leaving for South Carolina.

His morning sermon was entitled "Paul's Farewell Charges To Timothy," and at the evening service, the Lord's Supper was observed.

"TO ALL OF OUR friends we say goodbye and God bless each of you. You are always welcome to visit us when you are down in Sumter. Our address will be 21 Rowland Ave., Sumter," Reverend Wittig said.

The Wittigs have three sons, Stephen, 15, David, 13, and Donald, 11.

SOME PALATINE APPRECIATION KITS were distributed to children at the Phong Dinh Province Orphanage in Viet Nam, but there are some boxes still in Palatine not to be sent until postage money is donated.

Postage Still Due

by MARTHA KOPER

It wasn't easy for the Palatine Girl Scouts to fill almost 100 boxes with needed items for orphans in Vietnam.

Taking charge of this year's PAK (Palatine Appreciation Kits) project, the girls began in January to collect clothing and toys for children staying in Vietnamese orphanages.

Residents responded by donating items, but an unexpected obstacle sprang in the way of completing the goodwill project. Now the scouts are beginning to wonder if all their efforts have been wasted.

Local organizations and individuals have not donated enough money to cover the cost of postage to send the packages overseas.

There still are about 20 boxes in Palatine ready to be shipped, but no money to pay postage. Each box costs between $3.50 and $4 to send.

About 70 PAK's already have been distributed to orphanages throughout Vietnam. But only a small portion of the postage money came from Palatine.

From a short story in a Chicago newspaper, a total of $120 was sent to local scouts from Chicago citizens, according to Mrs. Lawrence Burtis, chairman of the project.

Ironically, several Palatine service clubs including the Lion's and Kiwanis already have been given credit for providing postage money in a letter sent to all USO stations in Vietnam.

Mrs. Burtis has sent two letters, the first one in early April, to local groups asking for their support, but only a few have responded.

In the meantime, large boxes filled with shoes, socks, baby clothes, coloring books, crayons, soap and other children's items are being stored in Palatine when they could be bringing comfort and happiness to orphans of Vietnam.

DAMP For Water Bill

Members of the Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine Water Commission (DAMP) have gone on record in support of a bill aimed at protecting lake water.

The members of the local body agreed to support Senate Bill 1126, introduced by five senators to implement a decree of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Under the proposed legislation, the state, its municipalities and political subdivisions are prevented from diverting any water from Lake Michigan or its watershed in excess of 3,200 cubic feet per second.

THE BILL ALSO establishes basic criteria for the control and allocation of diverted water and allocates $35,000 for enforcement.

Members of the commission expressed some hesitancy over supporting the measure, saying the enforcement of the bill may be regulated to an agency other than the Illinois Division of Waterways. After discussion, however, the commission voted unanimously to endorse SB 1126.

S.AC Plane Missing

OMAHA, Neb — Strategic Air Command headquarters said yesterday an RC-135 reconnaissance aircraft with 19 persons aboard has been reported missing in the western Aleutian Islands.

SAC headquarters said the plane was attached to a wing based at Eielson AFB near Fairbanks, Alaska, and was on a routine flight to Eielson from Shemya, Alaska

Helicopter Crashes

PARIS — A U.S.-built helicopter crashed Thursday during a demonstration at the international air show, killing the British pilot in a disaster seen by tens of thousands of spectators.

The helicopter exploded in flight and plunged from an altitude of about 70 feet to the ground, about 500 yards from the huge crowd.

Filibuster Is Flop

SPRINGFIELD — Black legislators in the House filibusterer unsuccessfully for more than two hours yesterday in an attempt to divert an appropriation bill and use part of the funds to train the unemployed for state jobs.

Negro legislators unsuccessfully tried to attach six amendments to the $37.1 million appropriation for the Department of Conservation.

A Red Choice Is OK

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said yesterday the presence of some Communists in the South Vietnamese government would be acceptable to the United States if they were chosen in a free election.

Rogers said the U.S. was not wedded to any government in Saigon, but only to the principle that the people there "should have the right by free choice to decide their future."

Road Program Passed

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday Governor Ogilvie's highway program, including a one-cent hike in the gasoline tax and increasing auto license fees.

Democrats spoke in opposition to one of the proposals for creating a highway authority to float $2 billion in bonds over the next 10 years for road repairs and construction. The license plate increase bill would hike the $8 to $12 category to $20 and the $18 to $20 category to $30.

U.S. Jet Gunned Down

SAIGON — Anti-aircraft gunners around the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi shot down an unarmed U.S. reconnaissance jet yesterday, and American fighter-bombers retaliated with the first announced attack on North Vietnam in six months.

The two-man crew of the downed plane was rescued. The U.S. command said results of the raid against the North Vietnamese gunners were not known.

Breadbasket To Lobby

SPRINGFIELD — The Rev. Jesse Jackson, head of Operation Breadbasket, yesterday said his organization will open an office in Springfield next week and hopes to organize a lobby in the legislature.

Jackson said the office will probably open next Wednesday "to organize a lobby to fight hunger in Illinois."

LOFTY VIEW OF Rolling Meadows was provided yesterday to this workman who was painting the city's south side water tower on Central Road, near the public works department garage.

by MARY SCHLOTT

This weekend apparently is the time when the greatest citizen pressure for increased state school aid must be mustered.

State Sen. John A. Graham of the Third District said next Thursday may be D-Day for state school aid.

Graham, in a pivotal position on a Senate task force evaluating the state's needs for higher education and the common schools, said he thinks the level of state aid may be decided by the end of next week.

He is doubtful that Gov. Richard Ogilvie's $520 state aid recommendation will survive that hurdle.

PROPOSALS TO go higher than that, to $550, are "in real trouble," Graham told the Herald Thursday.

Graham said flatly, however, that he is confident that the state aid per pupil won't go below $500, though it "may be the utlimate decision."

Talk in the Senate, he said, indicates that many legislators would like to hold to $520 — or something close — but change the state aid formula in a way that will give the schools less, but won't be so conspicuous.

They could do it in a couple of ways — by changing the way the state figures the number of students a school district can draw state aid for or by changing the "qualifying rate," the effort-level tax a school district must levy to get state aid.

No Illinois school district will get the full $520 foundation level per pupil if the Ogilvie proposal goes through. The state aid formula doesn't work that way.

THE STATE GIVES a school district the difference between the foundation level and what the district can raise per pupil by levying the qualifying rate tax on its total taxable property.

Currently the state foundation level is $400, with a qualifying tax rate of 84 cents per $100 assessed evaluation, with the paying schools on the basis of average daily attendance, not total enrollment, and allowing high school enrollment to be increased 15 per cent because it costs more to educate high school students.

Ogilvie is recommending a $520 foundation level, a qualifying rate of 90 cents per $100 assessed valuation, with the state paying on the basis of average daily membership instead of attendance, and with high school attendance figured at 1.25 the number of students.

Graham said much of the talk in the payout by setting a $520 foundation aid level — or something near — but going to a $1.08 qualifying rate instead of 90 cents.

THE CHANGE would mean local schools would get substantially less aid than they would at a 90-cent "effort level" qualifiyng rate.

Graham, whose current work on the tax Senate is to cut the state's total task force calls for analysis of the state's higher education spending needs, has been burrowing away at reams of paper work in a room with close to 20 auditors.

He eventually will help decide whether the junior college's state aid level is increased from $11.50 per credit hour to $15.50, as the Illinois Board of Higher Education recommends, or to just $13.50 per credit hour — a recommendation of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce. The decision on that lies several days away as well.

The auditors, Graham said, will help the Senate make a "realistic appraisal" of the state's spending needs.

"We are trying to use the fine knife of surgery to do a delicate job of pruning when it needs to be done," Graham said. "Even in higher education we are not planning to wield a broadaxe in cutting programs."

Aid Action Is Key

Next week's action in Springfield, expected to raise the amount of state aid to schools, could resolve the current dispute between Dist. 15 teachers and the board of education.

Unwilling to accept next year's salary schedule already adopted by the school board, the local Educator's Assn. (EA) believes their demands can be met if an increase in state aid to $550 per pupil is approved by the general assembly. If state aid is not raised to $550, the group will ask the school board to call a referendum for a tax rate increase in the educational fund.

Teachers want a 4.5 per cent yearly increment included in the 1969-70 salary schedule. In a 6 to 1 vote, they rejected the board's salary schedule providing a 3.5 increment.

However, the school board told teachers that reconsideration would be given to next year's salary schedule, if a large enough state aid increase is approved.

The EA has requested a spot on the agenda of Wednesday's board meeting in order to seek recognition as a negotiating agent for Dist. 14 teachers.

In the meantime, all tenure teachers (those entering their third year of teaching in the district) have been asked not to return contracts for next year until a new salary schedule is adopted. The 1969-70 salary agreement unanimously approved by the board in May provides for a beginning salary of $7,600.

Agreeable to the starting salary, the EA is primarily concerned with proposed steps in the schedule which do not provide a substantial annual raise to keep experienced teachers, according to George Yingst, chairman of the teacher's salary committee.

Winter Hard For Workers

(Copyright 1969 Paddock Publications Inc.)

During the next few weeks, migrant workers will be pouring into our Northwest suburbs, mostly from Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley. Who are these migrants? What is HOME to them? Today, in the third of a six-part series, Senior Staff Writer David Hoyt describes the migrant's jobs in the valley before he heads north.

Story and Photos by David Hoyt

Whether he's a common farm laborer, a crew leader, a landscaper or a nursery worker, when it comes to making a living the Mexican American migrant is usually better off during his northern migration than he is at home in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The valley is home — true enough. The valley is where the family is. The climate there is nice in the winter.

But valley agriculture simply cannot absorb a winter labor force that harvests most of the rest of the nation during the summer.

Between 100,000 and 125,000 migrants leave the valley each summer — about a third of the total population — and when they return there are simply not enough jobs to go around, not enough jobs to offer a decent wage.

"We hit about 6 per cent unemployment in the valley in the winter," Richard Stolle of the Texas Employment Commission says. "That's including people who'd like to work but can't. They (the growers) can afford to offer low wages and still pick and choose who they hire."

GENERALLY THE migrant laborer has no other skills so he takes what work he can get and waits for the next migration.

The man who makes $1.70 an hour in Minnesota is lucky to get 90 cents an hour doing the same thing in the valley.

Stolle says $1.30 "is the federal standard minimum wage in agriculture." when he is asked about pay on the south Texas ranches.

It's a good answer. But it won't always wash, because much of the picking is done on a piece-work scale and what is made in pice-work depends on the pieces.

Onion topping can bring a man good money. If the onions are big and the earth is not too hard, a man might put up six sacks of onions an hour, letting him average $1.50 an hour; 25 cents a sack is the going rate.

But that usually can't be done. The crews crawl along the rows, snipping frantically at onions not much bigger than

The Seasonal Suburbanite

The Health Hazard Hunters

by BOB ZANIC

Most people take it for granted that the food they eat, the liquids they drink, the public swimming pools they use, the house or apartment they live in, and the air they breathe are all clean and safe.

But it takes a health officer and sanitarian to make certain of this by finding and removing health hazards, ensuring that the physical environment is safe for everyone.

John Schultz, health officer for Rolling Meadows, and his part-time sanitarian, Mrs. Frances Draut, perform a broad range of job duties ranging from inspection of sanitarty conditions of restaurants and promoting health laws, to administering environmental health programs.

They inspect water supplies, medical care facilities, recreational areas and, other places to prevent conditions harmful to the public health and well-being.

At times they take samples of food, air, and water to test for safety. When necessary, Schultz can recommend corrective action in the places visited in accordance with health laws and regulations. He has the power to enforce these recommendations.

As an engineer for the Cook County Health Department, Schultz can conduct investigations, promote health laws, and give evidence in court against violators of health regulations.

Health education activities and sometimes teaching classes or speaking before student assemblies, civic groups and other organizations on prevention of communicable diseases also are performed by the department.

All food vendors in Rolling Meadows are periodically inspected as are barbershops and hairdressing establishments.

The board of health cooperates with the Public Works department regarding garbage and bag disposal. Schultz said he intends to enforce laws more rigidly, especially concerning storage and control.

He said the new litter law and garbage bag system is so simple that there is no reason to have garbage cans uncovered anywhere.

When asked for some of the problems facing the Board of Health, Schultz said, without being specific, that several apartments in Rolling Meadows have created some critical problems, but he has been successful so far in correcting them.

Above-ground swimming pools, both public and private were another problem, and he has already drawn up some suggestions on how to maintain these pools.

The department has a swimming pool maintenance booklet to guide home owners in the care and maintenance of pools so they will be operated in a safe and sanitary manner.

Public pools are periodically inspected by Schultz, who defined a public pool as any other than one that serves a family. He also checks all plats and specifications for new swimming pools in apartment complexes to see that they conform to state and city codes. While the pool is under construction, he continues to inspect them periodically.

Complaints he receives from citizens regarding food handling are justified and some are not.

"The age of food establishments always cause problems in the area of sanitation," he said.

Schultz said the present and future growth of Rolling Meadows requires a full-time sanitarian. Not only would a full-time sanitarian be able to handle the job's increasing responsibilities, but the day-to-day physical presence of a sanitarian in the community would be significant.

The winter months present problems too, especially complaints about lack of heat. Schulz said the board of health has the power to correct situations of this type.

Mobile canteen trucks are also a problem to the city, he said. Many of these are unlicensed vendors and have a "zip-in and zip-out" mode of operation. They drive into town, make their stops as quickly as they can, and move out. Many of these vendors do not meet the city health code.

Police have been notified to keep an eye out for these offenders. When apprehended, they are ordered into city hall for a meeting with the health director. An appointment to inspect their vehicle is arranged. If the vendor does not obtain a business license, he is arrested the next time he enters the city.

Past accomplishments of the health department include a new food handling ordinance based on a 1962 U.S. Public Health Service Code, (the Bible of Food Handling), a litter and garbage ordinance which prohibits conditions that provide harbor and food for rats, and the swimming pool maintenance booklet.

In September, Schultz said that he will conduct a Food Handling seminar in Rolling Meadows. It will be attended by restaurant managers, grocery store owners, and anyone else who is in the food handling business.

Kids' Dog Show Set for Sunday

Dogs of all sizes, breeds and talents can be entered by their young owners in the kids' dog show this Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Jewel Food Store in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center.

A panel of judges will award first, second and third place trophies in the smallest, biggest, best dressed, best groomed and best trick categories.

A BEST of show award will also be presented.

Prizes include cameras, transistor radios, art sets, dog food, dog care books and balloons.

Ostrow: Need Equal Respect for Each Other

by SANDRA BROWNING

Frank Ostrow is an unimposing man with friendly eyes and an easy smile.

If you live in northern Arlington Heights he and his wife and four children may be moving in next door to you this week.

"Most people shy away from me because I am involved in something controversial," Ostrow said in an interview with the Herald.

Ostrow's part time interest is a group called the Remember the Pueblo Committee of the United States of which he is chairman. In July he started a group by that name in Kent, Washington. It has now grown to include committees across the nation. Members recently changed the name to United States Pueblo Committee and plan to call it "US" for short.

WITH OSTROW MOVING into Arlington Heights, he will be the second man in the area who heads a Remember the Pueblo Committee. The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, is chairman of the national "Remember the Pueblo" committee.

The two committees have similar names and were organized for similar reasons, but are separate groups which happened to spring up after the capture of the USS Pueblo by North Korea in January of 1968.

Ostrow says he has talked with Lindstrom but the two groups will not unite forces. He said these two committees and other groups organized as a result of the Pueblo incident will operate separately but will work cooperatively.

THE REASON OSTROW formed his committee in July was to mold national opinion and inform the news media about the inhuman treatment which the men of the Pueblo were receiving. He wanted to raise enough support to show politicians the strength of his cause, to create hope for the captured men and to not let the matter be forgotten.

Although the committee's name seems to imply its dedication to one purpose, Ostrow says the goals of the group were broader.

The World War II veteran says, "How many more men do we have to kill and how many more violations do there have to be before action is taken?"

The seizing of the Pueblo and the April EC-121 reconnaissance plane incident "showed we are no longer safe," he says.

"Who is going to stand up for law?" the ex-Marine asks. He says the Abe Fortas incident was an example of high level nonresponsibility for law.

Ostrow says he feels the public has not been totally informed about the Pueblo investigation. He says senators are trying to bury the incident but they should see it is too vital to international affairs to be forgotten.

"If our senators can't see that, we need new senators," Ostrow maintains. "All we want to do is to obtain the facts so that each person can make his own decision."

Ostrow says the government has taken the commodity from people which officials are elected to preserve — time. "We need time to get the facts and become more informed," he states.

THE REASON OSTROW got involved in the committee was because "I got mad and I'm going to stay mad. It may take 12 years — this is no short-range project."

Ostrow looks at himself as a "philosopher, I guess. My concern is how to motivate the broad segment of the middle." He things many Americans are in favor of the goals of his committee but they are afraid to speak up. "I have no fear," he says.

As a former newspaper man, Ostrow says he has "learned the position of sticking my neck out for those who were afraid to."

Ostrow says he has been called a communist and threatened with jail. Some persons refused to speak to him when he first became involved with the committee. "I found later they would come up to tell me they were on my side," he says.

THE BLOND-HAIRED Ostrow seems too quiet to be so involved in the nationwide committee. He seems at a loss to explain how his attempt to "do something" got so big.

"I'm a maverick and I know it," he says.

And he doesn't seem to mind it.

His answers are sometimes surprisingly simple, like when he says:

"What we need is to have equal respect for each other."

Frank Ostrow... "I'm a maverick and I know it."

Help The Joint

The reaction of many Palatine Township residents to the proposal last year that $100,000 be raised to develop a teen center probably was, "I'll believe it when I see it."

At least that's the way the fund-raising effort went for some time. Residents of Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Inverness didn't see it, so they didn't believe it.

But that didn't stop the teens who knew that they needed some kind of recreational facility and that they would have to get it themselves.

THE YOUNG people, who are students at five high schools (Palatine, Forest View, Fremd, Sacred Heart and St. Viator) were not content to let their plans fall short of the goal.

They, and a handful of adults who saw the value of the effort, launched a massive fund campaign that moved the teen center goal from the "impossible" category into the "successful, but barely, and still needing help" category.

And that's where it is today, the eve of the "Jog for the Joint."

The teens have purchased the desired property — the former LeVade Ranch on Smith Road, northwest of Palatine proper — but they still need funds to remodel it and convert it into The Joint, a center for this area's teens.

THEIR PARENTS should know well that there are few, if any, other places for the teens to go.

Tomorrow, more than 1,000 teens will sweep through Palatine, Inverness and Rolling Meadows in an attempt to raise the remaining funds.

They want to do it now, because they want The Joint to open this summer.

They are not asking for donations. They are trying to sell $25 bonds which they will repay in 12 years. In other words, they are asking for a loan to help the teens in Palatine Township.

We urge residents of the community to be generous with the teens.

The young people who are doing the work now will not reap all the benefits of The Joint; they're working for the future.

If the teens can do it, the adults certainly can too.

Marines To Honor Late Hero

At a June 14 Marine parade and open house, Mr. and Mrs. Otto W. Arnold of Palatine will accept decorations awarded posthumously to their late son Marine David B. Arnold, for action in Viet Nam.

The decorations will be awarded during the parade ceremony held by Staff Non-Commissioned Officers of the Marine Air Reserve Training Detachment at Glenview Naval Air Station.

The parade and observation of some of the various aircraft and weapons used by the Marine Corps will be held from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. It is open to the public.

Members of the 12th U.S. Army Special Forces Group from Oak Park will demonstrate military uses of a helicopter.

A ten minute precision drill exhibition will be presented by the 4th Marine Aircraft Wing Drum and Bugle Team.

An air show will include a high speed fly over by a single A4 Skyhawk using the "buddy system."

Concluding the air show will be a formation fly over by four H34 helicopters and four A4 Skyhawks.

Hit Chamber Aid Proposal

An Illinois State Chamber proposal that the legislature back off from a state aid increase badly needed by Harper Junior College and the College of DuPage was sharply criticized today by a state junior college association official.

James Broman, executive director of the Illinois Association of Community and Junior Colleges, issued a statement expressing "deep concern" at the state chamber's recommendation that state aid go up only $2 per credit hour instead of the $4 raise to $15.50 recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE).

He said the state's business and industry stands to lose if the Illinois junior colleges don't get adequate funding.

BROMAN, LEGISLATIVE spokesman for the state junior college association to which Harper and the College of DuPage both belong, said the chamber suggestion that $7.1 million be trimmed from the state's budget by not giving as much to the junior colleges was "a shock, especially since the chamber of commerce was instrumental in creating the junior college system."

Broman said business and industry throughout the state will be hurt if the full $15.50 per credit hour aid level is not approved.

He said that local junior colleges needi the state aid increase and a lower level would mean curtailment of expensive "occupational programs so vital to the economy" or increase in local property taxes to compensate for the state aid the junior colleges don't receive.

THE STATE chamber statement last week said its recommendation that state aid be increased only from $11.50 — this year's level, to $13.50 gibed with recommendations of the Illinois Junior College Board.

Broman said this is not so. He noted that the Illinois Junior College Board had originally recommended junior college state aid be increased from $11.50 to $17.

FINAL EXAMS and graduation aced ducted in evening shifts all week at Harper Junior College students this Forest View and Elk Grove high week. Two-hour exams were con- schools.

Muller Elected New Trustee of College

Wilfred Muller of Palatine has been elected to the board of trustees of Eureka College.

A 1932 graduate of the Illinois liberal arts college, Muller was one of four new trustees elected May 31.

The new board member is assistant treasurer of Field Enterprises, secretary and treasurer of Three World, Inc., and served 17 years on the Palatine Unit School District board.

Gustafson To Receive His Master's Degree

James G. Gustafson of Palatine will receive his master's degree from Northern Illinois University next week.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gustafson, 419 S. Hale St., he will begin teaching data processing and computing at Wisconsin State University in Whitewater in September.

Gustafson received his bachelor's degree from the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana.

Plan Jog for the Joint

A "Jog for the Joint" Saturday will seek to raise the balance of funds needed to complete the Palatine Township Youth Organization (PTYO) teen center.

Joggers will begin at the Joint, the former Levade Ranch at Smith Road and Northwest Highway, proceed to Inverness and the unincorporated areas, continue to Palatine and Winston Park, and finish the march in Rolling Meadows.

Teens will sell bonds and accept donations along their routes to raise the remaining funds to renovate the old barn and recreation room into a coffeehouse and dance area for Palatine and Rolling Meadows youth.

THEY WILL SELL 12-year, non-interest bonds door-to-door. So far, $60,000 of the $100,000 goal has been raised.

The bond drive will end with a dance-concert at Sacred Heart of Mary High School Auditorium in Rolling Meadows. Performing at the dance will be "The Mercy" and Joe Kelly Blues Band.

Assorted Artifacts

The California Indian Museum in Sacramento contains artifacts from all cultures native to the state.

Drive Starts On Tornado Information

A drive to inform Rolling Meadows residents of proper precautions to take in event of tornadoes will begin at city hall Saturday at 11 a.m.

A joint project of the Rolling Meadows Civil Defense, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, the three groups will deliver a copy of the booklet, "In Time of Emergency," to every home in the city.

ROLLING MEADOWS does not, at present, have a city-wide siren warning installation. this is being worked on, however, and it is hoped that next year the project will be completed, according to Carmen Vinezeano, deputy director of Rolling Meadows Civil Defense.

The booklet and attached letter will explain what steps should be taken if Rolling Meadows is threatened with a tornado.

Library Defers Expansion

A plan that would answer the Rolling Meadows Public Library patron's high demand for popular fiction and nonfiction books, was adopted by the library board Tuesday night.

The McNaughton Plan allows libraries to offer new books without delay to members of the plan. Books are made available on the day they are published.

This is accomplished at a minimal cost to the library because the plan eliminates out-right purchase of current fiction and non-fiction.

McNaughton's flexible service supplies multiple copies of popular current tiels without the burden of adding them to permanent collections.

Those titles which prove to be of a lasting value may be purchased in lieu of return at 75 per cent off list price.

BOOKS ARE delivered completely processed and ready for circulation, thus avoiding the delay and expense of handling at the library.

It costs a library $1.75 to process a book.

A permanent inventory level is established, forming a revolving collection kept current by the addition and withdrawal of one-tenth of the books each month.

The return of books no longer in demand means a saving of both space and the cost of maintaining them on the library's shelves.

Virginia Connell, Rolling Meadows librarieian, said the plan would cost $107.50 per month, adding that the library budget of $11,000 now makes it possible to include this plan.

A permanent inventory of 250 books could be obtained initially, with selections to be made by the library from current backlists of fiction and non-fiction supplied by McNaughton.

The library is entitled to as many copies of any title thereafter, and every 30 days will receive an additional 25 books.

Under this plan, new books will total 300 per year at a total cost per month of $107.50.

"On a month-to-month basis, studies show that there are not more than five titles that are in demand and three copies of each can be ordered," Miss Connell said. "The remaining 10 books can be ordered on a one-to-one basis."

The first seven months allows the library to build up a collection without any return. But beginning with the eighth month, 25 books a month must be returned. These books, however, are of the library's choice.

THE BOOKS arrive fully processed and aid in cutting library costs. They can be kept in a permanent collection and at the end of the year, if the library decides to purchase a book, it can do so at 75 per cent off the list cost.

In this way, a library can build up a back-log of needed books.

It is estimated that this plan can save the library about $1,200 a year.

With the McNaughton Plan, the librarian can contract to lease any number of already processed copies during the period of the book's high demand and gradually return the excess copies to the source of supply as the demand diminishes, eventually keeping only the one or two copies really needed for the stacks.

This plan is already in use at libraries in Palatine, Melrose Park, Oak Lawn and Morton Grove.

Wittig Leaves Bible Church

After serving 17 years as pastor of the Palatine Bible Church, the Rev. Emil C. Wittig delivered his farewell message Sunday before leaving for South Carolina.

His morning sermon was entitled "Paul's Farewell Charges To Timothy," and at the evening service, the Lord's Supper was observed.

"TO ALL OF OUR friends we say goodbye and God bless each of you. You are always welcome to visit us when you are down in Sumter. Our address will be 21 Rowland Ave., Sumter," Reverend Wittig said.

The Wittigs have three sons, Stephen, 15, David, 13, and Donald, 11.

SAC Plane Missing

OMAHA, Neb. — Strategic Air Command headquarters said yesterday an RC-135 reconnaissance aircraft with 19 persons aboard has been reported missing in the western Aleutian Islands.

SAC headquarters said the plane was attached to a wing based at Eielson AFB near Fairbanks, Alaska, and was on a routine flight to Eielson from Shemya, Alaska.

Helicopter Crashes

PARIS — A U.S.-built helicopter crashed Thursday during a demonstration at the international air show, killing the British pilot in a disaster seen by tens of thousands of spectators.

The helicopter exploded in flight and plunged from an altitude of about 70 feet to the ground, about 300 yards from the huge crowd.

Filibuster Is Flop

SPRINGFIELD — Black legislators in the House filibusterer unsuccessfully for more than two hours yesterday in an attempt to divert an appropriation bill and use part of the funds to train the unemployed for state jobs.

Negro legislators unsuccessfully tried to attach six amendments to the $37.1 million appropriation for the Department of Conservation.

A Red Choice Is OK

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said yesterday the presence of some Communists in the South Vietnamese government would be acceptable to the United States if they were chosen in a free election.

Rogers said the U.S. was not wedded to any government in Saigon, but only to the principle that the people there "should have the right by free choice to decide their future."

Road Program Passed

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday Governor Ogilvie's highway program, including a one-cent hike in the gasoline tax and increasing auto license fees.

Democrats spoke in opposition to one of the proposals for creating a highway authority to float $2 billion in bonds over the next 10 years for road repairs and construction. The license plate increase bill would hike the $8 to $12 category to $20 and the $18 to $20 category to $30.

U.S. Jet Gunned Down

SAIGON — Anti-aircraft gunners around the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi shot down an unarmed U.S. reconnaissance jet yesterday, and American fighter-bombers retaliated with the first announced attack on North Vietnam in six months.

The two-man crew of the downed plane was rescued. The U.S. command said results of the raid against the North Vietnamese gunners were not known.

Breadbasket To Lobby

SPRINGFIELD — The Rev. Jesse Jackson, head of Operation Breadbasket, yesterday said his organization will open an office in Springfield next week and hopes to organize a lobby in the legislature.

Jackson said the office will probably open next Wednesday "to organize a lobby to fight hunger in Illinois."

Four Dist. 57 board members joined forces Wednesday night to request a special meeting Saturday, at 9 a.m. to "clarify the board's position on the sale of Central School."

Harry Hanson, board president, is out of town. Mrs. Pat Kimball, Leo Floros, chairman of the public relations committee, Ralph Walberg, chairman of the facilities committee and Alex Casper, a new board member, signed the special call under a state law which allows three board members to call a meeting.

The move is unprecedented in Dist. 57, according to Dr. Eric Sahlberg, supt., who attended the Wednesday meeting.

The four board members met with PTA representatives to discuss plans to pass the June 14 referendum for $600,000—$580,000 to complete Lincoln as the district's sole junior high and $20,000 to construct a stage and storage addition to Fairview. The two items will be separate on the ballot but together will cost the owner of a $10,000 home $3.70.

BOARD MEMBER Floros has said at earlier meetings that perhaps the board should decide to sell Central Junior High, regardless of whether the referendum passes. The board now has three bids for the school — $426,000 from a combine of local men, $410,411 from the Mount Prospect State Bank as trustee in a land trust, and $406,472 from Kenroy Builders. The middle bid has no restrictions on it set by the bidder.

The PTA representatives urged board members to take the step suggested by Floros and actively supported by other members. They said the referendum would best further the educational goals for junior high if it were a clear-cut choice between an excellent curriculum and a mediocre one, rather than a choice between Central and Lincoln buildings.

Under the plan, the board has asked its new architect, S. Guy Fishman to draw up sketches of what can be built at Lincoln for the minimum of $400,000. The present plans call for a $1 million addition that will allow great flexibility in building use and maximum staff utilization, according to Mrs. Kimball.

She said the larger plan would allow off-duty teachers to give help to slower students and allow installation of practical arts, music, drama, etc. as part of the regular curriculum rather than in after-school clubs.

Fishman told the board that he would prefer to wait and see if the referendum passes before making tentative sketches of the cheaper plan. He said $400,000 would build an addition at Lincoln which would just house the students. The less expensive plan would be on the "egg-carton" design, isolating teachers in individual classrooms opening off a long hall.

THE LARGER ADDITION would include a multi-purpose room to be used for girls' physical education, a new library, a science core with storage for movie projectors and film strips and a music core to be used during peak enrollment for regular classrooms, but later to be converted. It also includes additional classrooms.

Only two board members are known to oppose the sale of Central regardless of the referendum's passage — Jack Ronchetto and Charles Houchins. Houchins has been luke-warm about the entire package, but voted to put the school up for sale after arguing against it.

Ronchetto says he fears "painting ourselves in a corner," but enthusiastically endorses the one-junior high program. "I am 100 per cent behind that concept," he said, "But we have until June 16, two days after the referendum, to accept a bid or reject all bids. I would prefer to wait until then to make my decision."

There will be two public meetings to discuss the referendum and the junior high program. Tuesday, June 10, babysitters will be provided for a 10 a.m. session at Community Presbyterian Church. That same evening a meeting for all residents will be held at Busse School at 8 p.m. The public is invited to bring their questions to these meetings, Floros said.

There will be four polling places on June 14 — Lions Park, Lincoln, Fairview and Busse schools and polls will be opened from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Anyone who is a registered voter may cast a ballot. Absentee ballots may be obtained by calling the Administration building, CL 9-1200.

Harper's Teaching Dist. 214

High School Dist. 214 is rolling up some useful statistics on what a year-round school operation will mean in terms of wear and tear on school buildings.

The figures are a fringe benefit of loaning Elk Grove and Forest View high schools part time to Harper Junior College.

Elk Grove Principal Robert Haskell said at a school board budget committee session last night that his school will have to begin replacing business education equipment because the equipment has had the equivalent of five years of use although Elk Grove has been open for only three years.

Harper is paying a share of the operating cost of the building, but additional maintenance needs, in a long-range sense, are not included in the rent paid by the college.

Board member Jack Costello urged Haskell to have all his divisional administrators keep thorough records of the extra cost rolled up by the district because of having the buildings in use so much more than the other district schools.

He said Dist. 214 didn't expect to be reimbursed for the full cost of Harper classes and considered that extra cost a public service.

Haskell and other Elk Grove school men attending the budget session said it has been their experience that doubling the number of students using the building has given "way-beyond double wear" because the heavier use has hampered the school district in carrying out necessary maintenance on a day-to-day basis.

Language labs at Elk Grove also have been given heavier use, as high school and college students shared the same equipment and soon it will have to be replaced.

Wheeling High School Principal Tom Shirley noted that his industrial arts and home economics areas have had similar double use from evening and late afternoon students enrolled in the federal program sponsored by Wheeling's TORCH program, which is aimed at increasing community use of total community facilities.

Costello urged that Shirley also keep statistics on what the heavier use has meant in terms of building maintenance cost.

He said such figures would prove very helpful as Dist. 214 moves to consider going to a year-round school calendar. The year-around school approach has been suggested by a citizen's committee and a study of the advantgaes and disadvantages of such a study may get under way this year.

Book Sale Is Set

The Mount Prospect public library will sponsor its third annual book sale Aug. 23 in the library parking lot.

Residents who would like to contribute books to the sale may drop them off at the library beginning today, and anyone interested in helping during the sale should contact the librarian.

Trustee Marion Clark told the board last night that residents have been asking about the book sale and that community interest in the project is high.

THE LIBRARY HAS recently recruited the services of the American Lending Library, a company in Georgia that loans books to libraries across the country.

The purpose of the service is to help libraries meet the readers' demands for best selling books. Additional copies are made available to the public to help eliminate long waiting lists for books.

The board unanimously passed a resolution commending C. Jerome Sullivan, director of the Mount Prospect public library from April, 1965, to April, 1969. Sullivan will receive a formal document signed by the trustees in appreciation of his services and help to the library during his term of office.

"All Power To The People"

In the past few days, the Black Panthers have leaped into the headlines in 96 point type as the FBI raided their headquarters in Chicago and in Denver. Who are they and what do they represent to our Northwest suburbs. Find out Monday in Paddock Publications in the first of a three-part series, "All Power to the People," by Writer James Vesely and Photographer Robert Finch.

Winter Work is Disappearing

(Copyright 1969 Paddock Publications Inc.)

During the next few weeks, migrant workers will be pouring into our Northwest suburbs, mostly from Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley. Who are these migrants? What is HOME to them? Today, in the third of a six-part series, Senior Staff Writer David Hoyt describes the migrant's jobs in the valley before he heads north.

The Seasonal Suburbanite

Story and Photos by David Hoyt

Whether he's a common farm laborer, a crew leader, a landscaper or a nursery worker, when it comes to making a living the Mexican American migrant is usually better off during his northern migration than he is at home in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The valley is home — true enough. The valley is where the family is. The climate there is nice in the winter.

But valley agriculture simply cannot absorb a winter labor force that harvests most of the rest of the nation during the summer.

Between 100,000 and 125,000 migrants leave the valley each summer — about a third of the total population — and when they return there are simply not enough jobs to go around, not enough jobs to offer a decent wage.

"We hit about 6 per cent unemployment in the valley in the winter," Richard Stolle of the Texas Employment Commission says. "That's including people who'd like to work but can't. They (the growers) can afford to offer low wages and still pick and choose who they hire."

GENERALLY THE migrant laborer has no other skills so he takes what work he can get and waits for the next migration.

The man who makes $1.70 an hour in Minnesota is lucky to get 90 cents an hour doing the same thing in the valley.

Stolle says $1.30 "is the federal standard minimum wage in agriculture," when he is asked about pay on the south Texas ranches.

It's a good answer. But it won't always wash, because much of the picking is done on a piece-work scale and what is made in pice-work depends on the pieces.

Onion topping can bring a man good money. If the onions are big and the earth is not too hard, a man might put up six sacks of onions an hour, letting him average $1.50 an hour; 25 cents a sack is the going rate.

But that usually can't be done. The crews crawl along the rows, snipping frantically at onions not much bigger than

Respect for Others Needed

nonresponsibility for law.

Ostrow says he feels the public has not been totally informed about the Pueblo investigation. He says senators are trying cident and there should be a Senate investigation. He says senators are trying to bury the incident but they should see it too vital to international affairs to be forgotten.

"If our senators can't see that, we need new senators," Ostrow maintains. "All we want to do is to obtain the facts so that each person can make his own decision."

Ostrow says the government has taken the commodity from people which officials are elected to preserve — time. "We need time to get the facts and become more informed," he states.

THE REASON OSTROW got involved in the committee was because "I got mad and I'm going to stay mad. It may take 12 years — this is no short-range project."

Ostrow looks at himself as a "philosopher, I guess. My concern is how to motivate the broad segment of the middle." He things many Americans are in favor of the goals of his committee but they are afraid to speak up. "I have no fear," he says.

As a former newspaper man, Ostrow says he has "learned the positio.. of sticking my neck out for those who were afraid to."

Ostrow says he has been called a communist and threatened with jail. Some persons refused to speak to him when he first became involved with the committee. "I found later they would come up to tell me they were on my side," he says.

THE BLOND-HAIRED Ostrow seems too quiet to be so involved in the nationwide committee. He seems at a loss to explain how his attempt to "do something" got so big.

"I'm a maverick and I know it," he says.

And he doesn't seem to mind it.

His answers are sometimes surprisingly simple, like when he says:

"What we need is to have equal respect for each other."

Mayor Names 11 to Posts

Mount Prospect Mayor Bob Teichert made 11 more appointments Tuesday to the various village commissions.

Ken O'Callahan will replace Henry Szala, who resigned, on the fire and police commission

George Flaherty was appointed to the economic and industrial commission

FRED REIMAN was appointed to the police pension board

Fred Manuelle was appointed to the safety commission.

John Gatto, James Tielsch and Robert Day were appointed to the youth commission.

Richard Lamey and Mrs. Donald Cyrier were appointed to the board of health.

Larry Pairitz was appointed director of Civil Defense in Mount Prospect and Walter Lange was named deputy director.

No Saturday Office Hours

Mount Prospect village offices will be closed every Saturday, beginning tomorrow.

However, there will be no change in the weekly office hours. Offices will be open from 8:30 to 5 p.m. Mondays thru Fridays.

"We feel that there are enough hours during the week for residents to handle their business with the village," explained John Zimmerman, acting village manager.

"AN ANSWERING device will handle the calls on the main switchboard, and if residents have an immediate problem, they will be asked to call 253-2151. The police department will handle all the emergency calls."

Although the village offices will be closed on Saturdays, this new schedule does not affect the fire and police departments.

Board Adopts New Salaries For Teachers

Board members of Dist. 57 adopted the teacher employment list Monday for the 1969-70 school year at the new salaries established at an earlier meeting.

The new schedule will cost the district approximately $140,000 more in additional salaries for the teachers, over and above a four per cent increase that was already built into last year's schedule.

Ralph Walberg, chairman of the negotiating committee for the board, said that under the new schedule all "grandfather clause" cases would be eliminated. These cases are those that allowed teachers to hold a higher spot on the scale than their training would warrant, simply through years of service. Under the 1969-70 arrangement all teachers will be paid by years of service and training with no "extra" increments.

The board accepted two resignations and granted Steve Caruso, a teacher at Busse and formerly principal at Lincoln, a half year sabbatical leave next year.

A NEW POLICY was adopted that formally recognizes what board members called "current practice." Each certificated staff member shall be required to earn five semster hours of university or college credit every five years.

The policy does not apply to staff members who hold a master's degree.

Hit Chamber Aid Proposal

An Illinois State Chamber proposal that the legislature back off from a state aid increase badly needed by Harper Junior College and the College of DuPage was sharply criticized today by a state junior college association official.

James Broman, executive director of the Illinois Association of Community and Junior Colleges, issued a statement expressing "deep concern" at the state chamber's recommendation that state aid go up only $2 per credit hour instead of the $4 raise to $15.50 recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE).

He said the state's business and industry stands to lose if the Illinois junior colleges don't get adequate funding.

BROMAN, LEGISLATIVE spokesman for the state junior college association to which Harper and the College of DuPage both belong, said the chamber suggestion that $7.1 million be trimmed from the state's budget by not giving as much to the junior colleges was "a shock, especially since the chamber of commerce was instrumental in creating the junior college system."

Broman said business and industry throughout the state will be hurt if the full $15.50 per credit hour aid level is not approved.

He said that local junior colleges needl the state aid increase and a lower level would mean curtailment of expensive "occupational programs so vital to the economy" or increase in local property taxes to compensate for the state aid the junior colleges don't receive.

THE STATE chamber statement last week said its recommendation that state aid be increased only from $11.50 — this year's level, to $13.50 gibed with recommendations of the Illinois Junior College Board.

Broman said this is not so. He noted that the Illinois Junior College Board had originally recommended junior college state aid be increased from $11.50 to $17.

DAMP For Water Bill

Members of the Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine Water Commission (DAMP) have gone on record in support of a bill aimed at protecting lake water.

The members of the local body agreed to support Senate Bill 1126, introduced by five senators to implement a decree of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Under the proposed legislation, the state, its municipalities and political subdivisions are prevented from diverting any water from Lake Michigan or its watershed in excess of 3,200 cubic feet per second.

THE BILL ALSO establishes basic criteria for the control and allocation of diverted water and allocates $35,000 for enforcement.

Members of the commission expressed some hesitancy over supporting the measure, saying the enforcement of the bill may be regulated to an agency other than the Illinois Division of Waterways. After discussion, however, the commission voted unanimously to endorse SB 1126.

Bates Heads Prospect PTC

Robert Bates will serve as president of the Teacher Parent Council at Prospect High School for the next school season. He was elected at the May meeting.

Other officers include first vice president, Nick Nicholas; second vice president, Thomas Ackerxan; and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Harold Busse.

Parents who will represent the different classes at the council are Mrs. Miles Rodgers, freshmen; Mrs. "Red" Rush, sophomores; Mrs. Ralph Gebert, juniors; and Mrs. William Layer, seniors.

BATES' FIRST ORDER of business was to appoint committee chairmen for the 1969-70 season. Mrs. Dan Congreve, wife of former village president Dan Congreve, will serve as hospitality chairman. Mrs. Norma Jean White and Mrs. William Barnes will chair the health and program committees respectively. Mrs. George Busse, wife of the Elk Grove Township Clerk, will handle the council's publicity.

Faculty advisors are Alvin Kulieke, Prospect High School Principal, James Kunnen, Edward Spacapan, and Howard Sandlund, director of student activities at Prospect.

Registration For Football Is Saturday

Registration for Mount Prospect midget football will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Lions Park fieldhouse.

Another session will be held June 14 for those unable to register tomorrow.

The league, for boys 8 to 14, will be starting its 13th season this year. Any boy who will be 8 before Dec. 1, 1969, is eligible.

BOYS MUST LIVE in the Village of Mount Prospect or in the Mount Prospect Park District to register. Fee is $12 for the first boy in each family and $3 for the second.

Any boys who did not play last year and wish to register must be accompanied by a parent and bring a birth certificate.

Pupils Raise $1,000 For School in Africa

Thomas Junior High School students, financing a three-room school in central Africa, recently presented a $1,000 check to Paul Harrison of the Peace Corps.

The African villagers must earn $250 to add to the construction fund and will build the school themselves under the guidance of a Peace Corps director.

HARRISON TOLD pupils that he would fill them in next year on progress of the building and pinpoint the exact location of the school.

Money for the fund came from class treasuries and back sales. Students also conducted "slave sales," selling their services to other pupils for a day.

Tornado Watch

by the Staff of the Herald

Hail was popping against the windows of the Mount Prospect Village Hall Wednesday night.

The rain outside was so heavy it didn't just land on the pavement, it seemed to drill holes in the cement.

At 8:30 p.m., the village had issued a tornado watch, the fire siren gave out with a long blast that seemed to last forever

LT. LARRY PAIRITZ, Roy Martin and other members of the Mount Prospect fire department and Civil Defense units were gathered in the small radio room of the fire department.

A lot of people seemed to think a tornado was on the way

"These things are awfully hard to spot at night," Pairitz was saying. "You just might catch sight of one if the lightening flashes, but otherwise, you'll be in it before you see one at night."

All evening the Civil Defense radio and the area-wide police and fire band had been reporting a heavy storm passing through

Unconfirmed reports of tornados touching down in Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Volo and Barrington came in. Meanwhile, the boys at the fire house were doing what comes naturally, cracking jokes

"AS LONG AS THE tornado doesn't take Kruses', we'll be o.k."

"Look at that reporter, he can't wait for something to happen so he can have a story."

"Hey Larry, it's really coming down out there."

"Yeah, well, when's the last time you saw it going up?"

Every few minutes the telephone would ring.

"Yes, Madam, we have issued a tornado watch. No, no tornado has passed through Mount Prospect. All of Cook County has been alerted to possible tornadoes."

Reports from outlying police departments told of heavy weather near Rolling Meadows, heading east. Somebody on the citizens band radio said the front was passing through Elk Grove Village.

SUDDENLY, A FIRE was reported at 808 S. See-Gwun.

The radio room got moving. Number Two fire station was alerted, a crew in a fire truck roared out of Number One station. The siren went off, bells began clanging.

A few minutes after the report came in the telephone rang again. Sorry, a resident thought he saw flames in the house across the street. Nothing to it after all Pairitz got on the radio and advised the two fire trucks heading toward See-Gwun to go in slow," no fire.

But by then the volunteer firemen began to come in.

They responded to the fire call by the dozens, running in with their boots and fire hats.

GEORGE R. BUSSE, Elk Grove Township clerk and active volunteer fireman, came in dressed as if he had just walked off the bridge of a whaling boat.

The men didn't seem put out that the fire was a false alarm. Most of them stood around and joked for a while and then drifted back home.

Toward the end of the evening the firemen and policemen on duty stood slouched next to the window panes and watched the sky clear and the rain pass. No fire, no tornado, just another night after all

Dist. 57 To Purchase Texts

Mount Prospect's Dist. 57 will purchase as much as $18,250 in new social studies texts and spend about $400 for in-service instruction for the teachers to show them how to use the new material

Dr Richard Percy, assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum, told the board the estimates of cost were purposely high "I would rather over-estimate and come in under the figure than have to come back for more funds," Percy said

He emphasized the need for the teacher workshops by saying, "Unless we have strong staff involvement, new texts are nice, but they can become just something to hold in the hand "

Dr Eric Sahlberg, superintendent, said the money was budgeted for this year. "We have upgraded the math and language arts texts and this was the next planned step." Sahlberg explained

PERCY SAID A committee of staff members has been studying the social studies curriculum for some time.

"As leadership changed, some of the goals of the committee changed," he said. "These choices involved much discussion and much study and even some bloodshed "

Chairman of the committee was Robert Guthrie, principal of Sunset Park, who explained the Contra Costa course developed in California that encourages students to research information for themselves through a series of books listed in a bibliography

Another text give the students the facts of history and asks them to make their own decision as to action based on these facts. Then it tells the child what decision was made at the time. Both sides of an issue are presented.

Percy said the new trend in learning is to help the child make discoveries rather than force-feed information to him.

ONLY ONE OF the books presently used will be retained — "Our World and Its People" and this will be in a revised edition, Percy said.

The board also adopted a new French text to be used for seventh grade students. The present audio-lingual approach will be continued in the eighth grade

Board member Jack Ronchetto, who has been complaining about the outdated social studies texts, complimented the staff on their selection. Ronchetto also suggested the book fees be revised upward. The fees have been reduced tentatively by about half.

"Poor texts blunt the thrust of a $2.5 million budget," Ronchetto said.

Percy said the next step will be an improvement in the science curriculum. He said the textbooks and other material in that area are now undergoing staff study.

"I am earmarking some funds in the budget for possible use during the year in this area," he said. He re-emphasized the need for staff involvement in the study of the curriculum, saying texts are not the only solution to teaching.

Office Building Going Up

What may be Mount Prospect's largest office building is now undergoing renovation at 800 W Central Road

Now called the Central Park Center, the building was originally built for the Alpha Engineering Co. Charles Smith, 20 S Busse, Mount Prospect, new owner of the building, said Alpha will continue to be the prime tenant, but some 14,000 square feet of modernized office space is now open in the building.

SMITH SAID THE Center will try to attract businesses such as insurance and data processing companies.

According to the owner, the Center will begin immediately to lower ceilings of the building, install paneling and remodel existing facilities.

Quick Pay Bill OK Seen

The bill to give River Trails Dist. 26 quicker repayment for the money it must plunk out for educating Maryville children will be heard in the Senate Education Committee next Wednesday

A spokesman for State Sen John A. Graham, R-Barrington, who is handling H.B. 1232 in the Senate, told the Herald Thursday that Graham is confident the bill will get a "do pass" next week with only minor amendments.

Dist 26 gets full reimbursement from the state for the expenses of educating children at Maryville, a Catholic Charities agency -- but currently the reimbursement comes 18 months late

IN THE INTERIM, the River Trails district must either absorb the cost from its own cash resources or borrow funds by issuing interest-bearing tax warrants.

Intent of H B 1232 is to require the state to make reimbursement by the end of the school year.

The bill's chief sponsor is State Rep Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, with State Reps. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, and Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, as co-sponsors. It has already been approved by the House of Representatives.

Mother and Baby Back Together

She locked her baby inside the car, quite by accident and it scared her

So the young mother summoned a passing policeman, Jim Creamer of Mount Prospect

Connie Klaproth, of Northfield, told him she was beside herself with desperation and wondered what she should do She had left the keys to her car in the ignition when the door slammed and locked on her at the corner of Busse Road and Route 83

Creamer calmed the woman and, using a coat hanger, quickly opened the door

And the woman Creamer said she and her baby drove happily away.

SAC Plane Missing

OMAHA, Neb. — Strategic Air Command headquarters said yesterday an RC-135 reconnaissance aircraft with 19 persons aboard has been reported missing in the western Aleutian Islands.

SAC headquarters said the plane was attached to a wing based at Elelson AFB near Fairbanks, Alaska, and was on a routine flight to Elelson from Shemya, Alaska.

Helicopter Crashes

PARIS — A U.S.-built helicopter crashed Thursday during a demonstration at the international air show, killing the British pilot in a disaster seen by tens of thousands of spectators.

The helicopter exploded in flight and plunged from an altitude of about 70 feet to the ground, about 500 yards from the huge crowd.

Filibuster Is Flop

SPRINGFIELD — Black legislators in the House filibusterer unsuccessfully for more than two hours yesterday in an attempt to divert an appropriation bill and use part of the funds to train the unemployed for state jobs.

Negro legislators unsuceessfully tried to attach six amendments to the $37.1 million appropriation for the Department of Conservation.

A Red Choice Is OK

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said yesterday the presence of some Communists in the South Vietnamese government would be acceptable to the United States if they were chosen in a free election.

Rogers said the U.S. was not wedded to any government in Saigon, but only to the principle that the people there "should have the right by free choice to decide their future."

Road Program Passed

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday Governor Ogilvie's highway program, including a one-cent hike in the gasoline tax and increasing auto license fees.

Democrats spoke in opposition to one of the proposals for creating a highway authority to float $2 billion in bonds over the next 10 years for road repairs and construction. The license plate increase bill would hike the $8 to $12 category to $20 and the $18 to $30 category to $30.

U.S. Jet Gunned Down

SAIGON — Anti-aircraft gunners around the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi shot down an unarmed U.S. reconnaissance jet yesterday, and American fighter-bombers retaliated with the first announced attack on North Vietnam in six months.

The two-man crew of the downed plane was rescued. The U.S. command said results of the raid against the North Vietnamese gunners were not known.

Breadbasket To Lobby

SPRINGFIELD — The Rev. Jesse Jackson, head of Operation Breadbasket, yesterday said his organization will open an office in Springfield next week and hopes to organize a lobby in the legislature.

Jackson said the office will probably open next Wednesday "to organize a lobby to fight hunger in Illinois."

Four Dist. 57 board members joined forces Wednesday night to request a special meeting Saturday, at 9 a.m. to "clarify the board's position on the sale of Central School."

Harry Hanson, board president, is out of town. Mrs. Pat Kimball, Leo Floros, chairman of the public relations committee, Ralph Walberg, chairman of the facilities committee and Alex Casper, a new board member, signed the special call under a state law which allows three board members to call a meeting.

The move is unprecedented in Dist 57, according to Dr. Eric Sahlberg, supt., who attended the Wednesday meeting.

The four board members met with PTA representatives to discuss plans to pass the June 14 referendum for $600,000—$580,000 to complete Lincoln as the district's sole junior high and $20,000 to construct a stage and storage addition to Fairview. The two items will be separate on the ballot but together will cost the owner of a $10,000 home $3.70.

BOARD MEMBER Floros has said at earlier meetings that perhaps the board should decide to sell Central Junior High, regardless of whether the referendum passes. The board now has three bids for the school — $426,000 from a combine of local men, $410,411 from the Mount Prospect State Bank as trustee in a land trust, and $406,472 from Kenroy Builders. The middle bid has no restrictions on it set by the bidder.

The PTA representatives urged board members to take the step suggested by Floros and actively supported by other members. They said the referendum would best further the educational goals for junior high if it were a clear-cut choice between an excellent curriculum and a mediocre one, rather than a choice between Central and Lincoln buildings.

Under the plan, the board has asked its new architect, S. Guy Fishman to draw up sketches of what can be built at Lincoln for the minimum of $400,000. The present plans call for a $1 million addition that will allow great flexibility in building use and maximum staff utilization, according to Mrs. Kimball.

She said the larger plan would allow off-duty teachers to give help to slower students and allow installation of practical arts, music, drama, etc. as part of the regular curriculum rather than in after-school clubs.

Fishman told the board that he would prefer to wait and see if the referendum passes before making tentative sketches of the cheaper plan. He said $400,000 would build an addition at Lincoln which would just house the students. The less expensive plan would be on the "egg-carton" design, isolating teachers in individual classrooms opening off a long hall.

THE LARGER ADDITION would include a multi-purpose room to be used for girls' physical education, a new library, a science core with storage for movie projectors and film strips and a music core to be used during peak enrollment for regular classrooms, but later to be converted. It also includes additional classrooms.

Only two board members are known to oppose the sale of Central regardless of the referendum's passage — Jack Ronchetto and Charles Houchins. Houchins has been luke-warm about the entire package, but voted to put the school up for sale after arguing against it.

Ronchetto says he fears "painting ourselves in a corner," but enthusiastically endorses the one-junior high program. "I am 100 per cent behind that concept," he said, "But we have until June 16, two days after the referendum, to accept a bid or reject all bids. I would prefer to wait until then to make my decision."

There will be two public meetings to discuss the referendum and the junior high program. Tuesday, June 10, babysitters will be provided for a 10 a.m. session at Community Presbyterian Church. That same evening a meeting for all residents will be held at Busse School at 8 p.m. The public is invited to bring their questions to these meetings, Floros said.

There will be four polling places on June 14 — Lions Park, Lincoln, Fairview and Busse schools and polls will be opened from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Anyone who is a registered voter may cast a ballot. Absentee ballots may be obtained by calling the Administration building, CL 9-1200.

Harper's Teaching Dist. 214

High School Dist. 214 is rolling up some useful statistics on what a year-round school operation will mean in terms of wear and tear on school buildings.

The figures are a fringe benefit of loaning Elk Grove and Forest View high schools part time to Harper Junior College.

Elk Grove Principal Robert Haskell said at a school board budget committee session last night that his school will have to begin replacing business education equipment because the equipment has had the equivalent of five years of use although Elk Grove has been open for only three years.

Harper is paying a share of the operating cost of the building, but additional maintenance needs, in a long-range sense, are not included in the rent paid by the college.

Board member Jack Costello urged Haskell to have all his divisional administrators keep thorough records of the extra cost rolled up by the district because of having the buildings in use so much more than the other district schools.

He said Dist. 214 didn't expect to be reimbursed for the full cost of Harper classes and considered that extra cost a public service.

Haskell and other Elk Grove school men attending the budget session said it has been their experience that doubling the number of students using the building has given "way-beyond double wear" because the heavier use has hampered the school district in carrying out necessary maintenance on a day-to-day basis.

Language labs at Elk Grove also have been given heavier use, as high school and college students shared the same equipment and soon it will have to be replaced.

Wheeling High School Principal Tom Shirley noted that his industrial arts and home economics areas have had similar double use from evening and late afternoon students enrolled in the federal program sponsored by Wheeling's TORCH program, which is aimed at increasing community use of total community facilities.

Costello urged that Shirley also keep statistics on what the heavier use has meant in terms of building maintenance cost.

He said such figures would prove very helpful as Dist. 214 moves to consider going to a year-round school calendar. The year-around school approach has been suggested by a citizen's committee and a study of the advantgaes and disadvantages of such a study may get under way this year.

Frank Ostrow... "I'm a maverick and I know it."

Need For Respect

by SANDRA BROWNING

Frank Ostrow is an unimposing man with friendly eyes and an easy smile.

If you live in northern Arlington Heights, he and his wife and four children may be moving in next door to you this week.

"Most people shy away from me because I am involved in something controversial," Ostrow said in an interview with the Herald.

Ostrow's part-time interest is a group called the Remember the Pueblo Committee of the United States of which he is chairman. In July, he started a group by that name in Kent, Washington. It has now grown to include committees across the nation. Members recently changed the name to United States Pueblo Committee and plan to call it "US" for short.

WITH OSTROW MOVING into Arlington Heights, he will be the second man in the area who heads a Remember the Pueblo Committee. The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, is chairman of the national "Remember the Pueblo" committee.

The two committees have similar names and were organized for similar reasons, but are separate groups which happened to spring up after the capture of the USS Pueblo by North Korea in January of 1968.

Ostrow says he has talked with Lindstrom but the two groups will not unite forces. He said these two committees and other groups organized as a result of the Pueblo incident will operate separately but will work cooperatively.

THE REASON OSTROW formed his committee in July was to mold national opinion and inform the news media about the inhuman treatment which the men of the Pueblo were receiving. He wanted to raise enough support to show politicians the strength of his cause, to create hope for the captured men and to not let the matter be forgotten.

Although the committee's name seems to imply its dedication to one purpose, Ostrow says the goals of the group were broader.

The World War II veteran says, "How many more men do we have to kill and how many more violations do there have to be before action is taken?"

The seizing of the Pueblo and the April EC-121 reconnaissance plane incident "showed we are no longer safe," he says.

"Who is going to stand up for law?" the ex-Marine asks. He says the Abe Fortas incident was an example of high level

Book Sale Is Set

The Mount Prospect public library will sponsor its third annual book sale Aug. 23 in the library parking lot.

Residents who would like to contribute books to the sale may drop them off at the library beginning today, and anyone interested in helping during the sale should contact the librarian.

Trustee Marion Clark told the board last night that residents have been asking about the book sale and that community interest in the project is high.

THE LIBRARY HAS recently recruited the services of the American Lending Library, a company in Georgia that loans books to libraries across the country.

The purpose of the service is to help libraries meet the readers' demands for best selling books. Additional copies are made available to the public to help eliminate long waiting lists for books.

The board unanimously passed a resolution commending C. Jerome Sullivan, director of the Mount Prospect public library from April, 1965, to April, 1969. Sullivan will receive a formal document signed by the trustees in appreciation of his services and help to the library during his term of office.

"All Power To the People"

In the past few days, the Black Panthers have leaped into the headlines in 96 point type as the FBI raided their headquarters in Chicago and in Denver. Who are they and what do they represent to our Northwest suburbs. Find out Monday in Paddock Publications in the first of a three-part series, "All Power to the People," by Writer James Vesely and Photographer Robert Finch.

Winter Work is Disappearing

(Copyright 1969 Paddock Publications Inc.)

During the next few weeks, migrant workers will be pouring into our Northwest suburbs, mostly from Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley. Who are these migrants? What is HOME to them? Today, in the third of a six-part series, Senior Staff Writer David Heyt describes the migrant's jobs in the valley before he heads north.

Story and Photos by David Heyt

The Seasonal Suburbanite

Whether he's a common farm laborer, a crew leader, a landscaper or a nursery worker, when it comes to making a living the Mexican American migrant is usually better off during his northern migration than he is at home in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The valley is home — true enough. The valley is where the family is. The climate there is nice in the winter.

But valley agriculture simply cannot absorb a winter labor force that harvests most of the rest of the nation during the summer.

Between 100,000 and 125,000 migrants leave the valley each summer — about a third of the total population — and when they return there are simply not enough jobs to go around, not enough jobs to offer a decent wage.

"We hit about 6 per cent unemployment in the valley in the winter," Richard Stolle of the Texas Employment Commission says. "That's including people who'd like to work but can't. They (the growers) can afford to offer low wages and still pick and choose who they hire."

GENERALLY THE migrant laborer has no other skills so he takes what work he can get and waits for the next migration.

The man who makes $1.70 an hour in Minnesota is lucky to get 90 cents an hour doing the same thing in the valley.

Stolle says $1.30 "is the federal standard minimum wage in agriculture," when he is asked about pay on the south Texas ranches.

It's a good answer. But it won't always wash, because much of the picking is done on a piece-work scale and what is made in pice-work depends on the pieces.

Onion topping can bring a man good money. If the onions are big and the earth is not too hard, a man might put up six sacks of onions an hour, letting him average $1.50 an hour; 25 cents a sack is the going rate.

But that usually can't be done. The crews crawl along the rows, snipping frantically at onions not much bigger than FINAL EXAMS and graduation faced Harper Junior College students this week. Two-hour exams were conducted in evening shifts all week at Forest View and Elk Grove high schools.

Respect for Others Needed

nonresponsibility for law.

Ostrow says he feels the public has not been totally informed about the Pueblo investigation. He says senators are trying cident and there should be a Senate investigation. He says senators are trying to bury the incident but they should see it is too vital to international affairs to be forgotten.

"If our senators can't see that, we need new senators," Ostrow maintains. "All we want to do is to obtain the facts so that each person can make his own decision."

Ostrow says the government has taken the commodity from people which officials are elected to preserve — time. "We need time to get the facts and become more informed," he states.

THE REASON OSTROW got involved in the committee was because "I got mad and I'm going to stay mad. It may take 12 years — this is no short-range project."

Ostrow looks at himself as a "philosopher, I guess. My concern is how to motivate the broad segment of the middle." He things many Americans are in favor of the goals of his committee but they are afraid to speak up. "I have no fear," he says.

As a former newspaper man, Ostrow says he has "learned the positio.. of sticking my neck out for those who were afraid to."

Ostrow says he has been called a communist and threatened with jail. Some persons refused to speak to him when he first became involved with the committee. "I found later they would come up to tell me they were on my side," he says.

THE BLOND-HAIRED Ostrow seems too quiet to be so involved in the nation wide committee. He seems at a loss to explain how his attempt to "do something" got so big.

"I'm a maverick and I know it," he says.

And he doesn't seem to mind it.

His answers are sometimes surprisingly simple, like when he says:

"What we need is to have equal respect for each other."

Mayor Names 11 to Posts

Mount Prospect Mayor Bob Teichert made 11 more appointments Tuesday to the various village commissions.

Ken O'Callahan will replace Henry Szala, who resigned, on the fire and police commission.

George Flaherty was appointed to the economic and industrial commission.

FRED REIMAN was appointed to the police pension board

Fred Manuelle was appointed to the safety commission.

John Gatto, James Tielsch and Robert Day were appointed to the youth commission.

Richard Lamey and Mrs. Donald Cyrier were appointed to the board of health.

Larry Pairitz was appointed director of Civil Defense in Mount Prospect and Walter Lange was named deputy director.

No Saturday Office Hours

Mount Prospect village offices will be closed every Saturday, beginning tomorrow.

However, there will be no change in the weekly office hours. Offices will be open from 8:30 to 5 p.m. Mondays thru Fridays.

"We feel that there are enough hours during the week for residents to handle their business with the village," explained John Zimmerman, acting village manager.

"AN ANSWERING device will handle the calls on the main switchboard, and if residents have an immediate problem, they will be asked to call 253-2151. The police department will handle all the emergency calls."

Although the village offices will be closed on Saturdays, this new schedule does not affect the fire and police departments.

Board Adopts New Salaries For Teachers

Board members of Dist. 57 adopted the teacher employment list Monday for the 1969-70 school year at the new salaries established at an earlier meeting.

The new schedule will cost the district approximately $140,000 more in additional salaries for the teachers, over and above a four per cent increase that was already built into last year's schedule.

Ralph Walberg, chairman of the negotiating committee for the board, said that under the new schedule all "grandfather clause" cases would be eliminated. These cases are those that allowed teachers to hold a higher spot on the scale than their training would warrant, simply through years of service. Under the 1969-70 arrangement all teachers will be paid by years of service and training with no "extra" increments.

The board accepted two resignations and granted Steve Caruso, a teacher at Busse and formerly principal at Lincoln, a half year sabbatical leave next year.

A NEW POLICY was adopted that formally recognizes what board members called "current practice." Each certificated staff member shall be required to earn five semster hours of university or college credit every five years.

The policy does not apply to staff members who hold a master's degree.

Pupils Raise $1,000 For School in Africa

Thomas Junior High School students, financing a three-room school in central Africa, recently presented a $1,000 check to Paul Harrison of the Peace Corps.

The African villagers must earn $250 to add to the construction fund and will build the school themselves under the guidance of a Peace Corps director.

HARRISON TOLD pupils that he would fill them in next year on progress of the building and pinpoint the exact location of the school.

Money for the fund came from class treasuries and back sales. Students also conducted "slave sales," selling their services to other pupils for a day.

Hit Chamber Aid Proposal

An Illinois State Chamber proposal that the legislature back off from a state aid increase badly needed by Harper Junior College and the College of DuPage was sharply criticized today by a state junior college association official.

James Broman, executive director of the Illinois Association of Community and Junior Colleges, issued a statement expressing "deep concern" at the state chamber's recommendation that state aid go up only $2 per credit hour instead of the $4 raise to $15 50 recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE).

He said the state's business and industry stands to lose if the Illinois junior colleges don't get adequate funding.

BROMAN, LEGISLATIVE spokesman for the state junior college association to which Harper and the College of DuPage both belong, said the chamber suggestion that $7.1 million be trimmed from the state's budget by not giving as much to the junior colleges was "a shock, especially since the chamber of commerce was instrumental in creating the junior college system."

Broman said business and industry throughout the state will be hurt if the full $15.50 per credit hour aid level is not approved

He said that local junior colleges needi the state aid increase and a lower level would mean curtailment of expensive "occupational programs so vital to the economy" or increase in local property taxes to compensate for the state aid the junior colleges don't receive.

THE STATE chamber statement last week said its recommendation that state aid be increased only from $11.50 — this year's level, to $13.50 gibed with recommendations of the Illinois Junior College Board.

Broman said this is not so. He noted that the Illinois Junior College Board had originally recommended junior college state aid be increased from $11.50 to $17.

DAMP For Water Bill

Members of the Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine Water Commission (DAMP) have gone on record in support of a bill aimed at protecting lake water.

The members of the local body agreed to support Senate Bill 1126, introduced by five senators to implement a decree of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Under the proposed legislation, the state, its municipalities and political subdivisions are prevented from diverting any water from Lake Michigan or its watershed in excess of 3,200 cubic feet per second.

THE BILL ALSO establishes basic criteria for the control and allocation of diverted water and allocates $35,000 for enforcement.

Members of the commission expressed some hesitancy over supporting the measure, saying the enforcement of the bill may be regulated to an agency other than the Illinois Division of Waterways. After discussion, however, the commission voted unanimously to endorse SB 1126.

Registration For Football Is Saturday

Registration for Mount Prospect midget football will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Lions Park fieldhouse.

Another session will be held June 14 for those unable to register tomorrow.

The league, for boys 8 to 14, will be starting its 13th season this year. Any boy who will be 8 before Dec. 1, 1969, is eligible.

BOYS MUST LIVE in the Village of Mount Prospect or in the Mount Prospect Park District to register. Fee is $12 for the first boy in each family and $3 for the second.

Any boys who did not play last year and wish to register must be accompanied by a parent and bring a birth certificate.

Bates Heads Prospect PTC

Robert Bates will serve as president of the Teacher Parent Council at Prospect High School for the next school season. He was elected at the May meeting.

Other officers include first vice president, Nick Nicholas; second vice president, Thomas Ackerxan; and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Harold Busse.

Parents who will represent the different classes at the council are Mrs. Miles Rodgers, freshmen; Mrs. "Red" Rush, sophomores; Mrs. Ralph Gebert, juniors; and Mrs. William Layer, seniors.

BATES' FIRST ORDER of business was to appoint committee chairmen for the 1969-70 season. Mrs. Dan Congreve, wife of former village president Dan Congreve, will serve as hospitality chairman. Mrs Norma Jean White and Mrs. William Barnes will chair the health and program committees respectively. Mrs. George Busse, wife of the Elk Grove Township Clerk, will handle the council's publicity.

Faculty advisors are Alvin Kulieke, Prospect High School Principal, James Kunnen, Edward Spacapan, and Howard Sandlund, director of student activities at Prospect.

Tornado Watch

by the Staff of the Herald

Hail was popping against the windows of the Mount Prospect Village Hall Wednesday night.

The rain outside was so heavy it didn't just land on the pavement, it seemed to drill holes in the cement.

At 8 30 p.m., the village had issued a tornado watch; the fire siren gave out with a long blast that seemed to last forever

LT. LARRY PAIRITZ, Roy Martin and other members of the Mount Prospect fire department and Civil Defense units were gathered in the small radio room of the fire department.

A lot of people seemed to think a tornado was on the way

"These things are awfully hard to spot at night," Pairitz was saying. "You just might catch sight of one if the lightening flashes, but otherwise, you'll be in it before you see one at night."

All evening the Civil Defense radio and the area-wide police and fire band had been reporting a heavy storm passing through

Unconfirmed reports of tornados touching down in Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Volo and Barrington came in. Meanwhile, the boys at the fire house were doing what comes naturally, cracking jokes

"AS LONG AS THE tornado doesn't take Kruses', we'll be o.k."

"Look at that reporter, he can't wait for something to happen so he can have a story.

"Hey, Larry, it's really coming down out there.

"Yeah, well, when's the last time you saw it going up?"

Every few minutes the telephone would ring.

"Yes, Madam, we have issued a tornado watch. No, no tornado has passed through Mount Prospect. All of Cook County has been alerted to possible tornadoes."

Reports from outlying police departments told of heavy weather near Rolling Meadows, heading east. Somebody on the citizens band radio said the front was passing through Elk Grove Village.

SUDDENLY, A FIRE was reported at 808 S. See-Gwun.

The radio room got moving. Number Two fire station was alerted, a crew in a fire truck roared out of Number One station. The siren went off, bells began clanging.

A few minutes after the report came in the telephone rang again. Sorry, a resident thought he saw flames in the house across the street. Nothing to it after all.

Pairitz got on the radio and advised the two fire trucks heading toward See-Gwun to go in slow," no fire.

But by then the volunteer firemen began to come in.

They responded to the fire call by the dozens, running in with their boots and fire hats.

GEORGE R. BUSSE, Elk Grove Township clerk and active volunteer fireman, came in dressed as if he had just walked off the bridge of a whaling boat.

The men didn't seem put out that the fire was a false alarm. Most of them stood around and joked for a while and then drifted back home.

Toward the end of the evening the firemen and policemen on duty stood slouched next to the window panes and watched the sky clear and the rain pass. No fire, no tornado, just another night after all.

BOLI Blasts Engineer

SAC Plane Missing

OMAHA, Neb — Strategic Air Command headquarters said yesterday an RC-135 reconnaissance aircraft with 19 persons aboard has been reported missing in the western Aleutian Islands.

SAC headquarters said the plane was attached to a wing based at Eielson AFB near Fairbanks, Alaska, and was on a routine flight to Eielson from Shemya, Alaska

Helicopter Crashes

PARIS — A US-built helicopter crashed Thursday during a demonstration at the international air show, killing the British pilot in a disaster seen by tens of thousands of spectators.

The helicopter exploded in flight and plunged from an altitude of about 70 feet to the ground, about 500 yards from the huge crowd.

Filibuster Is Flop

SPRINGFIELD — Black legislators in the House filibusterer unsuccessfully for more than two hours yesterday in an attempt to divert an appropriation bill and use part of the funds to train the unemployed for state jobs.

Negro legislators unsuceessfully tried to attach six amendments to the $37.1 million appropriation for the Department of Conservation.

A Red Choice Is OK

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said yesterday the presence of some Communists in the South Vietnamese government would be acceptable to the United States if they were chosen in a free election.

Rogers said the U.S. was not wedded to any government in Saigon, but only to the principle that the people there "should have the right by free choice to decide their future."

Road Program Passed

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois House passed and sent to the Senate yesterday Governor Ogilvie's highway program, including a one-cent hike in the gasoline tax and increasing auto license fees.

Democrats spoke in opposition to one of the proposals for creating a highway authority to float $2 billion in bonds over the next 10 years for road repairs and construction. The license plate increase bill would hike the $8 to $12 category to $20 and the $18 to $20 category to $30.

U.S. Jet Gunned Down

SAIGON — Anti-aircraft gunners around the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi shot down an unarmed U.S. reconnaissance jet yesterday, and American fighter-bombers retaliated with the first announced attack on North Vietnam in six months.

The two-man crew of the downed plane was rescued The U.S. command said results of the raid against the North Vietnamese gunners were not known.

Breadbasket To Lobby

SPRINGFIELD — The Rev Jesse Jackson, head of Operation Breadbasket, yesterday said his organization will open an office in Springfield next week and hopes to organize a lobby in the legislature.

Jackson said the office will probably open next Wednesday "to organize a lobby to fight hunger in Illinois."

Former village engineer Charles Towers' handling of a project to install street lights along Northwest Highway was criticized at last night's meeting of the Board of Local Improvements (BOLI).

"There have been so many reasons we can't do things in the history of this job that we have about reached the end of our rope," said Russell Colvin, BOLI president.

Colvin suggested removing Tower as the engineer for the project. "I feel our representative has not been moving on this fast enough," he said.

Senior BOLI member Harold Klinger said, "I would say that is a very conservative understatement."

The board decided to retain Tower as engineer for the project because members said they didn't think removing him would help speed up the installation of lights

The street lights would be constructed on Northwest Highway east to Waterman Avenue, on Kensington from Northwest Highway east to Dryden Avenue and on Dryden Avenue from Northwest Highway south to Miner Street

The project is stalled now pending approval of the street light plans by the state highway department. Tower told Colvin on the telephone before the meeting that the plans were submitted to the state May 26

Construction of the street lights cannot begin until the state issues a permit.

Tower was supposed to appear at last night's meeting but called Colvin instead.

"I was not satisfied with my discussion with him. We're not getting the performance we should be," Colvin said.

Tower resigned as village engineer the end of February and joined the engineering firm of Ciorba, Spies and Gustafson. BOLI engaged the firm as consulting engineers for the street lighting project to retain continuity on the installation. The plans for the project were originally designed by Tower.

Delay Three Lakes

by SANDRA BROWNING

The 238-acre Three Lakes subdivision in northern Arlington Heights has been in the planning stage for more than two years and Wednesday's Plan Commission decision will further delay the beginning of any construction.

Developers of the project have repeatedly stumbled, balked and then compromised with demands made by the Plan Commission and the Village Board in the past.

Apartments, single-family residences, a golf course and some commercial land are included in the proposed site. It would be located in the extreme northern end of Arlington Heights, west of Arlington Heights Road to Schaefer Road. Most of the parcel is located south of the Lake-Cook County line.

ORIGINALLY, the plan for the development was presented in March, 1967. In July, developers Gus and James Stavros said they were "ready to go immediately" on the construction of homes.

However, the village wanted a restrictive covenant to assure the land proposed as a golf course would remain open land and not be swallowed up by homes or apartments.

In August of that year, Village Board members complained about multiple-family units on a strip of the land north of the Lake-Cook County line. They said that if this property were zoned for multiple-family, the remaining farm land to the north would probably be developed as multiple family also.

Discussions between the Stavros brothers and the village continued for months. In January of 1968, School Dist. 21 requested the donation of a school-park site in the development which would produce 300 children to be educated by the district.

In March of 1968, James Stavros said the village was making unreasonable demands on the development. He threatened to de-annex the land from the village.

Stavros told the Plan Commission in May, 1968, that he hoped to develop the entire property by himself.

Arguments finally ismmered down and the development seemed to be fairly well settled in July when the village approved an ordinance granting 51 acres of multiple zoning and 31 acres of single family residences zoning.

The issue of a 12-acre park-school site was apparently forgotten in the shuffle.

Before Wednesday night's meeting, the Plan Commission recently recommended approval of a preliminary platt of subdivision for the project.

Plan Commision members were startled to learn that Joseph Rosin was presenting the plans for two parcels of the multiple-family zoned land. Rosin said he was the only beneficiary of a land trust held by the American National Bank covering a total of four parcels.

Commissioner James Ryan snapped that he and the other members expected to be presented with a plan for the entire 238-acre development at once.

Zoning for the development was granted pending the submission of a planned development. Ryan asked that the commission seek Village Board interpretation of the ordinance, to decide whether the commission had the power to approve only one portion of the development.

Commissioner Victor Beisler said that when the preliminary plans had been approved, the commission was told that development of the property would not be broken up.

Rosin presented his plans, knowing that deferment of action was inevitable. He warned, "You may hold up this project for quite a time."

Educating Schools

High School Dist. 214 is rolling up some useful statistics on what a year-round school operation will mean in terms of wear and tear on school buildings.

The figures are a fringe benefit of loaning Elk Grove and Forest View high schools part time to Harper Junior College

Elk Grove Principal Robert Haskell said at a school board budget committee session last night that his school will have to begin replacing business education equipment because the equipment has had the equivalent of five years of use although Elk Grove has been open for only three years.

Harper is paying a share of the operating cost of the building, but additional maintenance needs, in a long-range sense, are not included in the rent paid by the college.

Board member Jack Costello urged Haskell to have all his divisional administrators keep thorough records of the extra cost rolled up by the district because of having the buildings in use so much more than the other district schools.

He said Dist. 214 didn't expect to be reimbursed for the full cost of Harper classes and considered that extra cost a public service.

Haskell and other Elk Grove school men attending the budget session said it has been their experience that doubling the number of students using the building has given "way-beyond double wear" because the heavier use has hampered the school district in carrying out necessary maintenance on a day-to-day basis.

Language labs at Elk Grove also have been given heavier use, as high school and college students shared the same equipment and soon it will have to be replaced.

Wheeling High School Principal Tom Shirley noted that his industrial arts and home economics areas have had similar double use from evening and late afternoon students enrolled in the federal program sponsored by Wheeling's TORCH program, which is aimed at increasing community use of total community facilities.

Costello urged that Shirley also keep statistics on what the heavier use has meant in terms of building maintenance cost.

He said such figures would prove very helpful as Dist. 214 moves to consider going to a year-round school calendar. The year-around school approach has been suggested by a citizen's committee and a study of the advantgaes and disadvantages of such a study may get under way this year.

"All Power To The People"

In the past few days, the Black Panthers have leaped into the headlines in 96 point type as the FBI raided their headquarters in Chicago and in Denver. Who are they and what do they represent to our Northwest suburbs. Frank Ostrow... "I'm a maverick and I know it."

Need For Respect

by SANDRA BROWNING

Frank Ostrow is an unimposing man with friendly eyes and an easy smile.

If you live in northern Arlington Heights, he and his wife and four children may be moving in next door to you this week.

"Most people shy away from me because I am involved in something controversial," Ostrow said in an interview with the Herald.

Ostrow's part-time interest is a group called the Remember the Pueblo Committee of the United States of which he is chairman. In July, he started a group by that name in Kent, Washington. It has now grown to include committees across the nation. Members recently changed the name to United States Pueblo Committee and plan to call it "US" for short.

WITH OSTROW MOVING into Arlington Heights, he will be the second man in the area who heads a Remember the Pueblo Committee. The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, is chairman of the national "Remember the Pueblo" committee.

The two committees have similar names and were organized for similar reasons, but are separate groups which happened to spring up after the capture of the USS Pueblo by North Korea in January of 1968.

Ostrow says he has talked with Lindstrom but the two groups will not unite forces. He said these two committees and other groups organized as a result of the Pueblo incident will operate separately but will work cooperatively.

THE REASON OSTROW formed his committee in July was to mold national opinion and inform the news media about the inhuman treatment which the men of the Pueblo were receiving. He wanted to raise enough support to show politicians the strength of his cause, to create hope for the captured men and to not let the matter be forgotten.

Although the committee's name seems to imply its dedication to one purpose, Ostrow says the goals of the group were broader.

The World War II veteran says, "How many more men do we have to kill and how many more violations do there have to be before action is taken?"

The seizing of the Pueblo and the April EC-121 reconnaissance plane incident "showed we are no longer safe," he says.

"Who is going to stand up for law?" the ex-Marine asks. He says the Abe Fortas incident was an example of high level

Winter Work is Disappearing

(Copyright 1969 Paddock Publications Inc.)

During the next few weeks, migrant workers will be pouring into our Northwest suburbs, mostly from Texas' Lower Rio Grande Valley. Who are these migrants? What is HOME to them? Today, in the third of a six-part series, Senior Staff Writer David Hoyt describes the migrant's jobs in the valley before he heads north.

The Seasonal Suburbanite

Story and Photos by David Hoyt

Whether he's a common farm laborer, a crew leader, a landscaper or a nursery worker, when it comes to making a living the Mexican American migrant is usually better off during his northern migration than he is at home in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

The valley is home — true enough. The valley is where the family is. The climate there is nice in the winter.

But valley agriculture simply cannot absorb a winter labor force that harvests most of the rest of the nation during the summer.

Between 100,000 and 125,000 migrants leave the valley each summer — about a third of the total population — and when they return there are simply not enough jobs to go around, not enough jobs to offer a decent wage.

"We hit about 6 per cent unemployment in the valley in the winter," Richard Stolle of the Texas Employment Commission says. "That's including people who'd like to work but can't. They (the growers) can afford to offer low wages and still pick and choose who they hire."

GENERALLY THE migrant laborer has no other skills so he takes what work he can get and waits for the next migration.

The man who makes $1.70 an hour in Minnesota is lucky to get 90 cents an hour doing the same thing in the valley.

Stolle says $1.30 "is the federal standard minimum wage in agriculture," when he is asked about pay on the south Texas ranches.

It's a good answer. But it won't always wash, because much of the picking is done on a piece-work scale and what is made in pice-work depends on the pieces.

Onion topping can bring a man good money. If the onions are big and the earth is not too hard, a man might put up six sacks of onions an hour, letting him average $1.50 an hour; 25 cents a sack is the going rate.

But that usually can't be done The crews crawl along the rows, snipping frantically at onions not much bigger than

Hit Chamber Aid Proposal

An Illinois State Chamber proposal that the legislature back off from a state aid increase badly needed by Harper Junior College and the College of DuPage was sharply criticized today by a state junior college association official.

James Broman, executive director of the Illinois Association of Community and Junior Colleges, issued a statement expressing "deep concern" at the state chamber's recommendation that state aid go up only $2 per credit hour instead of the $4 raise to $15.50 recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE).

He said the state's business and industry stands to lose if the Illinois junior colleges don't get adequate funding.

BROMAN, LEGISLATIVE spokesman for the state junior college association to which Harper and the College of DuPage both belong, said the chamber suggestion that $7.1 million be trimmed from the state's budget by not giving as much to the junior colleges was "a shock, especially since the chamber of commerce was instrumental in creating the junior college system."

Broman said business and industry throughout the state will be hurt if the full $15.50 per credit hour aid level is not approved.

He said that local junior colleges needl the state aid increase and a lower level would mean curtailment of expensive "occupational programs so vital to the economy" or increase in local property taxes to compensate for the state aid the junior colleges don't receive.

THE STATE chamber statement last week said its recommendation that state aid be increased only from $11.50 — this year's level, to $13.50 gibed with recommendations of the Illinois Junior College Board.

Broman said this is not so. He noted that the Illinois Junior College Board had originally recommended junior college state aid be increased from $11.50 to $17.

Pleads for Poor

by TOM WELLMAN

Paul Simon, lieutenant governor of Illinois, told a crowd of about 800 graduates, parents and teachers Sunday at St. Viator High School to "reach out" to the surrounding community and world.

Simon, a Democrat serving in the second highest elected state position under a Republican governor, told his audience, "I hope you'll not be afraid to reach out to the people in places like Pope County, Illinois."

Pope County, on the southern edge of the state, is an all-white, economically depressed area. Simon said that many public officials have not been paid or have been living on subsistence incomes for as long as eight months.

"The people there think they are forgotten. If this is one nation indivisible, there can be no forgotten people."

SIMON, WHO looks like a determined Sunday school teacher at first glance, stood ramrod straight while addressing the commencement audience. He spoke quietly and forcefully as he explained that reaching out involves touching also the people of East St. Louis and the south side of Chicago.

Simon admitted at the beginning of his speech that the valedictory address by Herbert J. Klein, senior class president, was "as fine a valedictory as I've heard." (For full text, see Page of Opinion.)

Klein, speaking abruptly at first, opened his speech, "We are the last generation. The height of man's accomplishment. We will not live to see our grandchildren — we will not have any. For there will be no world for them to live in."

He said it would have been easier to have spoken in "sentimental platitudes" about his four years at St. Viator.

"There is no longer any time for such trivia. Hiroshima made sure of that. And Watts. And Auschwitz. And California State. Man has long been dying in spirit. Now he is facing physical death on a large scale and quite possibly extinction, be it through thermonuclear war, environmental pollution, over population and starvation . . .

"IN THE PAST we could run or hide and ignore. Now the end confronts us like a mad-hungry dog. Either man's spirit must be reborn or his body will die."

"Either we will be remembered as the generation that saved humanity or we will not be remembered at all. There will be none left to remember."

He urged his audience to act realistically, and he told his fellow students that "one person — each of us — can shape history." Then, he concluded:

"Tomorrow can be the end of all which man has accomplished, or tomorrow we can journey to the stars, but our journeys into space are as nothing if we cannot look with love into another man's eyes and call him brother."

The audience applauded, Simon followed with his speech, and 225 seniors were presented with their diplomas.

After the commencement, Klein was congratulated by Simon. Klein said it had taken him four days to write his address, but he revised it even on the way over to St. Viator's auditorium Sunday afternoon.

Report Home Values Are Up

Although the number of building permits for single-family residences issued in Arlington Heights during May is less than a year ago, the value of homes has increased.

In May 1968, valuation for 64 homes was pegged at $1,747,700; last month's 44 permits cover residences totaling $2,088,600.

The number of permit requests for home alterations, additions and garages also decreased this May.

Total permits issued in May 1968, including churches, schools and businesses, were 104; in May 1969 the total is 70. The cumulative number of permits issued from January through May of each year, however, are similar. The building department issued 439 permits in 1968 and 431 in 1969.

Pupils Raise $1,000 For School in Africa

Thomas Junior High School students, financing a three-room school in central Africa, recently presented a $1,000 check to Paul Harrison of the Peace Corps.

The African villagers must earn $250 to add to the construction fund and will build the school themselves under the guidance of a Peace Corps director.

HARRISON TOLD pupils that he would fill them in next year on progress of the building and pinpoint the exact location of the school.

Money for the fund came from class treasuries and back sales. Students also conducted "slave sales," selling their services to other pupils for a day.

Miss Miller Gets Rotary Scholarship

Cynthia Miller, a 1969 Arlington High School graduate, received a Rotary Club college scholarship yesterday.

Daughter of Mrs. Jane Miller, 414 S. Lincoln Lane, Cynthia has been a student council member for four years. Interested in music, she is active in the mixed chorus and sang in a school operetta this year.

The scholarship winner was elected Cardinal Calendar Girl during her junior year. She will use the funds to attend the University of Illinois, where she plans to major in education.

John Lindstrom, scholarship chairman and past president of the Arlington Heights Rotary Club, made the presentation.

DAMP For Water Bill

Members of the Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine Water Commission (DAMP) have gone on record in support of a bill aimed at protecting lake water.

The members of the local body agreed to support Senate Bill 1126, introduced by five senators to implement a decree of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Under the proposed legislation, the state, its municipalities and political subdivisions are prevented from diverting any water from Lake Michigan or its watershed in excess of 3,200 cubic feet per second.

THE BILL ALSO establishes basic criteria for the control and allocation of diverted water and allocates $35,000 for enforcement.

Members of the commission expressed some hesitancy over supporting the measure, saying the enforcement of the bill may be regulated to an agency other than the Illinois Division of Waterways. After discussion, however, the commission voted unanimously to endorse SB 1126.

Park Improvement Scheduled

Three Arlington Heights Park Board members Tuesday night said they were "pleased" with a sechedule of site development for nine parks.

They attended an informal meeting with the site development contractor, Milburn Brothers of Mount Prospect. The schedule places completion for two small parks, Greens and Virginia Terrace, at the top of the priority list.

Citizens' complaints at last week's board meeting sparked a request for a firm schedule of dates from the contractor.

Robert Salzman of Milburn Brothers told board members the schedule had been slightly revised so the two parks could be completed earlier than originally planned. He said this was done because of the complaints and also because the contractor was unable to start on some of the larger sites.

"We hope to get them done in enough time for people to get some use out of them this summer," Salzman said.

THE SCHEDULE IS tentative; it depends on good weather conditions and no other delays, Salzman said.

The months in which the site development is tentatively scheduled to be completed is:

Greens Park in the central northern part of the village, July.

Virginia Terrace Park in the northwestern part of Arlington Heights, July.

Evergreen Park in the eastern portion of the village, August.

Raven Park near Edgar Allen Poe school, September.

Camelot Park in the north central part of the village, September.

Frontier Park in the Greenbrier Subdivision, October.

Heritage Park in the southern portion of the village, October.

Patriot Park near MacArthur Junior High School, October.

Care Free Park in the northern part of Arlington Heights, October.

Zero in on Radar

The Arlington Heights Village Board's public safety committee — sharply divided on the installation of all-weather radar in the village — is going to get another look at specific questions about usage.

The Village Board agreed Monday night that the committee of George Burlingame, Charles Bennett, and William Griffin should consider many specific questions about maintenance, use and cost of the equipment.

Burlingame, chairman of the committee, has argued strongly for the installation of the equipment ever since he arranged a purchase of two sets from his employer, United Air Lines.

Bennett and Griffin argued last night that the equipment should not be installed, but stored in the basement until questions about its use can be satisfactorily answered. They stressed that they don't oppose the radar, but are definitely uncertain about its usefulness.

BENNETT SAID he simply didn't know the right answer. He said that among the 18 or 19 persons he contacted about the radar, not one man was enthusiastic about its use.

Capt. Ron Harvey, communications officer for the fire department, explained that a greater need existed for working on other emergency programs.

"We're not using the information we have available to us today."

So, the public safety committee will shortly get another crack at the problem. This time, however, the committee will be concerned about specific questions about usage.

The equipment, formerly installed in United Air Lines' Viscounts, is used by pilots to spot severe weather and tornados. Burlingame said he has relied on the equipment as a commercial pilot to steer through severe weather patterns.

THE EQUIPMENT, costing $2,000 per set, is currently in storage. If installed, it would require a small structure to house it and personnel to read the information about approaching bad weather.

If installation is approved, village officials would use the system in conjunction with present weather information, such as reports from the weather bureau. The emergency warning sirens could be sounded if a tornado were sighted approaching the village.

Just how reliable the equipment is however, is another question to be considered by the committee.

Arlington Rd. May Lose Two South Lanes

Arlington Heights Road near downtown Arlington Heights will lose its two southbound lanes Monday morning if village engineer Al Sander can gain official permission for the sewer project from the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

Sander told The Herald he expects permission to be granted today. Three signatures of Sanitary District officials are necessary, and Sander does not expect any delay in approval.

THE ENTIRE sewer project will take five to six weeks. However, the two southbound lanes will be blockaded no longer than two weeks, unless unforeseen delays cut into the project.

Traffic on two southbound lanes of the road will be detoured west to Evergreen at Miner Street. The southbound traffic will rejoin Arlington Heights Road at South Street, south of the business district.

Barricades and signs will be installed Monday morning after the rush hour.

Kemming Wins Bike Rodeo

Kerry Kemming, a student at Our Lady of the Wayside School, was the top point winner in the annual Arlington Heights Jaycees' Bike Rodeo, held recently at Recreation Park.

Kerry, 509 S. Reuter Drive, ran up a total of 39 points to win the overall competition in the seven events which drew over 100 participants. He also won the first place trophy in the boys' fifth and sixth grade division.

Jeff Hickel, of 113 N. Evanston Ave. won first place in the boys' seventh and eighth grade division. Jeff is a student at Miner Junior High School.

SUE COFFEY, also a student at Miner, won first place in the girls' seventh and eighth grade division. She lives at 108 N. Stratford Road.

Winners in the fifth and sixth grade division included second place winner James Paynter, 222 S. Fernandez Ave., and third place winner, Jerry Sullivan, 442 S. Roosevelt Ave.

In the boys' third and fourth grade divison, first place was won by John McHugh, 122 S. Mitchell Ave., second place was won by Shawn Coffey, 108 N. Stratford Road, and third place was won by Jack Pittman, 1322 E. Northwest Hwy.

Susan Blizzard, 903 N. Ridge Ave., won first place in the girls' fifth and sixth grade division. In this category, Barbara Lump, 1010 N. Yale Ave., won second place and Sandra Morris, 916 N. Kaspar Ave., won third place.

In the girls' third and fourth grade division, first place was won by Linda Calvert, 309 N. Drury Lane, second place was won by Cathy Trotter, 115 S. Wilshire Ave., and third place was won by Cathy Gloves, 111 W. Suffield Drive.

NO RUNNER-UP trophies or medals were awarded in either the boys' or girls' seventh and eighth grade division.

Events included slalom (weaving among pylons), circling on bikes, slow-riding and stopping on a mark.

The Jaycee project was conducted in cooperation with Arlington Heights schools, the police department and the park district. It also had the endorsement of the village's safety commission.

Sickroom Flowers or Plants Are Not Harmful

It is not true that flowers or plants in their rooms can harm sick persons. Medical authorities agree that they could not possibly use up enough oxygen, or give up sufficient carbon dioxide to harm the occupant.

It is true that some people, not too many, are allergic to some of the exotic odors of certain flowers, especially lilies or roses. Also, in crowded wards there is little space available for them. Some understaffed hospitals do not have the labor to take care of flowers.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.

AS BUSY AS. . . A Chicago radio station announcer said the people answering the phone at the Weather Bureau Wednesday night were as busy as "a three legged cat in a sandbox" Phones at Arlington Heights Police Department were busier than that after the siren was sounded to warn residents of a tornado watch Three policemen were answering phones and as soon as they would hang up, the phone would ring again. When his phone did not ring for about four seconds, one of the policemen said, "It must be out of order"

STORMY WEATHER — The turbulent weather outside on Wednesday night during the tornado warning was not much more severe than the violent storm inside the Municipal Building Plan commissioners didn't like the plans submitted for two parcels of land in the proposed Three Lakes subdivision and deferred action on approving the plans. The petitioner, Joseph Rosin, exploded, "I can't wait I've got half a million dollars in escrow on this project You can have the development"

MARGIN OF UTILITY? —What price weather warning radar? For Arlington Heights trustee Bill Griffin, the current asking price seems way out of line for the additional safety factor that the electronic gear may provide. When the radar was described as a bargain by fellow trustee George Burlingame, Griffin countered, "Well, that's like a $12 book on penguins which I once had the opportunity to buy for 50 cents. It was a bargain, but it was still $11 50 more than I wanted to know about penguins"

HERALD STAFF MEMBER of the future? Jim Vogts, Ridge School fifth-grader, was asked in class to develop a complex sentence from "The boy went in the door." "HI THERE!!" The backers of State Rep Eugene Schlickman for the 13th District Congressional post are understandably less than thrilled by Bruce Ladd's potential entry into the field of candidates "Well," said one Schlickman backer. SOME PALATINE APPRECIATION KITS were distributed to children at the Phong Dinh Province Orphanage in Viet Nam, but there are some boxes still in Palatine not to be sent until postage money is donated.

Postage Still Due

by MARTHA KOPER

It wasn't easy for the Palatine Girl Scouts to fill almost 100 boxes with needed items for orphans in Vietnam.

Taking charge of this year's PAK (Palatine Appreciation Kits) project, the girls began in January to collect clothing and toys for children staying in Vietnamese orphanages.

Residents responded by donating items, but an unexpected obstacle sprang in the way of completing the goodwill project. Now the scouts are beginning to wonder if all their efforts have been wasted.

Local organizations and individuals have not donated enough money to cover the cost of postage to send the packages overseas.

There still are about 20 boxes in Palatine ready to be shipped, but no money to pay postage. Each box costs between $3.50 and $4 to send.

About 70 PAK's already have been distributed to orphanages throughout Vietnam. But only a small portion of the postage money came from Palatine.

From a short story in a Chicago newspaper, a total of $120 was sent to local scouts from Chicago citizens, according to Mrs. Lawrence Burtis, chairman of the project.

Ironically, several Palatine service clubs including the Lion's and Kiwanis already have been given credit for providing postage money in a letter sent to all USO stations in Vietnam.

Mrs. Burtis has sent two letters, the first one in early April, to local groups asking for their support, but only a few have responded.

In the meantime, large boxes filled with shoes, socks, baby clothes, coloring books, crayons, soap and other children's items are being stored in Palatine when they could be bringing comfort and happiness to orphans of Vietnam.

DAMP For Water Bill

Members of the Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine Water Commission (DAMP) have gone on record in support of a bill aimed at protecting lake water.

The members of the local body agreed to support Senate Bill 1126, introduced by five senators to implement a decree of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Under the proposed legislation, the state, its municipalities and political subdivisions are prevented from diverting any water from Lake Michigan or its watershed in excess of 3,200 cubic feet per second.

THE BILL ALSO establishes basic criteria for the control and allocation of diverted water and allocates $35,000 for enforcement.

Members of the commission expressed some hesitancy over supporting the measure, saying the enforcement of the bill may be regulated to an agency other than the Illinois Division of Waterways. After discussion, however, the commission voted unanimously to endorse SB 1126.

First Queen Recalls Crowning Rose

NINE YEARS LATER, Mrs. Phanos stands in front of the Rose Restaurant in Roselle, which she and her husband, Adam, own. A graduate of Lake Park High School, Mrs. Phanos has lived in the Roselle area all her life.

by JUDY MORRIS

Tradition is a part of any beauty contest. One person in particular will observe Sunday's crowning of the Roselle Rose Queen with nostalgia.

Mrs. Ann Phanos, formerly Ann VanderWerf of Roselle, was the village's first rose queen in 1960. Mrs. Phanos presently lives in Roselle with her husband, Adam, and their 2-year-old son, Dino.

"My folks were pretty surprised," Mrs. Phanos said, "and I was very excited."

Festivities at that first rose pageant were much the same as they are now, Mrs. Phanos said. The 18 contestants rode in the parade in open convertibles just as this year's candidates will do.

MRS. PHANOS GREW UP in Roselle, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John VanderWerf, owned a grocery store on Bokelman Street near the present site of the Rose Restaurant which Mrs. Phanos and her husband own.

The first rose queen festival was organized by C. F. Nagro, a Roselle music teacher. Nagro was also the composer of the song "Roselle, Dear Home Town."

Aug. 7, 1960, was a bright and sunny day in Roselle. Record crowds turned out for the parade, many persons wearing a single rose pinned to lapel or dress. It was reported at the time that as many as 2,000 people saw Ann VanderWerf crowned as the first rose queen.

"I don't remember much about that day," Mrs. Phanos said.

"THERE WERE A LOT OF people, and I do remember being very nervous. Each girl was interviewed before the judges, and I'll never know how I got through it."

Gifts were given to the queen by local merchants. Savings bonds, gift certificates and even a piece of property in El Paso, Tex., were donated.

"I've never seen my lot in Texas," Mrs. Phanos said. She laughed. "I think I've still got the deed somewhere, but for all I know it's not even my property anymore."

After graduation from Lake Park High School in the same year she won the contest, Mrs Phanos attended Elgin Community College for a year and then worked as a catering manager for a country club

SHE HAS BEEN married for five years and now jointly manages their restaurant with her husband.

"The system works out really well" Mrs. Phanos said. "I take care of the front of the restaurant and Adam supervises the kitchen and management."

Roselle's first rose queen said she never entered any other beauty contests because "I just never thought about it."

ROSELLE'S FIRST rose queen, Mrs. Ann Phanos, formerly Ann Vanderwerf, remembers she was "very excited" when she won the title in 1960.

More Power Urged

Cook County School Supt. Robert P. Hanrahan should become chief legislative spokesman for all northern Illinois schools, a consultant firm said this week.

The legislative recommendation was one of several recommendations made by the firm of Cresap, McCormick and Paget for strengthening the Cook County superintendent's office.

That recommendation is expected to ruffle feathers of other northern Illinois county superintendents and local school men working actively now to get school legislation through the General Assembly.

James Worthy, vice president of the firm, announced the results at a press conference Tuesday in Hanrahan's Chicago office.

HE SAID THE COUNTY superintendent should exercise leadership in legislative matters throughout northern Illinois "by force of personality" rather than "force of law."

The report said Hanrahan "should regard it as a continuing responsibility of his office to stimulate discussion and planning among his fellow county superintendents and among educators in general on how the state's total educational structure should be modified and strefgthened."

The report said the Cook County superintendent is "in a unique position" to understand the needs of growing suburban schools.

Worthy said the firm's recommendations for strengthening the Cook county school office are considered short-ranges with long-range improvements only possible through legislation.

THE STUDY also made these recommendations:

—That the state provide funds to double the number of professionals on Hanrahan's staff.

—That the county superintendent be elected only by voters in suburban Cook County, not by the City of Chicago.

—That Hanrahan's office beef up its consultant services to local schools.

—That legislation be passed to permit the superintendent's office to administer cooperative programs requested and financed by local school districts.

—That ineffective adtivities of the superintendent's office be reduced or eliminated.

The study said the county superintendent currently has a staff of 12 — three paid by the state, nine by the county and one from federal funds. Another dozen professionals should be added, it said.

Hanrahan acknowledged at the press conference that his staff is spread paperthin.

The county office, he noted, must conduct annual inspections of buildings in 146 school districts — but has only one man to do the job.
